Maj. Hesse submits the draft of a new law for Washington proposing to make the purchase of a pint of cawn a felony, so what right has this town to sneer at the witch doctors of York?

The House by a vote of 24 to 14—out of a total membership of 435 overworked statesmen who are so busy they need another white marble palace to labor in—scraps the Army's Liberty motor, which isn't as great as it was cracked up to be and never was.

When the new $8,000,000 Tepidarium has been completed for our modern Caracallas a special rule will probably have to be adopted under which one page boy will constitute a quorum.

Crowds will gather on Pennsylvania avenue at 12 o'clock noon today, speeches will be delivered by the Pifflebund, the batteries at the Hotel Washington will fire a Chautauqua salute, and the public departments will be closed—it's armistice day in Paraguay and the dreadful war is over, after the spilling of a ghastly amount of precious ink.

Severe criticism of Prof. Beeswax P. McGinnis, prominent inventor of the year without a summer, is being heard in inaugural circles, many believing that in allotting yesterday's weather to January 9 he deliberately wasted a supply that should have been held in reserve until March 4. It is understood that Prof. McGinnis will be formally requested to let loose his entire stock of blizzards and rain during the balance of this month and in February.

Or, as Senator Blaine's argument leads us to conclude, if the Kellogg peace treaty had been in effect in 1776 there would have been no Declaration of Independence in 1776, for the reason that the minute Jefferson wrote it and John Hancock signed it all the rest of the nations would have hopped on our necks, and we were too poor then to have been able to afford even one more enemy. The senator seems to fear we are underwriting the British Empire for all time.

$100,000 SOVIET SENATE BRIBES BRANDED FALSE

RECEIPT DOCUMENTS HELD TO BE SPURIOUS

REED, OF PENNSYLVANIA, ENDS YEAR OF STUDY

Heflin Halts Exoneration Vote by Attack on Publisher of Mexican Charges.

BY ALBERT W. FOX

Exposure of a sensational international forgery, purporting to show $100,000 payments to Senators William E. Borah and George W. Norris from the Soviet Government of Russia, was made in the Senate yesterday afternoon by Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the special committee which has been investigating similar matters.

The report was made to the Senate as a matter of the highest privilege, thereby taking precedence over the Kellogg peace treaty and no pains were spared to expose every link in the chain of forged evidence while at the same time reaffirming the committee's conclusion as to the falsity and nefarious character of the charges implied by the forged documents. Full publicity was requested by Senators Borah and Norris after they had appeared before the committee on Tuesday and denied under oath that they had ever received money from the Soviet or had in any other way been involved in the alleged transactions referred to.

Drive Against Fake Papers.

It developed that Senator Reed has been quietly making an investigation of the particular documents referred to for nearly a year and that he has personally conducted part of the investigation in Europe. Senator Borah has been aware of this investigation but Senator Norris only learned of it on Tuesday.

One of the purposes of the committee in making the whole matter public is to end, if possible, the traffic in spurious documents which have played such an important part in international relationships, particularly with respect to the Russian and Mexican governments.

It is recalled now that various alleged Soviet documents exhibited by the State Department to the Senate investigating committees have all along been described as forgeries by the Soviet authorities and even the famous Hughes exhibit describing a Soviet plot to "put the red flag on the White House" has been classified as a product of the international forgery mill commented upon in some detail in yesterday's discussion in the Senate.

First information of the document purporting to link Senators Borah and Norris with the Soviet pay roll reached Senator Reed last year, while the latter was busy investigating alleged Mexican documents printed by the Hearst newspapers.

Mexican Documents Recalled.

These latter documents purported to show payments from the Calles government destined for Senators Borah, Norris and Heflin. The Reed committee, formed for the purpose of investigating them, held public headings and pronounced the documents crude for-

SOUTH SEEKS POST IN HOOVER CABINET

OTHERS ARE EXPECTED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President-elect Hoover has come to the realization in his daily Mayflower Hotel conferences of the compensations which Southern States that voted for him now expect.

So far there has been someone every day importuning the appointment of Mrs. Alvin T. Hert to the cabinet, and yesterday the cause of C. Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, was advanced. The newly elected Republican representative from the Ninth District, John T. Schafer, was the advance guard in Mr. Slemp's behalf. Others are expected to come.

In fact, Mr. Slemp himself is on the list of visitors for today, not that he is expected to blow his own horn, but observers spent no little time yesterday speculating on just how a man should act or does act when visiting the President-elect right after he has been recommended for a high office. Mr Slemp is not believed to be averse to a cabinet appointment. It has been understood for a long time, rather, that it was his ambition.

When it comes to political obligations his friends insist that Mr. Hoover is hardly more indebted to anyone else. It is true that the populace awoke on the morning of November 7 to learn that Virginia had gone for Mr. Hoover but Bishop Cannon probably figures that he had more to do with it than anyone else.

It was his organization that spread most of the anti-Smith propaganda and got the anti-Smith pledges.

It might be said, though, that Mr. Slemp was not found asleep when the opportunity to grab Virginia presented itself and the men who have shown themselves adept at grasping opportunities have been rated with the great men of the time, alongside, in fact, with those who created the opportunities.

Mr. Slemp's work was not confined to his own State, either. It was rather difficult to put one's hands on just what he was doing during the campaign but suffice to say he had a staff of workers and was doing something.

He is not the one to make speeches, so his work did not appear on the surface as did that of some of the others. His friends say that he was the real master mind behind what happened in the entire South, not Col. Horace Mann.

One possible fly in Mr. Slemp's ointment might be Col. Henry W. Anderson, who was the Republican front in Virginia in the lean years when there was no Gov. Smith to give the Republicans a look-in.

Anderson's features were placarded about the Kansas City hotels and convention hall last June as the right man to run for the Vice Presidency with Mr. Hoover. It would be in line with Mr. Slemp's graciousness today to present the name of Anderson as

HESSE SUBMITS NEW DRY LAW FOR CAPITAL

GIBSON WILL STUDY IT

The purchaser as well as the seller of liquor would be guilty of a felony, under the terms of a new enforcement law proposed yesterday by Maj Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police.

Hesse's recommendations were submitted to Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), chairman of the investigating subcommittee of the House District committee, which is investigating the liquor situation here.

The police chief's recommendations follow:

1. Legislation amending the national prohibition act so as to confer upon every member of the police force the same measure of authority now vested in prohibition enforcement officers. (At present this authority is held by only 38 policemen.)

2. Legislation placing in the hands of the police control over the freedom and entry into all clubs, whether incorporated or not.

3. Making the sale or possession of illegal liquor a felony, this to apply both to the one who makes the sale and the one who makes the purchase.

4. That the possession of illegal liquor shall be considered prima facie evidence of guilt, and justification for arrest and seizure.

5. The right of the superintendent of police or one of his assistants to issue search warrants upon probable cause that the law is being violated. (This now is done by the United States Commissioner.)

6. The appointment of an additional judge and the necessary court machinery for the exclusive trial of cases where violations of the national prohibition law are charged; that there be inserted a clause increasing the penalty for first and second offenses for the illegal sale of liquor, and that a time limit be set for the trial of all cases after presentation in court.

Some of these proposals are so drastic that it can be said now that they have no chance of ever being included in a bill. Take, for example, the proposal to make it a felony for a man to purchase a half-pint of liquor.

Representative Gilbert (Democrat), of Kentucky, a member of the Gibson subcommittee and an arch dry, is opposed to such a provision because, he says, it would be next to impossible to get a jury that would find a man guilty of a felony for such an offense. Hence, he says, the law would defeat its own purpose.

Representative Gibson said yesterday that he would place Hesse's recommendations before the subcommittee at the next meeting and let the members decide what ought to be done.

Meanwhile, Representative Sproul, of Kansas, is drafting a dry law for this city which, in many respects, would be more drastic than the bill Hesse seeks to have passed.

Man Killed Under Train In Effort to Save Dog

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Claude H. Sharitz, 43, a postoffice clerk, today sacrificed his life in a futile effort to save a pet dog.

Both Sharitz and the canine were killed beneath the wheels of a Chesapeake and Ohio freight train.

Fokker Firm Outlines Similar Scheme for Paris-to-Paris Nonstop Journey.

Wichita, Kans., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Believing that the 150-hour flight of the Army monoplane Question Mark has brought a nonstop round-the-world flight into the realm of possibility, Col. Arthur C. Goebel, noted long distance flier, announced today that he intended to be the first to make the attempt.

"The Question Mark definitely proved that such a flight can be made," Goebel said. "True, it will take a great deal of financial backing and a real airplane. But it can be done, and I am going to do it."

The flier, who is in a hospital here recovering from an operation, said he hoped to be able to make the start next August or September. His tentative plans call for a west-to-east flight with refueling planes along the route. Two pilots and two radio men would make up the crew.

Backer Is Being Consulted.

Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, Okla., oil man, who backed Goebel in the Dole flight is being consulted on the proposition. Several Wichita business men have indicated they will assist in making the flight possible.

Tentative plans announced by the flier include a specially built ship, equipped with a powerful radio set.

The route of the proposed flight as outlined by Goebel would start and end at Wichita.

Fokker Firm Plans Flight.

Paris, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A nonstop round-the-world flight with refueling of the plane in the air, is the latest project of the Fokker aviation firm. The concern has been spurred to the idea by the successful sustained flight of 150 hours made by the American Army plane Question Mark.

Details of the proposed attempt have not been worked out, but the principle practically was adopted today when the chief of the firm visited the head of its Paris bureau.

The project calls for posting tank planes at various cities around the globe, these machines to meet the round-the-world plane in mid-air and accompany it for such distance as may be required for refueling.

Proposed for Trip.

"Paris to Paris" would be the objective of the trip. A tentative route calls for refueling planes at Aleppo, in Syria; Karachi and Calcutta, in India; Hongkong, in China; Vladivostok, Petropaviovsk and Kamchatka, in Siberia.

If a northern route is chosen across America, the refueling planes would be stationed at Prince Rupert or Vancouver, Winnipeg and St. Johns, N. F. If the southern route is preferred, the stations would be at Chicago and New York.

Next June has been suggested as the time for the attempt as the best weather conditions might be met in that month.

Mrs. Oldfield Leading Vote for House Seat

Batesville, Ark., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs Pearl Peden Oldfield, Democratic candidate for the seat in Congress vacated by the death of her husband, the late Representative William A. Oldfield, tonight was leading her opponent, R. W Tucker, Independent, 2,162 to 1,517 votes on the face of incomplete and scattered returns from the Second Congressional District special election.

The contest today was for the two-year term beginning in March to which her husband was elected shortly before his death. She was an unopposed candidate for the short term ending March 4.

Burgomaster Is Slain; Half of Town in Jail

Spalato, Dalmatia, Jugoslavia, Jan 9 (A.P.).—Fifty per cent of the population of the town of Drinis, near here, were arrested today and charged with murder. They were said to have been members of a mob of a thousand or more men, women and children who recently stoned to death Bozo Ajdanic, burgomaster of the town.

He was unpopular among the natives and when he returned from a visit to the country he was waylaid at night. Police found his body in a road the next day.

HEX SLAYER IS GUILTY IN FIRST DEGREE; LIFE PRISON TERM ORDERED

PARENTS OF CONVICTED SLAYER

SAW REHMEYER'S FACE IN PALM, HE ASSERTS

GLAD TRIAL IS OVER; SPELL LIFTED, HE SAYS

Aged Mother Collapses; Not Present When Jurors Return Verdict.

York, Pa., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—John Blymyer, the lad who thought he was bewitched, was convicted tonight of first-degree murder and ordered sentenced to life imprisonment because he and two companions killed Nelson Rehmeyer, 58-year-old conjurer.

The jury deliberated an hour and 39 minutes, took three ballots, and on the third had formed an undivided opinion that Blymyer, witches or no witches, must suffer for his crime.

York does not approve generally of the death penalty, so the verdict constituted in actuality the heaviest penalty which could be expected. Blymyer was only slightly affected.

Says Spell Is Off.

"They went a little heavy," he said after court adjourned, "but I feel a lot better. I'm much happier. The spell is off of me. I'm not bewitched any more."

Enjoying his freedom from the sinister charms of evil spirits, he was led back to jail by his guard.

The verdict was reached at 7:05 p. m. The first ballot had stood 11 for first-degree murder, with life imprisonment, and 1 for capital punishment. The second ballot stood 9 for life imprisonment, 2 for second-degree murder and 1 for acquittal on the grounds of insanity. The third was unanimous as rendered.

It was 7:40 when Blymyer was led into court and Judge Ray P. Sherwood ascended the bench. Blymyer was just a little flushed as the jury filed in.

"Defendant arise," ordered the Court, and Blymyer unfolded stiffly like a jackknife with a spring back and stood as straight as a willow wand.

Hardly Realizes Result.

"Prisoner, look upon the jury; jury, look upon the prisoner," the court clerk directed. Blymyer sighted from his little eyes down his long, pointed nose at the jury box.

"Have you reached a verdict?" asked the Court.

"Yes, we have," responded the foreman.

"What is your verdict?"

"Guilty of first-degree murder, with a recommendation for life imprisonment," answered the jury foreman.

Blymyer turned a bit ashen and sat down. Yet he did not seem to realize just what it meant for him. His expression hardly changed.

On demand of Herbert Cohen, Blymyer's counsel, the jury was polled. Each member affirmed that he was in accord with the verdict.

None of Family Present.

Cohen then filed formal notice of appeal and sentence was postponed for four days. Cohen said later he desired time for consideration before he could say definitely whether he would go through with the appeal or not. The proceedings were over within 15 minutes.

Only a handful were in court. None of the members of the Blymyer family or the Hess family were present to hear the verdict.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 John Curry, second of the bewitched trio, will go to trial for Rehmeyer's murder. Arguments of counsel began immediately, that of the defense first.

TRACTION MEN MEET CHANGES IN MERGER

Agree to Senate Plans, and Measure Will Pass This Session, Report Says.

VALUATION WILL WAIT

A merger of the local street railway companies at this session of Congress seemed a virtual certainty last night.

The Washington Post learned on the best of authority that the heads of the traction companies stand ready to accept the terms laid down yesterday by the merger subcommittee of the Senate District committee.

Briefly, these terms are that the two traction companies agree to merge without a fixed valuation of $50,000,000; that they guarantee to continue the present rate of fare for two years, and that in the meantime the public be given the benefit of universal transfers; that is, free transfers from what is now the Capital Traction Co. to what is now the Washington Railway & Electric Co., and vice versa.

These free transfers will represent a saving of $60,000 a year to the car-riding public.

The concessions demanded yesterday by the Senate subcommittee are simply the principal planks in the senators' merger platform. Other concessions are to be asked, and doubtless will be granted by the traction men.

The terms laid down by the subcommittee were contained in a resolution which was adopted unanimously. At the same time, the subcommittee authorized Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, the New York utilities expert, to carry on further negotiations with the traction men, and suggested further that he supervise the new valuation in the future.

Maltbie immediately swung into action and was in conference with the traction men all afternoon and late last night, rewriting the so-called Wilson merger agreement.

The action taken by the subcommittee yesterday was forecast Saturday fol-

DEATH PLOT FOILED; POLICE ARREST WIFE

THREE BATTLE AND FLEE

Detroit, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace Wood was arrested as she lay on a sickbed tonight after one would-be assassin was killed by police and a deputy sheriff wounded in a gun battle when police, deputy sheriffs and State troopers ambushed four men who attempted to murder her husband, Ralph A. Wood, president of the Wood Construction Co.

Police received word of the plot to murder the wealthy builder this afternoon from a man who said he had been employed by Mrs. Wood, head of a realty company which bears her first name, to aid four gunmen in slaying her husband.

Three of the four gunmen escaped in a motor car when police of three cities, deputy sheriffs and State police opened fire from places of concealment inside and outside the building in which Wood had his offices.

One of the four was believed wounded and a police net was thrown over the city to watch all hospitals. A heavy guard was placed around the home of Mrs. Wood in the expectation that at least one of the three who escaped would attempt to communicate with her. No charge was placed against her, but she will be held for questioning.

The dead man was identified as William Thompson, of Wyandotte, Mich., near here. He was shot as he stepped up to Wood at the door of his office and raised a blackjack to strike him. Wood, who has but one arm, fired simultaneously with a policeman and it is believed his shot killed Thompson.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas Dunnigan was wounded in the abdomen. Physicians

With the finding of Miss Grace Stone 18-year-old steno-bookkeeper and night school student living at 624 L street southwest, in the University Hospital, Baltimore, shortly before midnight last night, a city-wide search was brought to a close that began a few hours earlier when the young woman disappeared from the Jefferson Junior High School here after writing two notes intimating suicide.

She was removed to the hospital from the 10:15 o'clock Baltimore & Ohio train, on which she was found suffering from hysteria, after every one had left the train upon its arrival at the terminal.

For a long time the hospital authorities were unable to earn her name, as she would not talk. Finally they elicited the name of her father, William Frank Stone, from her, and he was notified. He left shortly thereafter for his daughter's bedside.

Miss Stone disappeared from the Jefferson Junior High School, where she is a night student, at 8:15 o'clock. When she left the building she handed the two notes to Miss Clarita Wilcox, a teacher, with the request that they be given to a schoolmate, Miss Margaret Hewitt, 18 years old, 1124 Robinson street southwest, who was then attending another class.

When Miss Hewitt read the notes—one of which was addressed to her and the other to the missing girl's mother, Mrs. Grace Stone—she became agitated. Miss Wilcox, sensing that something was wrong, asked to see the notes.

The notes were then carried to D. C. Jackson, of Takoma Park, the principal, who got in touch with the police.

The note to the mother read: "Dearest Mother: I know this will grieve you very much, but can not stand it

Hoover's Overseas Workers Plan Reunion For March 3

President-Elect Will Be Guest of Honor at Banquet of War and Postwar Relief Officials; Many Visitors to Travel Long Distances.

A reunion banquet of all who worked with President-elect Herbert Hoover in the Hoover overseas and war service organizations from 1914 to 1924 will take place at Wardman Park Hotel on March 3, according to present plans, with President-elect Hoover as the guest of honor.

Among the Hoover organizations which will be represented by as many of their officer personnel as possible, some of them coming from great distances, and even other lands, to be present, will be the American Relief Administration, the European Children's Fund, the Commission for Relief in Belgium, the European Technical Advisers, the United States Food Administration, the United States Grain Corporation and the United States Sugar Equalization Board.

It is said that an effort is being made to secure an inaugural stand for those who attend the reunion, where they can witness the induction into office or the ride down historic Pennsylvania avenue of their leader in strenuous war and postwar years on his day of glory.

The reunion and the events connected with it will be strictly a "family affair." None save the families of the officials of the organizations named will be privileged to attend. It is understood that a good response has been received from the call to Washington sent out by the reunion committee.

Among those who are serving on this committee are Edgar Rickard, a close personal and business associate of President-elect Hoover, who worked with him in the United States Food Administration and other organizations; Miss Gertrude Lane, editor of the Woman's Home Companion; Miss Edith Guerrier and R. H. Sawtelle, who is serving as treasurer of the reunion committee.

Attorney Hermann summed up for the prosecution.

"If they wanted a lock of Rehmeyer's hair," he said, "why didn't they take it while they had him down but while he was still living? Robbery unquestionably was the motive. If you believe that it is warranted, bring in a verdict which will carry the death penalty."

Hermann completed his address at 4:55 p. m., and the judge summed up.

Judge Sherwood, concluding his address at 5:36 p. m. said he would be ready at any time after 7:30 to receive a possible verdict by the jury. The jurors were ushered from the courtroom to begin their deliberations.

The trial, in which the slim, pinch-faced Blymyer is accused of the murder of the giant, black-bearded, dabbler in magic, Rehmeyer, was hurried to the jury amid an atmosphere heavy with pathos and yet tinged with humor.

Blymyer Tells of Beliefs.

Blymyer himself was the main witness of the day. He told a remarkable story of his belief in witchery, how he thought it right to kill any one who might have him under a "witches' spell," of seeing the picture of Nelson Rehmeyer etched in the palm of his hand, of communion with goblins he had seen, racing up the walls of his room.

Then, when his testimony was concluded, his attorney, Herbert Cohen, made a brief plea for his client, logical but unemotional, and Amos W. Herrmann, district attorney in an address remarkably free from rancor, summed up for the Commonwealth.

Cohen asked acquittal upon the grounds of insanity. Herrmann asked conviction but urged the jury to weigh well its verdict and "return a finding carrying with it th death penalty only if you are firmly convinced that such a finding will alone constitute justice."

Then Judge Ray P. Sherwood delivered instructions longer than the arguments of either of the lawyers, and the jury retired to deliberate upon a verdict.

Mrs. Blymyer Collapses.

While the day's proceedings whirled to rapid conclusion under the urging of Judge Sherwood, who refused to permit a moment's delay, outside the courtroom there was tragedy. Pitiful old Babula Blymyer, mother of the defendant, collapsed, and was unconscious for nearly an hour. Starvation, strain and fear had broken her down.

Misfortune had been heavy upon her. John, she had previously explained, was under a witch's spell. Her horse, Ben, was sick, and she and her family could come to court only through the kindness of a neighbor, who lent his mare, Marie, to draw the Blymyer buckboard. Then she had her lawyers read the doctors tell of her son's delusions and stamp her 32-year-old boy as a child of 8 in mentality.

Even at the moment she collapsed, scrawny, dazed old Emanuel Blymyer, the husband to whom she bore John as their first born, was trying to say his bit to save their lad from punishment.

But he could say little. He thought John was bewitched. He knew that John's sister had been "sick in the head" and had died. He had taken John to powwow doctors and had him powwowed. But Emanuel knew little to say.

Family Is Tragic.

The Blymyer family, father, mother, John, two daughters and another son, are a tragedy in themselves. They have little to eat. Their clothes are shabby. Nothing ever happened, excepting a little bewitching now and then, to vary the monotony of their lives, until John got into trouble.

Then it was all tragedy. Together they remind one of the old wood cuts of poverty-stricken peasants, the historians and geographies used to tell school children could be found only in the far away countries.

Right on the heels of the Blymyer family came the Hess family. It was the Hess farm and family which was supposed to have been under Nelson Rehmeyer's spell, causing chickens to die, hens to cease laying, neighbors and relatives to make trouble, and cows to quit giving milk. A lock of hair from Rehmeyer's head buried 8 feet under ground back of the Hess henhouse was to raise the spell.

First came Milton Hess, the father. He was a tall, slender man—all of these people are slim—with black hair, black, heavy eyebrows, but the sensitive face of a dreamer. He was well-dressed, and after the Blymyers appeared prosperous.

Believed Place Bewitched.

It was just a bit surprising to note the candor with which he explained that he believed his place bewitched and to hear of his confidence that John Blymyer, who was a practicing witch doctor, could raise the spell and restore peace, happiness and prosperity to the Hess farm and fireside.

Then came Mrs. Hess, the mother. She was a matronly looking woman. Her face was flushed. She was comparatively well dressed. John Blymyer had told her, she said, that Nelson Rehmeyer had cast a spell over her, her family and the farm. A lock of hair from Rehmeyer's head was all that could end the trouble.

"So I told the boys," she said, "that if that was the only way to get rid of our troubles then go ahead and do it."

She seemed to think nothing peculiar pertained to a belief in evil spirits so strong that she had sent her boys out into the night to bring back a lock of the black hair which curled in the back of Rehmeyer's neck.

John Blymyer Called.

Mrs. Hess wept bitterly, sobbing out her words at times in great gasps. But, when her testimony was over, she resumed her seat directly behind the widow of the slain man. Just a little later, when one of the Hess grandchildren became restless, the widow Rehmyer was seen to turn and smile at it. And another moment later, she herself was weeping as some witness described for the sixth or eighth time details of her husband's death.

Afternoon came and with it the personal testimony of John Blymyer. He spoke with some animation, and with emphasis at times, but never once did the slightest sign come into his face that he realized he was engaged in anything more than an academic discussion of a perfectly common occurrence. Dressed neatly in gray, his hair brushed back, he was entirely at ease. He illustrated what he had to say from time to time with gestures which were the little, mincing gestures of a shy girl, rather than open-handed gestures of a man of 32.

His confidence in witches was amazing. He had been powwowed many times. He knew lots about goblins and the like. One could fairly hear the swish of broomsticks and the shrill of their aerie riders as he talked.

He had become sick. He could not sleep. He lost weight. So he consulted one witch doctor after another.

Families Join Causes.

Finally, Mrs. Noll, a famous practitioner of black arts, an old woman who looks the part, had him put a dollar bill in the palm of his hand. She removed it, and there in his hand was a picture of Nelson Rehmeyer. He knew, of course, right then, that Nelson Rehmeyer was bewitching him.

So, he said, Mrs. Noll told him to get a lock of Nelson Rehmeyer's hair and bury it 8 feet in the ground. Then the Hess family told him of their predicament and Mrs. Noll told him that Rehmeyer had bewitched the Hess family, too. They joined causes, for a consideration of $10 paid by Mrs. Hess to Blymyer.

Then came the attack on Rehmeyer. It was first planned for Monday of Thanksgiving week. He and John Curry went that night to the Rehmeyer home and passed the night there but big, black Nelson Rehmeyer looked too strong and they did nothing. The next night they returned with Wilbert Hess to help them. Blymyer and Curry leaped on Rehmeyer as he was laying wood on the hearth to brighten up the fire. There was a terrific struggle. Fists, clubs and chairs flew.

Lock Is No Longer Needed.

"I pounded him many times with my fists" said Blymyer, "but when I swung a chair at him I missed."

Finally Rehmyer went down for the last time. He was dead.

"We didn't take a lock of hair because he was dead and he would be buried with his head 8 feet deep so it wasn't necessary," said Blymyer, without indicating there was the slightest thing strange about what he said.

They searched the house for a copy of that much revered text book of black art, "The Long Lost Friend." But not finding it and finding a little money, they took the money and left.

Blymyer told of having seen witches and the like many times in his career. His faith in them was not to be questioned. He quickly told the court that if he thought the judge bewitched him it would be perfectly right for him to kill the judge or to kill anyone, even his father, in like circumstances.

"How does it feel to be bewitched?" he was asked.

"Why you lose weight, cannot eat or sleep and are nervous," he said. "You are dying."

"When Rehmeyer's head was buried 8 feet deep did you feel better?"

"Oh, yes," he responded, almost eagerly. "Much better. I can eat and sleep and I'm feeling fine. The spell is gone now, and I can't be bewitched again. Mrs. Noll told me that when a man is once bewitched and the spell lifted he can never be bewitched again."

GIRL, BLIND BY DRINK, SECRET SERVICE AID

BROKE SMUGGLING RING

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Thelma Sanford, who became blind following an alleged drinking party Sunday, was revealed by police today as Thelma McDaniels, who with her sister Marguerite, aided United States Customs agents in Arizona and New Mexico, where they investigated alleged illicit liquor traffic.

The revelation of the true identity of the pretty 19-year-old woman came when detectives of the homicide squad visited Juanita McDaniels, sister of Thelma, whose presence here was unknown to police. She admitted her identity and said that she was working under J. B. Morgan, chief of customs at El Paso, Texas and that her sister had accompanied her here.

The McDaniels girls were instrumental in breaking up an alleged smuggling ring which was operating across the Mexican boundary by plane, it was learned. In the trials which followed the arrests in that case, several men were sentenced to Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, from Phoenix, Ariz.

With the aditional information, the detectives have redoubled their search for the three men who, Thelma Sanford says, gave her the alleged liquor which blinded her.

CANADA RUM EXPORT TO U. S. IS HELD EVIL

SESSIONS TO END TODAY

Ottawa, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A joint committee appointed by the International Antismuggling Conference issued a statement today saying that importation of liquor to the United States from Canada was increasing and that the increase was having an important psychological effect on inhabitants of the States.

The psychological importance of the increase was seen by the committee in the fact that the amount of liquor being imported to the United States might lead the public of that country to believe that authentic Canadian liquor supplies were available.

U. S. Plan Suggested.

The American delegation to the conference today suggested Canadian refusal to clear liquor-laden ships to the United States as a means of stemming the increasing flow of contraband, and the Canadian delegation replied by asking whether it would not be feasible for the United States to control the movement of boats engaged in liquor traffic.

In his opening statement at the conferene yesterday Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, head of the United States Coast Guard, brought up the question of refusal of clearance, but the answering Canadian statement asserted that such restriction would tend to drive the export of liquor under cover and diffuse it over wider border areas.

The conference adjourned after a brief session until tomorrow, when it is expected the meeting will be concluded. The conference is being held to discuss ways and means of preventing smuggling of all kinds between the two countries and is for exchange of opinions and viewpoints, having no power to take action for the governments concerned.

Canadian Decision Denied.

The conference today issued a denial of a report appearing in a morning paper that the Dominion would not accede to the request of the American delegation for refusal of clearance to liquor cargoes for the United States. The statement read:

"The statement in a morning paper that intimation had been given by the Canadian delegations to the conference that the Dominion would not accede to the request of the United States that Canada should prohibit the issuance of clearance papers to liquor-laden vessels bound for the United States is without foundation.

"It was made clear at the beginning of the discussion that the Canadian delegates had no authority to speak for the government. They have not formulated any report or recommendation and any discussion which has hitherto taken place has been for the sole purpose of obtaining an exchange of opinion as to how any change in existing arrangements would operate."

SLEW TWO FOR AUTO, GRINNING MAN SAYS

Farm Hand Says He Killed Man and Wife for Car to Impress Girl.

MURDER TO BE CHARGED

Canton, Ohio, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A 25-year-old farm hand, Edward Kaltenbaugh, of Grove City, Pa., was held in the county jail here tonight as the confessed slayer of his employer and his wife because of a sudden impulse to possess an automobile and impress his sweetheart.

Kaltenbaugh, arrested at his home near Grove City late nast night and brought here early today, signed a confession to the killings last Saturday night of John Oser, 32, well-to-do Canal Fulton dairyman, and his wife, Bertha, 28.

Grinning broadly, the farm hand told authorities how, driven on by a sudden desire to own the Oser's big green sedan, he sent a bullet through his employer's head, killed Mrs. Oser because "she might tell," rifled Oser's pockets of $20 and drove away in the automobile to Newcastle, Pa., where his girl friend lived.

Says He Wanted Auto.

Kaltenbaugh explained that the desire which led to the double killing came over him "all of a sudden." He said he "wanted the automobile, so I shot Johnny. Then Mrs. Oser came out of the house and I shot her, too. It was too bad. I suppose I will get the electric chair."

Kaltenbaugh said he fired through the window of the milk shed at his employer, whom he had described as a "fine man to work for". Then he started to the house, and shot Mrs. Oser as she came running out, alarmed by the previous shot. He carried Mrs. Oser to a rock pile near the garage and beat her about the head, he said.

Kaltenbaugh's arrest resulted from a chance remark made by Oser a day or two before his death to a neighbor, L. C. Lawrence, that he feared he was going to lose Eddie because he had a girl in Newcastle.

Arrested at Mother's Home.

Grove City, Pa., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Edward Kaltenbaugh, 21-year-old farm hand, who has confessed slaying Mr. and Mrs. John Oser at Canal Fulton, Ohio, is a son of Mrs. Sarah Kaltenbaugh, a widow who resides on a small farm near London, Mercer County, six miles from here. It was at his mother's home that Kaltenbaugh was arrested at midnight last night.

The youth, one of twelve children, was sentenced to Morganza Reformatory two years ago when he was convicted of taking a draft for about $900 from a rural mailbox, forging the name of the payee and cashing it at the Grove City State Bank.

CONFERENCE ON FLU OPENS HERE TODAY

EPIDEMIC IS ALARMING

(United Press.)

Noted scientists and health commissioners from all sections of the country will gather here today in an effort to track the mysterious and deadly influenza germ to its lair.

The meeting, called by the United States Public Health Service, comes at a time when the influenza epidemic has gained new strength in the South and East and reports of new cases and deaths continue to mount.

The task before the scientists, bacteriologists and doctors is difficult. Public health officials frankly admit they know little or nothing of the influenza germ, its inception, its mode of transmission or its period of communicability.

They are not even certain if the present epidemic is caused by the same germ as caused widespread death in 1918 and are not sure they would know an influenza germ if they saw one.

Plan to Begin Research Work.

The meeting today will give the Public Health Service an opportunity to collect information from some of the best disease germ experts in the country, study the data and make plans to continue research under a $25,000 appropriation, provided for that purpose from Treasury Department funds.

"We are absolutely helpless in the face of an influenza epidemic," an Assistant Surgeon General told the United Press. "It starts on one coast and spreads to the other. We know it will spread and can do nothing to stop it.

"Scientists can recognize turberculosis germs under a microscope but I doubt if any of them can tell an influenza germ.

"In fact our deductions as to the source of infection and its mode of transmission are mostly guess work. We do not know how long the germs remain virulent. We know of no means of prevention outside of ordinary rules of health. We know of no vaccine which will control the disease.

Isolation Only Real Cure.

"The only way we could control the disease at the present time would be to completely isolate every community where influenza is known to exist. That, of course, is impossible."

From the learned men who will gather here, the Public Health Service hopes to find the basis for start on the research work. That is the sole purpose of the meeting.

Included among those who have signified their intention to attend are Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Laboratory; Dr. Edwin O. Jordan, professor of bacteriology of Chicago University; Dr. M. J. Rosenau, professor of preventative medicine of Harvard; Dr. Haven Emerson, of Columbia, and Dr. E. S. Rosenow, of the Mayo Foundation Institute.

In addition, there will be health commissioners from many of the larger cities, and State health officers.

Epidemic Becomes Serious.

At first regarded as mild, the influenza epidemic has reached serious proportions, the Public Health Service admitted.

Last week the disease appeared to be receding, but reports reaching here from 44 out of 48 States indicates a gain of at least 150,000 cases for the week ended January 5. A comparison of influenza deaths in 66 cities shows a 26 per cent gain in one week, with a proportionate increase in pneumonia deaths.

The total number of new cases reported was 195,883, but public health officers regard this as only one-fifth of the actual number. Virtually all Southern States showed decided increases with reports indicating the spread had reached New England.

Missouri also showed a heavy gain with 21,900 cases reported, as compared to 1,700 the week before. Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi reported approximately 19,000 new cases each. Georgia had 11,700 new cases and South Carolina, 9,500.

PARK VIEW SCHOOL PLAN IS APPROVED

EXPRESS CHARGES HIT

Architect's plans for an addition to the Park View School, Warder and Otis street northwest, were declared approved by the Park View Citizens Association by Fred S. Walker, president, at a meeting in the school building last night.

The proposed structure is estimated by the architect to cost $300,000, and is expected to provide sufficient quarters for resumption of full-time attendance by the school's thousand pupils.

Nineteen members voted for approval, seven voting against immediate adoption of the plans. The vote was protested because of lack of a quorum, only 30 being present. Walker declared the plans approved nevertheless.

The plans have now been approved by the supervising principal of the school district, the Park View principal and the association, Walker stated. It is hoped to secure an appropriation from Congress before it adjourns.

Second Plan Submitted.

The proposed addition would be two buildings of three stories each, to be erected on the present sites of inadequate temporary buildings and to be connected to the main building by corridors.

The additional 36,000 square feet of floor space thus provided would include rooms for teachers, kindergarten, dramatics, a library, special classes and home rooms.

This project is the second plan prepared by architects for the association's consideration. The first was rejected because it would have involved the closing and building over of Otis street.

H. A. Chapman, president of the Fire Fighters Association; Howard M. Starling, public safety director of the American Automobile Association, and Wallis Hatch, of the Community Chest, addressed the meeting.

Express System Criticized.

A protest against the practice of express companies in the District of delivering packages in their area through delivery firms with an extra charge was vigorously protested last night by the American University Park Citizens Association meeting in Hurst Hall on American University campus.

The association also adopted a resolution requesting the zoning commission to restrict that part of Massachusetts avenue between Nebraska and Western avenues to eliminate apartment houses, duplex and triplex houses.

T. V. Thompson, secretary of the Boys Club, spoke to the association in behalf of the Community Chest, after which the organization went on record as offering to give all support possible to the chest in its efforts.

POLICE MAY AVENGE DEATH OF GANGSTER

NEW GRAND JURY CALLED

Chicago, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Pasqualino Lolordo, shot down in his home last night as he raised a wine glass to drink with three men companions, may have a distinction unique among members of the Unione Siciliano, who rise to power only to die by assassins' bullets—he may be avenged by the police. The police, usually met by a wall of silence, tonight had the name of one man whose arrest, they asserted, would clear up not only Lolordo's death, but many others. The suspect sought was Joseph Aiello, who, with six brothers, leads an opposing faction in the Italian colony.

Lolordo was reputed to have succeeded to the leadership in the Unione Siciliano once held by Tony Lombardo, shot down several months ago as he walked through the downtown district. With him as a bodyguard when he was slain was Lolordo's brother.

Lolordo was said to have had the support of "Scarface Al" Capone, powerful gangster and Italian leader here and bitter enemy of the Aiellos for control of the North Side liquor business.

Slaying Follows Gang Rules

John Stege, deputy commissioner of police, said that Lolordo's death followed in the natural course of events. Pete Rizzito, backed by the Aiellos as Lombardo's successor, was killed last October. So, he argued, it was natural for the man who opposed him to meet death next.

The Aiello brothers were reported to have left the city in fear of their lives after Lombardo was killed, but have since returned, however, the police said.

An effort also was being made to link Lolordo's assassination with the virtual destruction at Michigan City, Ind., today of the summer home of John F. Tyrrell, former assistant corporation counsel. Tyrrell, the police said, had handled some legal matters for Capone. At Tyrrell's office it was said the damage was caused by the explosion of a kerosene stove.

The seventh special grand jury since last June was sworn in today to inquire into the reputed alliance between Chicago politics and crime, and also to investigate charges of pay-roll padding by the sanitary district and city and county departments, racketeering and public office grafting.

Banker Heads Grand Jury.

T. R. Thosen, vice president of the National Bank of the Republic, was chosen foreman. The new grand jury is expected to take up matters uncovered by six special grand juries that investigated irregularities in connection with last April's primary. These impaneled to inquire into the election only, were restrained by law from taking up other matters.

Chief Justice John J. Sullivan, of the criminal court, in charging the new jury, said that it had been charged that the police had permitted open violations of the law without attempts to suppress such violations; that there had been connivance between law enforcement agencies and organized crime; that the city, county and State have been defrauded by the padding of pay rolls, and that sums of money have been misappropriated, stolen and embezzled from public funds.

The new grand jury is expected to hold its first meeting next week.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Fire following an explosion early today destroyed the summer home near here of John F. Tyrrell, a Chicago attorney. Officials expressed the belief that the residence had been bombed.

Board Falls off Roof, Injuring Man.

Bernard Leaham, 32 years old, of Arlington, Va., was seriously injured yesterday when he was struck on the head by a piece of board that fell from the roof of the Bryant School, B street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets southeast, where he was working. Leaham was removed to Casualty Hospital and treated for a possible fracture of the skull.

COUP BY GEN. BOOTH BLOCKS HIS DEPOSAL

General Said to Have Placed Salvation Army Under Council He Names.

MAY ORDER NEW INQUIRY

London, (Thursday) Jan. 10 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail today says it understands that Gen. Bramwell Booth has placed the administration of the Salvation Army in the hands of a council.

The newspaper says that the commander in chief forestalled a plan to depose him by his surprise announcement that Chief of Staff E. J. Higgins would be president of the council, with the general's sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, and his daughter, Commissioner Catherine Booth, and two other prominent commissioners as members.

This council is appointed pending the return to health of the general which in any case will require some months.

To Name Inquiry Body.

The Mail also understands that Gen. Booth proposes to appoint a commission to inquire whether any change in the army is desirable and if so to what extent. It is indicated that its information was the substance of a letter which the communique last night reported was received by the high council from the commander in chief.

The communique said simply: "A letter from Gen. Booth, addressed to the council, was read and the question of sending a deputation to see the general was under discussion when the council adjourned for the day."

The same air of strict secrecy surrounded the doings yesterday at the training school here, but a touch of humor was added by the birth of a baby to the wife of a Salvation Army chauffeur within the closely guarded precincts. The high council sent congratulations to the proud father, who had seen war service with his ambulance.

Phone Messages Mystify.

Much curiosity was excited by the mysterious goings and comings of prominent members of the Booth family between the council chamber and a secluded villa in the neighborhood. From the villa telephone communication with Gen. Bramwell Booth at Southwold was maintained. A closed red automobile made seven such journeys in as many hours, carrying always a uniformed secretary and Commissioner Catherine Booth, with piles of legal documents.

It is understood that a test of strength between the rival factions has shown a great preponderance on the side of the reformists, who are said to have elected Commissioner Hay, of New Zealand, as president, with 53 votes as against ten marshaled by the supporters of the general. This, however, was a preliminary alignment before anything had been heard from the advocates of the general's party, which may alter the distribution of votes.

Fitness Raised at Once.

The question of the fitness of Gen. Bramwell Booth to continue to direct the army arose almost immediately in yesterday's discussions. Commander Evangeline Booth and the reformists are greatly pleased at the turn of affairs so far and appear confident of having similar strength when the big issues are reached.

Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her daughter Catherine both addressed the council, and Commander Evangeline Booth, who heads the army in the United States, made three speeches. Although other speeches are scheduled for today, it is not impossible that a vote will be reached during the day on the important matters under discussion.

Second Dry Offence Conviction Is Returned

A verdict of guilty of a second offense of possessing liquor was returned by a jury in Police Court yesterday against Morris Rosenberg for the second time within a year. Rosenberg appealed from the first second-offense conviction, which is still pending in the District Court of Apepals, and the prosecution could not charge him with a third offense until the appeal had been decided. Rosenberg was arrested in a raid on 1104 Eighth street southeast in October.

At his first trial, Rosenberg had no mustache but when he appeared in court on the second charge, Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart questioned him as to why he had grown the facial adornment.

"I've had it all my life. I was born with this mustache," Rosenberg replied.

Life Buoy Is Believed From Amundsen Wreck

Oslo, Norway, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A life buoy marked "Latham, Paris" was washed ashore today on the Western side of North Cape in the Province of Finmarken.

Roald Amundsen and five companions last June 8 began a flight in a French Latham plane to Spitzbergen from where they were to search for the missing members of the General Nobile expedition. The last report of the plane was received by a radio station at 7 o'clock that night. Near the end of August, and at intervals since, pieces of wreckage have been picked up at sea off the coast of Norway. One of these was identified positively by its marking as having been a pontoon or float on the Amundsen plane.

Refuel Plane Crew Expected Next Week

Reception Certain, Whether Official or Impromptu, for Army Heroes.

An enthusiastic reception, either spontaneous or officially planned, is expected to greet the heroic crew of the record-breaking Fokker monoplane Question Mark when it arrives back in Washington either Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Although the War Department has announced no definite plans for an official greeting to the fliers and their ship, it was generally felt here that their arrival would be the occasion of a gathering of distinguished Federal aeronautical officials. Advices from Los Angeles yesterday indicated that the ship, with its entire record flight crew, possibly excepting Lieut. Harry Halverson, would leave the West Coast city Friday morning at 11 o'clock, stopping at Tuscon, Ariz.; Midland, Tex.; Shreveport, La., and Montgomery, Ala., en route, arriving here Tuesday or Wednesday.

War Department officials here said that word had been received yesterday indicating that the plane and its motors had suffered no serious injury in the record flight and that a thorough overhauling would make them again seaworthy. The crew which will fly it back is expected to include Maj. Carl Spatz, Capt. Ira Eaker, Lieut. Elwood Quesada and Sergt. Roy Hooe.

Murder Suspect Asked To Identify Man Slain

Ottawa, Ontario, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The unusual procedure of calling on a prisoner, charged with murder, to identify the body of his victim, was invoked by the Ottawa authorities today at the inquest into the death of Pietero Parrotta, shot to death last night by Bruno Massina, his brother-in-law.

After the jury had been sworn in it was found that there was no one to identify the dead man. As a final resort Massina was summoned and, shackled to two detectives, he formally indentified the body as that of Parrotta, whom he has admitted slaying. The inquest was then adjourned until January 17.

Detention House Site Is Selected

Woman's Bureau Also to Be in Downtown Structure; Location Secret.

The new home of the House of Detention and the woman's bureau of the police department, was tentatively selected yest rday by the special committee appointed by the commissioners, of which Maj. D. A. Davison, assistant engineer commissioner, is chairman.

There was no announcement of the location Davison saying that he could have no comment until such time as the Commissioners had approved and the lease had been signed.

The house is said to be a new building, containing an elevator, and in a neighborhood which is largely commercial, and not likely to bring forth any strenuous objections from either residents or business houses nearby.

The structure is said to be within a short distance of the police court, but the committee members refused to give any details. Final arrangements are expected to be completed this morning when the committee submits the proposal to the District Commissioners.

Four Influenza Deaths Make Capital Total 15

Four deaths attributed to influenza were reported to the District Health Department yesterday, bringing the total since January 1 to 15.

There were 85 additional cases of the disease reported to the health department yesterday, making a total reported since January 1 of 851 cases.

Welder Badly Burned As Torch Explodes

Burgess was using the torch to repair a cylinder head when the gas in the torch failed to flow properly and caused the explosion. He was removed to Georgetown University Hospital and treated by Dr. Edward Greco for lacerations to the hands and arms. His condition is not serious.

Byrd, in Antarctic, Honors Dead Fliers

Newly Discovered Places Are Named for Bennett and Rodgers.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A radio message from the Byrd South Polar expedition, copyrighted by the New York Times and St. Louis Post Dispatch, announces that Commander Byrd has named the harbor he recently discovered in the Bay of Whales in honor of Floyd Bennett, and the cape at the entrance to the harbor in honor of Commander John Rodgers.

Floyd Bennett, who died of pneumonia last spring while on his way to the relief of the Bremen fliers on Greenley Island, would have been Byrd's chief pilot on the present expedition had he lived. He flew with Byrd to the North Pole in 1926, and only a broken leg kept him from accompanying the commander on his transatlantic flight. He broke his leg when the plane America fell during a test flight, April 16, 1927. Bennett's body rests in Arlington Cemetery at Washington, where he was given a hero's burial. He was awarded the congressional medal of honor shortly before his death.

Commander John Rodgers was in command of the PN-9, the Navy flying boat which was forced down while attempting to fly from the California mainland to Hawaii in 1925. After drifting for several days in the disabled seaplane, Commander Rodgers and his crew were rescued and taken to Honolulu in triumph. He was fatally injured when a plane he was piloting fell in the Delaware River, September 27, 1926.

Banks and Clothing Thieves' Loot.

Two savings banks containing $17.50 and clothing valued at approximately $223 were stolen easily yesterday morning from the home of Louis Nelovich, 4604 Iowa avenue northwest, he reported to police. The thief gained entrance by breaking a glass in the kitchen window. Two men's suits and two dresses were among the loot.

Electric Eye That "Sees" And Directs Traffic Shown

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—An electrical eye that "sees" traffic needs and automatically controls signals to meet the actual necessities of traffic flow was demonstrated before the meeting of the New York Electrical Society tonight.

The eye is the keystone of a new system which would give motorists on a major street the green or "go" signal continuously until a car on the side came within a short distance of the intersection. Then the lights would go on a prearranged or set program of operation, flashing green and red at set periods. After the cross street traffic had passed, the lights would return to green on the main street and stay that way until another car appeared on the side avenue.

The electric eye is placed in a "mushroom" covering in the street, with white lines marking its position, and comes into action when a car or other vehicle passes over it, casting a shadow on the eye. Only when a vehicle actually passes over the "eye" will it function. A beam of light directed from an overhead lamp assures a sufficiently dense shadow, and tests have proven that only the deep shadow such as is cast by a vehicle directly over the eye will put it in operation.

If the apparatus should go wrong for any reason the traffic lights would revert to a set program.

Dr. Thomas believes his invention would speed up traffic, especially at night, when cars on a main artery of travel are held up for a definite period, even though there be no cars using the cross street.

CORRUPTION STORY STIRS STATE SENATE

Oklahoma Legislators Ask an Investigation to Clear Members' Record.

GOVERNOR JOINS IN MOVE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 9 (A.P.). A resolution providing for an investigation of rumors and newspaper charges of corruption in connection with the sudden dispersal of State senate members in the attempted impeachment session of the Oklahoma Legislature was introduced in the senate late today by W. J. Otjen, of Enid, Republican floor leader.

The resolution alleged that charges had been made verbally and by a newspaper "that money had been given senators, that promises of pardons and appointments were made to senators and that contracts were offered to them in order to procure adjournment of the attempted impeachment session. It alleged that these charges had affected the credit and integrity of the senators and asked that a thorough investigation be made and that the committee report its findings to the senate.

The senate members dismissed purported impeachment charges voted against Gov. Henry S. Johnston, Harry B. Cordell, president of the State Board of Agriculture, and Fred P. Branson, Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, accepting the supreme court's ruling that the house of representatives had no right to convene itself.

Appearing before a predominantly hostile joint session of the legislature, Gov. Johnston today invited a thorough investigation of all departments of his administration and punishment for any officials found guilty of misconduct.

The challenge was thrown after lines already had been drawn in the house for such an inquiry, with foes of the executive in control of the investigating machinery.

Gov. Johnston's invitation for the investigation was contained in his regular biennial message to the lawmakers delivered after he had successfully withstood for more than a year efforts by antiadministration forces to bring about his impeachment.

There was only scattered applause as the governor entered the house chamber. His message was received in silence. Mrs. Johnston and his confidential secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, who has been the center of strife within the Democratic party that has prevailed since Johnston, a Democrat, took office two years ago, were among the spectators. Former Gov. Jack Walton also was present.

Gov. Johnston pleaded for "fairness and justice" warning against an investigation tending to "serve personal purposes of malicious individuals and to cause what should be a judicial inquiry to degenerate into a low type of persecution and muckraking."

Japanese Land Riots Bring 40 Casualties

Osaka, Japan, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Forty casualties occurred in conflicts between disgruntled peasants and police at the village of Namoru yesterday. Considerable damage was done to property.

The peasants had organized a demonstration against a government riparian project which they feared would flood their rice fields. More than 2,000 of them marched on the village and the 300 local police were not able to cope with the situation.

Troops have been dispatched and the tension had lessened. The crowds have not dispersed.

TWO STILL IN HOSPITAL

Norwood Estes, 17-year-old Ballston, Va. youth said to have driven the automobile which Tuesday night struck down two women and a man in Clarendon, Va., was remanded to jail yesterday on a technical charge of manslaughter after a hearing before Judge Harry R. Thomas.

Estes will appear in court today charged in a warrant issued by Commonwealth Attorney William C. Gloth with "unlawfully and feloniously, while driving an automobile in reckless manner on a public highway in Arlington County," striking down and killing Mrs. Frances Bowbeer.

Mrs. Bowbeer, 17 years old, of Clarendon, was accompanied by Miss Pauline Newland and James Searle, both of Clarendon, and all were struck as they alighted from a motor bus at Wilson boulevard and Milton avenue, in Clarendon.

Reports from Georgetown Hospital yesterday were that Miss Newland was in a serious condition and that James Searle was "improving."

BIG NAVY DIRIGIBLE REPORTED OVERDUE

NEAR END OF LONG FLIGHT

Pensacola, Fla., Thursday, Jan. 10 (A.P.).—At 12:45 o'clock Eastern time, this morning, the Los Angeles was reported from the tender Patoka to be 45 minutes overdue on her flight from Lakehurst, and no sign of the ship had been seen at that hour, according to reports from Port St. Joseph Bay, where the Patoka is anchored.

Some worry was felt on the tender on account of increasing south by southeast winds and cloudiness.

Should the Los Angeles arrive over the Patoka soon, it was feared by some officers she would be unable to make a mooring to the mast, because of the wind.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Los nAgeles tonight was proceeding to the tender Patoka in St. Josephs Bay off the western coast of Florida, having turned inland across the peninsula in the vicinity of Brunswick, Ga.

A radio message from the Los Angeles to Ensign Gifford Grange, Naval Communications Reserve at Station 4HZ here stated the dirigible would omit Jacksonville on its southward flight and proceed direct to the Patoka.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles passed to the east of Savannah today at 4:50 p. m. bound southward on its 2,000 mile training cruise to Florida. It had been maintaining its schedule all day down the Atlantic Coast line.

At 5:35 o'clock the dirigible passed Sapelo Island, according to word here.

Instead of proceeding direct to Miami as originally planned, however, her commander, Lieut. Comdr. Rosendahl, advised the Navy Department during the day that the great craft probably would go first to St. Joseph Bay, Fla., and moor for the night there to the mast of the tender Patoka.

Visits to Miami and other cities then would be made tomorrow thus allowing more persons an opportunity to see her silvery hull. The dirigible could not have completed the 27-hour voyage to Miami until late tonight.

The craft was seen by scattered thousands during the day as she proceeded leisurely down the coast of the Carolinas. She passed Wrightsville Beach, N. C., around noon, according to schedule, after having reported her position as slightly inland 20 miles below Suffolk, Va., at 8 a. m.

At 2:50 p. m. the Los Angeles passed over Charleston, S. C. and a little more than an hour later sailed over Beaufort, S. C.

Commander Rosendahl had plotted the ship's course during the afternoon over St. Simon's Sound, Ga., and the Weather Bureau reported she would encounter favorable conditions.

ORATORY HOLDS UP PEACE TREATY VOTE

BORAH IS NOT WORRIED

(Associated Press.)

The Kellogg antiwar treaty drifted on the listless waves of oratory yesterday as the Senate found itself unable to reach an agreement on an interpretative resolution on the pact and the foes of the treaty prepared a final drive for such a resolution.

Hopes for an understanding which would pave the way to a vote by today or before the end of the week still were held last night by some leaders, but Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, sponsor of the bill, dug in for a finish fight.

Confident of the votes for ratification of the treaty without reservation or interpretation, Senator Borah is not worrying about a compromise.

However, a group of Senate leaders anxious to get action this session on farm relief as well as on the pending cruiser construction bill, are bending every effort to bring the treaty debate to a close. They are the ones hopeful of an agreement.

Blaine Drives for Interpretation.

Meanwhile, Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, yesterday carried on the drive for an intrepretation of the pact. He put forward his resolution to declare it the sense of the Senate that the note of Great Britain reserving the right to defend her territories should not be considered as a reservation to the treaty.

After a lengthy argument by the Wisconsin senator, Senators Walsh, of Massachusetts, and McKellar, of Tennessee, Democrats, swelled the total of Democratic support for the pact. Walsh indorsed the treaty as "a forward step toward world peace but whether a large step or a tiny step the future will disclose."

Senator Blaine argued that the treaty "commits our Nation to an impossible peace, unworthy of the tradition of America, and forgetful of that which made this republic possible."

"I have no doubt," he said, "but that the senators who are supporting the big Navy program will vote for this treaty. I am not surprised that many of those voting for this treaty justify their support of a big Navy. We may need it. We may be compelled to meet gun for gun, battleship for battleship.

British Control Mentioned.

"When we legalize, as we do by this treaty, British control of one fourth of the world's habitable land, more than one fourth of the total inhabitants of the world, we draw the noose tight about our neck.

"Here is this mighty giant, the British Empire, with vast territory of land, with her dominion over more than one fourth of the people of the world, the territorial integrity of which we acknowledge and legalize, with the trade routes to the Orient and Africa under her control—we now by this treaty deliver into her keeping the ports of two great continents from which she may deny our commerce. Why then, sirs, do you propose to make the contest an uneven one—why handicap America? Why betray America with this pretended covenant for peace? Peace! There is no peace—There can be no peace except an armed peace, so long as governments insist upon maintaining the causes of war."

Senator Walsh decried most of the discussion so far on the treaty as consideration of "ways and means by which war can be waged by the several countries without violating this peace pact and escape its moral consequences."

Warns of Naval Neglect.

He called attention to the armament programs of other nations and warned that this country likewise should be careful not to neglect its naval program.

"I shall vote for this treaty," he said, "not because I am entirely certain that it is a real, genuine movement that will materially advance the ending of war and the promotion of peace of the world, but because if the United States fails to ratify it now in view of their participation in the international negotiations that have brought it into being would be misunderstood.

"It would place the United States, regardless of her sincere and profound desire and purpose to bring about peace in the world, in the position of an obstructionist to such a movement."

Ku Klux Titan Cleared On Charge of Perjury

Providence, R. I., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—John W. Perry, grand titan of the Ku Klux Klan in Rhode Island and Connecticut, was freed tonight by a jury of a charge of perjury. The charge had been brought following testimony he had given last spring before a legislative committee investigating activities of the klan in military commands of the State.

The State contended that the statement that there were no charges pending against him when he resigned from the New London police force was untrue. Perry at his trial in superior court called witnesses to testify that his suspension had been lifted and the charges dropped prior to his resignation.

Kohler's Men Rout La Follette Forces

Wisconsin House Organized by Liberal Republican Followers.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—After ten years of control, the La Follette Progressive wing of the Republican party was routed today from leadership in the Wisconsin State Legislature.

The victors were followers of Gov. Walter J. Kohler, Sheboygan business man, who entered politics ten months ago, and defeated the Progressive gubernatorial candidate on a "Liberal" Republican pitaform in the recent primary election. The fall of the La Follette group came on a test of strength over election of speaker in the State senate. Charles W. Perry, a member of the Kohler faction, won the post after a protracted contest over Alvin Reis, the La Follette candidate.

Flushed with the victoy, the Kohler adherents quickly overrode all opposition and completely organized both houses with members of their group.

Daughter Forgiven, Excluded in Will

Special to The Washington Post.

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The forgiveness which Edwin S. Bayer, millionaire glove manufacturer, extended to his daughter, Sybil, on his deathbed, for her elopement with a $25 per week necktie clerk, did not reach to his pocketbook. In his will, filed today in White Plains, he cut her off without a penny.

When Sybil ran away and got married to the obscure clerk, Vincent Edward Brown, last January, her father, who was president of Julius Kayser & Co., let it be known in no uncertain terms that he was through with her. And he threatened to cane her young and hopeful husband if he caught him hanging around the Bayer town house in Manhattan. That didn't mean starvation for the daughter, because she already inherited something like $3,000,000 from her grandfather, the late Julius Kayser, and the couple set up housekeeping in style. Then, last month, the manufacturer became critically ill and the first member of the family he called for was Sybil. The daughter went dutifully to his bedside and was a constant attendant on him until his death.

After bequests of $20,000 each to two aunts, Clara Cohen and Jennie Bayer, both of New York, and $10,000 to a niece, Helen Louise Cohen, the residue of the estate was left to the widow, Mrs. Laura K. Bayer.

John Coolidge Dons Uniform for Dance

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The social beginnings of the third term of Gov. John H. Trumbull were in the inaugural ball of the first company, Governor's Foot Guards, at its armory tonight, at which Maj. John Coolidge, son of the President, made his first appearance in uniform of a staff officer. The commission which came to him had been signed by Gov. Trumbull immediately after the passage of an amendment to the National Guard law and was delivered to him when he arrived late in the day at the home of Governor and Mrs. Trumbull in Plainville.

Maj. Coolidge was unable to attend the inaugural ceremonies at which were his fiancee, Miss Florence Trumbull, her mother and sister, Jean. He drove up from New Haven and had dinner with the governor's family. Putting on the new uniform—in which other staff officers said he looked "every inch an officer and a mighty good-looking one"—he escorted Miss Trumbull to the ball.

Miss Trumbull was gowned in an imported frock of white georgette trimmed with sequins. The Governor and Mrs. Trumbull, Maj. Hyde, and Maj. Coolidge and Miss Trumbull led the grand march.

McCormack Raps Box For Criticizing Smith

(Associated Press.)

One of the newcomers in the Democratic House membership, Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, yesterday took sharp issue with views recently expressed by one of his party's leaders, Representative Box, of Texas, over ridding the party of the "organization and forces" which nominated Alfred E. Smith.

The Massachusetts member in a letter to the Texan said that he failed to agree with the latter's view and declared it was his opinion that party welfare would be best promoted if "leaders, real or otherwise, would refrain from expresisng any opinion, other than constructive," until a reasonable period after the election.

INCREASE IN TARIFF ON OILS ADVOCATED

Ways and Means Committee of House Hears Farm Representatives.

FLAT RATE IS FAVORED

(Associated Press).

Speeding its tariff revision hearings to wind up work on the first schedule in three days as originally planned, the House ways and means committee yesterday heard from a long list of farm organization representatives a recommendation for a sweeping change in duties on vegetable oils and fats.

Under the proposal, all major oils and fats now bearing varying specific and other rates of duty would be given a flat 45 per cent ad valorem rate, resulting in increases for all of the products.

The farm representatives said that domestic producers of cottonseed, flaxseed, corn, hogs, beef, soya beans, peanuts and milk, fishermen on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts and a large number of independent crushers of oil materials would benefit by the increase.

They contended that the present tariff rates on oils and fats were "illogical, inadequate and ineffective," and that because of price relationship and interchangeability of the products the uniform rate was needed.

The rate would apply to such oils as cottonseed, coconut, peanut, soya bean, olive oil, linseed or flaxseed and fish oils. Cottonseed and coconut oils, which are prime competitors, now bear 3 and 2 cents a pound duties, respectively, except that importation of the latter from the Philippines is duty free.

To Include Island Products.

Because the Philippines have been absorbing much of the export business in oils formerly held by countries against whom duties are levied, the farm representatives advocated applying the full 45 per cent rate on all oils and fats coming from the islands.

They contended that 86 per cent of the imported coconut oils enter the United States duty free from the Philippines, which was sufficient to control prices here, and they believed ample precedents existed for levying a duty against the islands.

Maj. Gen. Frank H. McIntyre, recently retired as chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department declared the interest of the Philippine people in the American tariff primarily was one based on a continuance of the free trade principle embodied in the last two tariff acts, with certain limitations now in force.

Appearing as a representative of the governor general of the islands, Gen McIntyre declared the cocoanut industry was second in importance there and any restriction on it such as the 45 per cent duty proposed by the farm organizations would seriously affect 500,000 families.

Congress Blamed in Exemptions.

Chester H. Gray, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, had contended that Congress had recognized the right to levy tariffs against the Philippines, but had exempted almost every island product from the law.

"Congress did set the status, however," he said, "and it is immaterial whether they made the exceptions or not."

Howard Kellogg, of Buffalo, N. Y., representing Spencer Kellogg & Sons, of the Philippines, stressed the need for continuing the free trade policy with the islands. Tariffs on their cocoanut oil, he said, would catapult business down hill and turn investors away.

F. M. Barnes, Cincinnati, representing the Laundry Soap Manufacturers Association, large users of the cocoanut oil, declared the proposed increase would raise the price of soap 50 per cent, while D. W. Corbin, representing the Laundry Onwers National Association, contended it would raise the laundrymen's soap bill from $30,000,000 to $45,000,000 a year.

Office Boy, Washing Face, Is Shot Dead

New York, Jan. 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Leo Moore, 19, an office boy, was mysteriously shot and killed tonight in a washroom on the fifteenth floor of a loft building at 100 Gold street.

Moore, employed for a year by the J. H. Rossbach Co., leather and hides dealers, on the same floor, went into the washroom a few minutes after 6 o'clock, to wash up preparatory to quitting for the day. At 6:30 o'clock another employe entered the washroom and discovered the body of Moore sprawled on the floor near a sink.

Commissioner Whalen detailed twenty detectives to search the neighborhood for the murderer who, it is believed, silently entered the washroom when Moore was washing his face, aimed the weapon and fired at close range. The bullet drilled through Moore's back.

U. S. to Guard Against Any Rescue of Unger

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Twenty-five deputy U. S. marshalls, narcotic agents and police detectives are to guard Joseph Unger against a possible rescue when he is sentenced tomorrow for ownership and transportation of $2,000,000 worth of narcotics.

Federal authorities said they arranged for the heavy guard after receiving information that a number of underworld characters prominent in the narcotic "racket" had left Chicago for New York. Unger, who pleaded guilty, has refused to reveal his confederates. He faces a maximum penalty of twelve years.

Disappearance of Child, 4, Dec. 27, Leads to Action in Wooster, Ohio.

Wooster, Ohio, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Indictments charging five persons with child stealing in connection with the disappearance of 4-year-old Melvin Horst from his home at Orrville, near here, were voted this afternoon by the Wayne County grand jury.

The five named in the indictments are Elias Arnold, his two sons, Arthur and William; his daughter, Dorothy, and her husband, Jascom McHenry. They will be arraigned tomorrow or Friday. County Prosecutor Marion Graven said.

The five persons are charged with complicity in the disappearance last December 27 of Melvin, who, according to two of his playmates, was last seen near the Arnold home.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Jan. 9.—Jacob Derelowitz, who, at 111, is the oldest of 54 patients at the Hebrew Home for Incurables at Baltimore and Chester streets, early today took a hand at quieting the others when a false fire alarm caused a scare.

The janitor of the synagogue was burning rubbish in the furnace. A back draft sent a puff of flame through the furnace door, and somebody passing by saw it and presumed the place was on fire.

An alarm was sounded and the engines came with their usual warning signals. The patients at the Hebrew home were awakened by the clamor. A score of them wanted to be carried out of the building at once.

It was in helping to calm the excited patients that Derelowitz distinguished himself. He was a soldier once in the Russian army. It takes more than a false fire alarm to throw him off his pins, even if he is more than 100 years old.

He, too, made the rounds of the hospital, giving reassurances.

Flier Falls After Landing Passenger

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., Jan. 9.—A few minutes after landing a passenger here, Sergt. Stewart J. Dietz, of the Maryland National Guard, crashed with his monoplane yesterday at Browns Cove, near Baltimore, and suffered a broken back and fractured skull. Little hope is held for his recovery at Johns Hopkins Hospital. Sergt. Dietz, who is 24 years old, was one of the airmen to blaze a trail across the Chesapeake Bay from Baltimore to Eastern Shore.

He had taken off from the Chestertown Airport and was en route to Logan Field when his machine went into a tail spin at 1,000 feet and crashed on a frozen marsh within 200 feet of the western shore of the bay. Dietz is employed by the Chesapeake Aircraft Company of Baltimore, headed by Maj. William J. Tipton, which is running a regular passenger and freight service to this town.

$125,000 BRIBE PAID KEYES, IT IS CHARGED

JURY IS HARD TO SELECT

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—District Attorney Buron Fitts said in his opening statement at the trial of former District Attorney Asa Keyes and five others on bribery charges here late today, that Jacob Berman would take the witness stand and testify that Ed Rosenberg, one of the codefendants in the Julian Petroleum fiasco, paid Keyes $125,000 for the dismissal of the case against him.

With the preliminary legal skirmishes ended, the battle of the former district attorney and his codefendants for freedom from the bribery and conspiracy charges was on the verge of a long-awaited court trial.

Two days' maneuvering by defense counsel was brought to an end today when the attorneys announced themselves satisfied with the jury of ten women and two men. The State many times before had signified its desire to accept the jurors.

Keyes drew the eyes of an interested throng in superior court today where it saw him for the first time after a public career of 25 years, as defendant in one of the most sensational trials in this county's history. A county grand jury months ago indicted Keyes and seven others on charges of "fixing" trials in Los Angeles county. Berman, a principal of the defunct Julian Corporation, out of which the major charges grew, has promised to turn State's evidence, and the charges against him have been withdrawn. A. I. Lasker, another defendant, will be tried later on completion of a felony case against him.

Together with Keyes were Jack and Ed Rosenberg, Ben and Dave Getzoff and Charles Reimer in court today. Their attorneys had used up many of their challenges before they obtained the jury that satisfied them, and the State had only protested occasionally.

Catholic Council Replies In $25,000 Libel Suit

Answer to the recent $25,000 libel suit instituted by James W. Campbell, local contractor, was made in the District Supreme Court yesterday by the National Catholic Welfare Council. The suit is based on a letter alleged to have been written by an agent of the council to officials of the Navy Yard, declaring Campbell illegally removed 100 tons of sand from the property of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church and took the sand to the yard.

Through Attorneys Hamilton & Hamilton, the council declared that alleged libelous letter was true and expects to prove its contention at the tral of the case. Hinging on the same incident, Campbell also instituted suits for $25,000 damages each against the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, the Rev. Franz Schneeweiss, pastor of the local church, and Alfred J. Wise, a contractor of Upper Marlboro, Md. Answers in the latter suits were filed previously.

MERGER EXPECTED AT THIS SESSION

It was understood that at this conference, Wilson promised that the companies would enter into a merger without a $50,000,000 valuation and promise to let the present fare stand until a new valuation had been made.

The resolution adopted by the subcommittee was offered by Senator Vandenberg, and was approved by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, the chairman; Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, and Senator King (Democrat), of Utah. Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, was not present.

Although he approved the resolution, Blaine announced that at some later date he was going to introduce legislation that would better protect the public in valuation cases.

The resolution adopted by the subcommittee follows:

"Moved, that it be the sense of the subcommittee that the merger contract be written without any fixed valuation; that the factor of valuation be left, without prejudice, to an actual valuation which shall be completed not later than two years; that rates of fare, until a final valuation is made, remain undisturbed, except that the provilege of universal transfers, at least between street railway lines, shall immediately follow a merger, and that a resolution of the committee request the Public Utilities Commission to employ Dr Milo R. Maltbie to supervise the actual valuation.

"Moved, further, that Dr. Maltbie be authoried to represent the subcommittee in conferences with the utilities, in an effort to reduce this action to actual form, and that he also proceed in the same manner with the balance of his recommendations, the result of his efforts to be submitted as soon as possible to the chairman of the subcommittee, for further action of the subcommittee."

Senators Praise Maltbie.

Chairman Capper and the other members of the subcommittee were lavish in their praise of the work done by Maltbie and expressed confidence that the agreement which he finally brings from the traction men will be satisfactory to the public.

The appointment of Maltbie to carry on further negotiations with the traction men and the suggestion that he supervise the revaluation of the traction properties after the merger is expected to satisfy those citizens who have been attacking the Public Utilities Commission for approving the merger plan which now has been rejected by the subcommittee.

Sunlight Held Rare Factor in Cancer

Dr. Bloodgood, Specialist, Sees Danger in Remaining Out of the Sun.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood, nationally known cancer specialist and director of the cancer laboratory at Johns Hopkins, declared today, in replying to a report of the New York Academy of Medicine, that sunlight is rarely a factor in the cause of cancer.

In the annual report of the academy issued yesterday it was stated that too much sunlight is conducive to cancer of the skin. The report warned against excessive sun baths and too frequent use of ray lamps.

"There is vastly more danger from influenza in staying out of the sunlight than there is from cancer with plenty of sunlight," Dr. Bloodgood said. "The ordinary amount of sunlight is practically never a cause of cancer." He added that there was no danger at all in the ordinary case of sunburn which heals quickly.

Murder Farm Trial Jury Is Completed

Northcott Case Will Open Today if Defendant Is Ruled Sane.

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—A jury of twelve men to try Gordon Stewart Northcott for the murder of three young boys was seated late today when the defense gave up its six-day fight to place women in the box.

The defense had used only sixteen of its twenty peremptory challenges when it finally accepted the panel, but apparently was hopelessly cornered by fifteen remaining State challenges. Ten women passed through the box, but the prosecution succeeded in having each of them excused for cause or by peremptory challenge.

After two alternate jurors are selected Thursday morning a report on Northcott's sanity will be made by two physicians who examined him today. If they report that he is insane the jury will be dismissed on the murder trial and an insanity hearing will be substituted. Taking of testimony will be started immediately after the report is made if the physicians hold Northcott sane.

WIFE HELD IN PLOT TO KILL HUSBAND

said he was in a critical condition when taken to a hospital.

The alleged plot was divulged by Cecil Holt, also of Wyandotte, who told Roy Smith, chief of police of Riverview, a suburb that Mrs. Wood had paid a premium on his $125,000 insurance policy in return for his promise to assist in the plot. When the four gunmen went to Wood's office tonight the building was surrounded with armed guards and Wood himself carried a gun.

Police watched two of the gunmen walk up to the construction company offices and creep through heavy shrubbery between it and the street.

When Wood, in accordance with a prearranged plan, was brought to the door by Holt, both men sprang forward with lifted blackjacks.

At that instant Wood and chief of police Clayton Chapman of Wyandotte hidden inside the building fired and simultaneously a dozen officers sprang from hiding places in the shrubbery and opened fire.

A car containing two men, in which, according to Holt, it was planned to carry away Wood's body, drove to the walk leading to the office and exchanged shots with the officers. One of their shots wounded Dunnigan. The man running from the porch leaped to the running board of the car, which speeded away.

The arrest of Mrs. Wood followed immediately. She told police she was suffering from influenza, but Assistant Prosecutor Ward Culver said she was known to have conferred with the four gunmen yesterday on a downtown street and ordered her taken to a city hospital for dentention.

The motive for the strange plot, as related by Holt, revolved around the suit for divorce filed by Wood, property settlements he had offered Mrs. Wood and a $100,000 life insurance policy he carried.

It was learned from Wood he has ordered the divorce suit withdrawn, but that action has not yet been taken. Police said Wood had settled $30,000, two houses and twelve lots on Mrs. Wood pending outcome of the divorce action. She was reported to have demanded more.

POINCARE WILL DEFY RADICALS, IT IS SAID

FINANCE CIRCLES STIRRED

Paris, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Radical party's announcement of a political offensive tomorrow against the Poincare cabinet after the chamber is organized had caused more apprehension today in financial than in political circles.

The bourse has shown considerable hesitation since the attack on the government was announced, but political experts tonight refused to admit there was grave danger for the Poincare government.

Debate in the chamber will open under peculiar conditions, since the Radicals have stated they will attack the Poincare cabinet but will except the premier himself from their criticism. They said today they have only sympathy for the head of the government, but they can not tolerate several of the members of his official family.

In their announcement of opposition, the Radical deputies said they would oppose the inclusion of any minister in the new cabinet who did not belong to the parties of the left. The fact that the party, for the first time in several years, has been deprived of the portfolio of the ministry of the interior, also is one of the chief factors.

Premier Poincare, it is understood, will announce from the tribune that no one can attack his ministers without fighting him personally, and it is generally believed he will get approval from the chamber by a majority of from 30 to 100.

Bolivia Honors Minister Kaufman, on Way Home

La Paz, Bolivia, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—United States Minister David E. Kaufman, who leaves for the United States tomorrow, has been given a series of farewell honors ranging from a state banquet by the president to a serenade by poor and homeless children of the city. News writers elected him an honorary member of their club, and gave him a gold medal. Bolivian newspaper publishers have made him an honorary editor of all their papers.

Mr. Kaufman took up his post in Bolivia last May. During his stay he was generous in his support of Bolivian philanthropies and among other honors was given a degree by the university and the Grand Cross of the Order Condor de Los Andes.

Census Worker Retires After 28-Year Service

Robert A. Pelham, 131 T street northwest, following 37 years service in the government departments, the past 28 years in the Bureau of the Census, announced his retirement yesterday on reaching the age of 70. He will devote his time to government research and newspaper work. For the past 15 years he has been a supervisory clerk in the Census Bureau, one of the documents on the negro bearing his name as coauthor with Charles E. Hall and W. E. Jannifer.

He invented two appliances for use in his place of employment. There also he took an active part in 1923 to save for the Bureau more than 100 salaries above the grade of $1,200, when the House of Representatives passed a bill placing Census office employes back in the status of 1919. Before coming here he was an employe in the office of the Detroit Tribune.

GIRL WHO VANISHED FOUND IN BALTIMORE

any long: I have tried to forget, and even though I know you are right I am afraid it will come out all wrong. And, mother, it would be far worse than it is now. I am very sorry for all the trouble I have caused you, even though I haven't been a good daughter to you. I would gladly give my life to save yours.

"I am young mother. I have caused you too many heartaches already. Tell daddy and Toodles (her brother) goodby for me and I love you all very much. I shall not write Rob (a young man to whom she is engaged) because it will just make things worse but tell him I love him and always have, but I would never be worthy of his love.

"Try and forgive me, and even though I am committing a great crime, I know God will forgive me and take me home to rest. I hope you will all forgive me. Do not worry, I am not worthy of your worry. Good-by, dearest mother. Love always. "DOLLY."

The note addressed to Miss Hewitt read:

Pal Asked to Forgive.

"Dearest Margaret: I am sorry to do this, dear, but there seems no other way out. I cannot stand it any longer. Give my love to Miss O'Connell (one of her teachers) and tell her to try to forgive me. I am very sorry it happened.

"You too, try and forgive me. I love you very, very much; and even though I am committing a very great crime I think God will forgive me and take me home to rest. Some day we shall meet again in another world. Good-by, dearest pal. Good-by. Your old pal,

"DOLLY."

On a previous occasion, Miss Stone is said to have threatened to end her life, but was persuaded from doing so by her chum, Anthony Rickett, motorcycle policeman who investigated the disappearance said. She is believed to have written the notes fearing that she would be dissuaded a second time were she to face Miss Hewitt.

Under Treatment Three Years.

Her illness for which she has been under constant medical treatment for the past three years is believed to have driven her to despair, although she seemed in the best of spirits when she returned home at 6 o'clock from her place of employment.

She left home in company with Miss Hewitt. She had been at the school about an hour when she left, giving the two notes to Miss Wilcox. She is believed to have written them during her class hour.

When the girl's mother received word of what had occurred, she became hysterical. Her condition became worse when she was told that the young girl had written that "God will forgive me and take me home to rest."

Although Miss Stone cast disparagement upon her filial conduct in her note to Mrs. Stone, her parents maintained she was a "perfect daughter," and attributed her statement to melancholy.

Paraguay to Formally Demobilize Army Today

Asuncion, Paraguay, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—It was formally announced today that President Guggiari tomorrow will sign a decree demobilizing the troops who were called to the colors when the dispute with Bolivia became acute.

MILLIONAIRE PLANS DREAM ISLAND HUNT

M. F. Bramley, of Cleveland, Buys MacMillan's Famous Craft for Pacific Search.

LAND IS SEEN BY PLANE

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—M. F. Bramley, millionaire paving contractor and business man, plans a fantastic journey into the southern Pacific in search of a submerged island revealed to him in a dream. He will make the trip in the steam yacht Peary, which he purchased today from Donald B. McMillan, the Arctic explorer.

Bramley revealed his plans simultaneously with announcement of the purchase of the sturdy craft that carried McMillan into frozen waters. The deal was completed here as the explorer is in Cleveland conducting a lecture series. The Peary now is at Boston and Bramley said he expected to embark in two weeks.

It was some time ago, Bramley said, that he dreamed of discovering a submerged island in the Pacific. When he made a recent trip to California, he chartered a boat and started out to search for the dream island. He returned to the coast disappointed, but not discouraged. Next he chartered an airplane and after three hours and fifteen minutes of cruising about, discovered a submerged tract of land under about 20 feet of water. It was surely the dream island, Bramley said.

Then, before leaving California, he investigated the cost of raising the land with the idea, he said, of building himself the most exclusive winter home in the world, nestled way out on the Pacific. His idea was to build a circular breakwater and pump up sand from the bottom of the ocean until the new island rose above the surface.

"It may be impossible," he said. "There are numerous conditions which might prevent the plan being carried out. But I am going to investigate the feasibility of it anyhow."

Mr. Bramley added that he also was making the journey for his health.

U. S. Prison for Insane Urged by Dr. W. A. White

Need of a special prison for insane Federal criminals was emphasized by Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, yesterday before the House prison investigating committee, in which he detailed the pressing needs in caring for the demented.

Dr. White declared that such an institution should be able to accommodate 500 inmates and should be erected in the center of the population. He pointed out that many demented Federal prisoners could be cured if given the proper care. A model jail in the District was urged by George Wilson, head of the Bureau of Public Welfare of the District.

Bank Questions Taxes On Uncollectible Loans

(Associated Press.)

A question of considerable importance to all banks, national and State reached the Supreme Court yesterday in a case from Idaho asking the highest tribunal to determine when banks can escape Federal taxes on worthless and uncollectible loans.

The case was filed by Leslie J. Aker, of Boise, in behalf of the commissioner of finance of that State in charge of settling the affairs of the Citizens State Bank of Buhl, Idaho, while the question of taxation was brought up in connection with the case in a petition signed by Attorney General Stephen, of Idaho, and Charles Evans Hughes.

Veterans' Appeal Asks Clothing for Soldiers

Requests for cast-off clohting are being received by local veterans' organizations from large numbers of former service men stranded in Washington, pending settlement of their claims by the Veterans Bureau, according to a joint appeal issued yesterday by G. W. Phillips, welfare officer of the Disabled American Veterans, and Charles Kohen, acting in a similar capacity for the American Legion.

Clothing of any description will be acceptable, the appeal states. Overcoats, warm socks and shoes particularly are needed. Donations of clothing may be sent to the office of the District Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans, 650 Earle Building.

Bridge Damaged, Window Broken on Mauretania

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—The Cunard Liner Mauretania docked a day late today after the roughest crossing in 33 years' experience of its captain, S. G. S. McNeil.

Windows were broken, lifeboats overturned, and the bridge damaged. Only for seventeen hours was it possible to proceed at full speed and at times the speed had to be reduced to 4 knots.

Grand Duke's Body Is Placed in Crypt

Thousands of Russian Exiles and Dignitaries Honor Former Army Chief.

Cannes, France, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Funeral services for Grand Duke Nicholas were held here today, and his body was temporarily placed in a crypt in the little Russian Church before 200 prominent members of the Russian and European nobility.

At least 5,000 Russian exiles of all walks of life crowded the churchyard and nearby lanes, the size of the church preventing all from entering.

The scene was pathetic beyond the ordinary as the Russian officers appeared in moth-eaten uniforms, and many of the women were poorly garbed, even members of the former Russian royalty showing signs of their privations.

In sharp contrast was the presence of the entire diplomatic corps in full regalia, and headed by Beco Defouquieres, chief of the protocol. Alexandre Millerand, former president of France, and representatives of the world war, Commanders Joffre, Foch and Petain, also were present in full uniform. Paul Painleve, minister of war, and Georges Leygues, minister of the navy, represented the French government.

INDIAN CASE HALTED BY WORK, IS CHARGE

Former Secretary Stopped Barnett Prosecution, Senate Committee Is Told.

WILL BE HEARD TODAY

(United Press.)

Chairman Hubert Work, of the Republican national committee and former Secretary of Interior, was named before the Senate Indian Affairs committee yesterday as the official who stopped prosecutions in connection with the famous Jackson Barnett case, involving former Secretary of Interior Fall and Indian Commissioner Burke.

William D. Mitchell, Solicitor General, testified that Work had telephoned, telegraphed and written the Justice Department, urging that the proposed indictment of Burke be stopped.

Work was ordered to appear before the committee today.

Copies of telegrams passing between Work and the department were presented to the committee. In his messages the former Secretary of Interior charged Charles Selby, special Assistant Attorney General prosecuting the case, with being "unduly influenced."

On June 26, 1928, prior to the presidential campaign, Work wired Attorney General Sargent: "Indictment Indian Commissioner Burke threatened. Please have it stayed. Mrs. Burke critically ill."

Mitchell said Sargent, who was in Ludlow, Vt., called him on the telephone and ordered the case temporarily abandoned.

"The Attorney General took the position the department should go very carefully in seeking the indictment of a public official still in office, with the confidence of his superior," the Solicitor General remarked.

In one letter to Sargent, Work declared Selby had committed an error in judgment in seeking Burke's indictment, and inferred prosecution may have been inspired by failure of James Hepburn to be appointed by Burke as commissioner of the Five Civilized Tribes.

Mitchell said he had been instructed to investigate the case, but that he had been too busy. He said Sargent told him to determine whether Burke should be prosecuted or not.

B. M. Parmenter, special Assistant Attorney General, who started the prosecution, admitted conferring with Senator Pine, Oklahoma Republican, several times and that Pine had advised him on the case.

Burke, in his testimony Tuesday, told the committee he would produce evidence that the prosecution was inspired by Pine to "ruin" him and the Indian Bureau.

Barnett, the principal figure in the investigation, is a millionaire Indian, whose division of property between his young white wife and a missionary society was approved by Secretary Fall and Commissioner Burke.

Later the courts canceled the gifts, amounting to more than $1,000,000.

Attorney General Sargent was reported ill and unable to appear before the committee yesterday.

geries and exonerated the senators alleged to have been concerned.

While this was in progress, there was conveyed to Senator Reed eight photographs of documents which, if they had been genuine, would have demonstrated that Senators Borah and Norris had received large amounts of money from the Soviet government to work for the recognition of Russia.

Senator Reed explained yesterday that he was convinced from the start that the documents were forgeries, but felt it to be his duty to make a thorough and far-reaching inquiry. He decided to proceed quietly and without publicity.

Senator Reed Goes to Europe.

One of the alleged documents purported to be a receipt signed by Dudley Field Malone, now practicing law in Paris, for $100,000 to be paid to "W. Norris." Another pretended to be a receipt of $100,000 from Dudley Field Malone signed by Senator Borah.

After exhausting possibilities of investigation here Senator Reed resumed his probe when he had occasion to visit Europe last summer. Other documents pretending to show transfer of $100,000 from the Soviet government to be turned over to Malone were discovered and the whole fabric of the plot appeared woven together in such shape as to make the pretended documents tempting to a prospective buyer. As in most of these international forgeries there is understood to have been one genuine signature to form the basis of the scheme. Mr. Malone wrote a letter of introduction for a friend who was to visit Russia and the borderland states and apparently this one genuine signature fell into the hands of some agent of the forgery combine which is chiefly operating to sell diplomatic documents designed to discredit the Soviet.

Senator Reed explained yesterday that he succeeded in locating the documents of which he had been given photographs.

Documents Offered for Sale.

"They are in Paris," he said, "and they were offered for sale to us for $50,000 approximately.

"But the man who offered them for sale had to admit that he could furnish no evidence of their genuineness. No bank transactions, no clews. He said if we paid the price we could keep the papers and he'd wash his hands of the whole affair."

"The committee is of the opinion that these papers are the crudest kind of forgeries in so far as they concern the senators," Mr. Reed continued. "The product of these forgers in Paris and in Mexico is being offered steadily to our representatives abroad and to foreign governments."

Pointing out that the Mexican government recently was induced to purchase a lot of forgeries pretending to show hostile purposes of the Government of the United States Senator Reeed added that the committee believed full publicity would be the best way to end this nefarious practice.

Senators Enter Denial.

The committee which investigated the pretended Mexican documents is made up of Senators Reed, Johnson, Robinson of Arkansas, Jones of Washington and Bruce. Senators Borah and Norris appeared before this committee on Tuesday and of their own volition asked to be sworn and to be given opportunity to enter full and unqualified denial.

After Senator Reed had expressed the fullest confidence of the committee in Senators Borah and Norris, and deprecated the charges implied by the pretended documents, Senator Robinson said it was both astonishing and alarming to note that the business of peddling forged documents had reached a point where it might even disturb the peace of nations. Alluding to the fact diplomats were deceived into purchasing such documents, the senator referred to a former employe of the Russian embassy in Paris who was involved in the pretended documents reflecting on Senators Borah and Norris.

During all the discussion, Senators Borah and Norris sat side by side in their accustomed seats. Senators Johnson and Bruce paid tribute to them and added their voices in condemnation of the nefarious practice of forging documents to reflect on public men.

Heflin Enters Objection

There was unanimity of viewpoint until Senator Reed moved the adoption of the committee's report and the discharge of the committee.

Senator Heflin promptly objected for reasons which he proceeded to explain. He was one of the senators mentioned as having received money from the Mexican government in the forged Mexican documents published last year by the Hearst newspapers and he insisted that the committee's report should indict and condemn William Randolph Hearst for having published the forgeries.

Senator Robinson took the position that the committee was called upon to investigate the facts and was not called upon to indict anybody. Senator Reed pressed for the adoption of the report despite Heflin's opposition.

"Are you afraid to attack Mr. Hearst because of his chain of newspapers?" Heflin insisted, while Senator Reed said that to delay adoption of the report and discharge of the committee would imply that the Senate was not satisfied as to the completness of the committee's work in exonerating the two senators. But Heflin remained insistent that condemnation of Hearst be included in the report and Senator Bruce asked that the committee be not discharged until its report had been examined by the senators. Finally Senator Reed agreed to postpone his motion for the discharge of the committee.

SOUTH SEEKS POST IN HOOVER CABINET

C. Bascom Slemp, Mrs. A. T. Hert and Others Have Friends at Work for Them.

Virginia's offering to the Cabinet instead of himself.

If there is a Virginia appointment, however, Mr. Slemp is far the better bet. As to whether he has a real chance, the newspaper observers haunting Mr. Hoover's hotel suite have not been able yet to ascertain just when he is leaving for Florida, much less who he is going to appoint to his cabinet.

When announcement of Mr. Slemp's accession to the Hoover cause was made at a gathering of Hoover diners last spring there was much rejoicing, enough to cause it to be heard all over the hotel.

No one is listed today that might speak a word in favor of Mrs. Hert but it will be surprising if someone does not appear before the day is over. Representatives Thatcher and Mrs. Katherine W. Langley were yesterday's callers in the Kentucky woman's behalf. There is the suggestion that the Kentucky delegation is working the job in relays, that is, having someone see Mr. Hoover every day. The boom is expanding, too, it is understood, Tennessee being reported to have agreed to support it.

This being true, Representative Will Taylor, of that State, and Paul Kreusi, of Chattanooga, one of the most prominent Hoover workers in Tennessee, are expected to appear any day to give their endorsement to Mrs. Hert. With two States behind her against only one for Mr. Slemp she might be said to be a State in the lead as the Southern candidate.

Other Aspirants Expected.

There has long been a strong belief that Mr. Hoover would name one Southerner to his cabinet. Aspirants other than either Mr. Slemp or Mrs. Hert, however, are expected to develop from the newly acquired Republican land before the list is closed.

Mrs. Hert's supporters, incidentally, have lessened their pressure on a particular Cabinet post, that of the Secretary of the Interior. They will accept any one of the ten. With this relaxation on the Interior post, Mr. Schaefer suggested it for Mr. Slemp.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, was up to see Mr. Hoover bright and early. Whereas other members of Congress have been acquainting the President-elect with the situation on the hill, the Iowa senator acquainted him with a real situation that is, not only will the McNary farm bill not be passed at this session, but that it will never be passed with his vote.

The senator has his own farm relief plan, of which he is believed to be the lone supporter.

If the senator lived up to past utterances, he also told Mr. Hoover that Secretary Mellon did not meet with his approval. Inquiries of him as to whether he really did tell Mr. Hoover this, however, only met with a smile.

Kellogg Luncheon Guest.

Secretary of State Kellogg was a luncheon guest. All that could be learned as to what he and Mr. Hoover talked about was that they talked about Mr. Hoover's South American trip and about an hour and a half. Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis called on a War Department matter, as he explained it, that will come up in Mr. Hoover's administration.

A delegation also called and Mr. Hoover spent some time with it, from an organizatoin known as the Better Homes of America, of which he has been president for many years. Now that he has become President of the United States Mr. Hoover is relinquishing his countless other offices and so he relinquished the presidency of the Better Homes movement. Dr. John M. Gries, of Ohio, was named acting president until the next meeting of the organization.

A merry group from the Pennsylvania delegation in the House, Representatives Porter, Graham, Watson, McFadden and Kless, called, boasting that every one of them was either chairman or an influential member of an important committee, and urged an extra session as early as possible. They did not indorse Mr. Mellon for retention of the Treasury post, but, as one of them said, "Of course, we are for him."

Not Forcing Farm Relief.

In connection with their request for the early extra session, it was made known both at the Hoover headquarters and at the White House that neither the President nor Mr. Hoover planned any steps to force through farm legislation at the short session, so the movement to do so by Speaker Longworth and Senator Watson, of Indiana, is very likely to die aborning.

Mr. Hoover again called on the President and it is quite probable that they discussed the legislative situation. The extra session is now looked upon as inevitable.

At the Hoover headquarters the President-elect's visit to the White House was described as for the purpose of maintaining the "continuity of the present and next administration."

It may be a part of this continuity that is bringing Chairman Hawley, of the House ways and means committee, which is now holding tariff hearings, to see Mr. Hoover today.

Hoover, the Engineer, Picks Flaws in Ship

(Associated Press.)

When Hoover, the President-elect, made a tour of inspection of the Battleship Utah on his return journey from South America, Hoover the engineer put his finger on two difficulties of battleship construction.

Better ventilation is the thing you want, and watertight doors in the bulkheads," Naval officers of the Utah say Hoover declared after inspecting the vessel.

The lack of doors in the watertight bulkheads that extend from top to botom of the battleship, the Naval officers said, often makes it necessary to go up several decks and down several more to get about the ship. The lack of ventilation, moreover, was the subject of special comment in the last anual report of the Surgeon General of the Navy.

TRANSFER OF ENVOYS BY IRISH FREE STATE

SZE IS NAMED TO BRITAIN

Two changes in the Diplomatic Corps at Washington were reported in Associated Press dispatches last night.

Official announcement was made in Dublin that Michael Macwhite will become Minister to Washington to succeed Timothy Smiddy, recently transferred as High Commissioner to London. Mr. Macwhite has represented the Irish Free State at Geneva since 1922.

It was announced in London that Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to Washington, has been named envoy to London. He is expected to leave the United States within a few weeks. A successor was not mentioned.

Mr. Smiddy, formerly a professor in Cork University, is the first minister accredited to Washington by the Irish Free State and has been here since 1924. Mr. Macwhite, his successor, urged that the Irish Free State be represented in Washington as early as 1923. At the Geneva opium conference when the United States was opposed by the world in seeking curtailment of production as the only means of curbing the evils of the trade, Macwhite alone voted against the amendment which permitted reservations.

375,000 Jars Vicks Now Produced Every 24 Hours

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt responses to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks VapoRub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts. The present output is more than 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing.

"Pass me a Lucky—I pass up the sweets." Johnny Farrell

Johnny Farrell, National Open Golf Champion, 1928

WHEN fattening sweets tempt and you dread extra weight, light a Lucky instead. No discomfort, no trouble—just a common sense method of retaining a slender figure.

The finest tobaccos are skilfully blended to make Lucky Strike. Then, "It's Toasted." This secret process brings out every essence in the tobaccos and produces a flavor which makes Lucky Strike a delightful alternative when you crave fattening sweets—there is no interference with a natural appetite for healthful foods. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

At the same time toasting removes impurities. That's why 20,679 physicians are on record that Lucky Strike is less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why prominent athletes have testified that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition. No wonder that this was discovered long ago by many men, who pride themselves on keeping trim and fit who love the "pep" that comes with health and vigor.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

POLITICS IN THE SENATE.

A curious situation has developed in the Senate, resulting from the clash of opinion concerning the desirability or necessity of an extra session of Congress. One group of senators believes that it is desirable at this session to approve the Kellogg treaty, pass the cruiser bill, and provide for farm relief, including revision of tariff schedules affecting agriculture, thereby avoiding an extra session. Another group insists that this program can not be carried through in the short time remaining of this session.

Each group is appealing to President-elect Hoover to approve its side of the argument. He is said to be reluctant to express an opinion either way, because the program involves business at this session with which he has officially no connection. Naturally, he will not permit himself to be placed in the position of intruding upon the prerogatives of the outgoing President; and while Mr. Coolidge is willing to cooperate with his successor, he also carefully avoids any action that would have the appearance of committing Mr. Hoover to any course of action. It is difficult to draw the line exactly at noon on March 4, as the questions now pending overlap that date. What is done or left undone will affect the course of the incoming administration.

There is some evidence that the sponsors of the extra session are delaying an agreement that would bring an immediate vote on the Kellogg treaty. An increasing number of senators insist that the Senate shall somehow record its understanding of the scope of the treaty. The extra-session opponents would accept a plan to place in the Record a report from the Senate committee expressing its understanding of the treaty; but Secretary Kellogg is strongly opposed to this plan and is asking supporters of the treaty to stand firm for its unconditional approval.

Back of the treaty is the cruiser bill. If the treaty should be voted upon immediately the filibuster against the cruiser bill would begin in deadly earnest; and this filibuster might force an extra session. Therefore the opponents of the extra session are counting noses with a view to adopting a cloture resolution on the cruiser bill.

Behind the cruiser bill is the farm relief bill, which must be passed at this session if an extra session is to be avoided. A filibuster on the farm relief bill is in sight, on the part of certain senators who are eager to have an extra session. Some of these senators are champions of farm relief, but it is possible that within a week or two they may be placed in the curious position of filibustering against farm relief. In that case it is quite possible that embarrassing things may be said in the Senate relating to the President and the President-elect. Some farm-relief senators profess to be skeptical of President Coolidge's attitude toward agriculture, and they are anxious to postpone action until the new President is installed, so that he, and not Mr. Coolidge, will appoint the new Federal Farm Board. On the other hand, it is reported that Mr. Coolidge is perfectly willing to leave to Mr. Hoover the naming of the new board, even if the bill should pass before March 4.

Thus, with the outgoing and incoming Presidents in perfect accord, matters in the Senate are so shaping themselves as to stir up confusion, if not discord. At the moment the Kellogg treaty, the cruiser bill, farm relief and the tariff are all involved in a political game whose players are concealing their objectives. The maneuvers now being made, more or less under cover, are destined to have important consequences during the Hoover administration.

REVISED PLAN FOR MERGER.

The Senate subcommittee investigating the street railway merger question, in a resolution adopted yesterday, put up to the traction companies the general outline of a merger that might be acceptable to Congress. "It is the sense of the subcommittee," says the resolution, "that the merger contract be written without any fixed valuation; that the factor of valuation be left, without prejudice, to an actual valuation which shall be completed in not later than two years; that the rates of fare, until a final valuation is made, remain undisturbed, except that the privilege of universal transfers, at least between street railway lines, shall immediately follow merger, and that a resolution of the committee request the Public Utilities Commission to employ Dr. Milo Maltbie to supervise the actual valuation." At the same time the subcommittee adopted a resolution empowering Dr. Maltbie to represent it in conferences with traction officials.

If the companies desire to obtain the benefits that would accrue under merged operation they now have the opportunity. Their contention that it would be unfair to their stockholders to abandon the valuations they legally possess has no bearing if the operating company is to be guaranteed continuance of the present rates of fare, pending a new valuation. Valuation is composed, in theory, at least, of the physical value of plant and equipment plus the value of certain intangibles that roughly may be described as good will and "going concern" value. The companies would lose no physical equipment in the merger; the good will and "going concern" value would be enhanced thereby, and the economies made possible should increase the worth of the system. The companies have nothing to lose by merging without valuation. Their stockholders would profit thereby.

Let the companies merge! An involved agreement is unnecessary. The Public Utilities Commission is charged with the task of determining value and fixing rates of fare and it is fully competent to act in this case. The new company, if the suggestion of the Senate subcommittee were followed, would be amply safeguarded. It is now squarely up to the traction companies whether or not there is to be a merger.

MONOPOLY BY GOVERNMENT.

An issue of prime importance is involved in the action of the United States to regulate the business of the French and German potash concern which is seeking to create a monopoly on this product in America. The case is before a Federal court in New York, the foreign concern being represented by the French Ambassador, Paul Claudel, and the United States by Israel B. Oseas, special Assistant Attorney General.

Federal Judge Bondy has denied the motion of M. Claudel to set aside the service of summonses on the foreign defendants. The ambassador argued that the French firm is immune to regulation by the United States because a large part of its stock is owned by the French Republic. Judge Bondy found that not every one acting on behalf of a foreign nation has the right of immunity to suit. He said: "Neither principle nor precedent requires that this immunity—which, as a matter of comity, is extended to a foreign sovereign and his ambassador—should be extended to a foreign corporation merely because some of its stock is held by a foreign state or because it is carrying on a commercial pursuit which the foreign government regards as governmental or public."

The decision means that the defendants must come into the United States courts. The outcome will be watched with the greatest of interest in commercial circles because of the precedent it will set. The United States is aiming to restrain the French-German concern from violating the Sherman act. Failure to accomplish this would mean that foreign corporations could enter the United States and create trade monopolies here without interference from the Government—a privilege that is denied to American firms.

It is apparent that the Deutches Kalisyndikat and La Societe Commerciale des Potasses d'Alsace is seeking to control the distribution and price of potash in this country under the guise of governmental immunity to the antitrust laws. The significance of the suit goes far beyond the financial gain or loss involved in control of potash prices. The right of the United States to regulate the activities in this country of monopolies formed by foreign capital and foreign governments is challenged. If foreign concerns could evade all suits on the ground that part of their stock is owned by their government, there would be attempts to take shelter behind foreign governments every time a corporation wished to create a monopoly here.

It is obvious that the suit is not against the government of France or any representative of that government. The fact that the Secretary of State made no suggestion to the court, although he was notified by the French Ambassador of the pendency of the suit, indicates that he does not regard the suit as one against the Republic of France. It is of the utmost importance to the future business interests of this country that this construction of the law be upheld.

INCOME TAX ON BOOTLEGGERS.

The Government is determined to have its share of the $10,000,000 bank deposits in Philadelphia which are attributed to that city's bootleg ring. Suit has been filed in the Federal court to collect $2,955,275 from the four persons who were connected with the mysterious deposits as a result of the investigations of a grand jury. The suit puts the Government in the peculiar position of demanding a tax on money earned in violation of law.

The deposits in the Union Bank & Trust Co., of Philadelphia, were discovered during the rum ring investigation which began last August. The funds had all been withdrawn, but detectives were able to connect four persons with the deposits by investigating the uses to which the money had been put. Then income tax officials became interested in the case, and the present suit is a result of their probing.

The case suggests that another item must be added into the cost of prohibition. The Government loses the revenue formerly received from licenses, spends millions to enforce prohibition, and apparently loses large sums in the evasion of the income tax by wealthy bootleggers. No action can be taken against any person as a result of information given in income tax returns, but in spite of this fact there is a hesitancy on the part of those engaged in illegal pursuits to advertise their guilt in this way. It is therefore highly probable that thousands of incomes from the bootleg liquor trade escape tax each year. Investigations in some cities showing that prosperous bootleggers bank thousands of dollars each month indicate the possible extent of this loss.

The Government makes no distinction between bootlegging and any other business in collecting income tax. Since it does not recognize the inconsistency of profiting by activities which its statutes prohibit, it might be well for the Bureau of Internal Revenue to pay more attention to the tax returns of rum runners. One has only to refer back to the $10,000,000 deposit in Philadelphia to form an idea of how profitable this illicit trade is in the United States.

THIS YEAR'S CARS.

The eyes of the automobile world turn this week to New York, where the twenty-ninth annual national automobile show is being held. From all quarters of the United States and from several countries in Europe automobile manufacturers and dealers have convened. The American show, always an international event, inasmuch as the United States is the automotive capital of the world, for the first time this year has admitted the products of foreign manufacturers. Side by side in Grand Central Palace stand the inexpensive Chevrolet and the luxurious Mercedes Benz, not only for the public to view but for manufacturers and dealers to dissect.

The cars on display are more luxurious, more beautiful, and more powerful than last year's cars. Long, low lines predominate. The car of 1929 is as sleek and graceful as designers have been able to make it. In general, it is slightly larger than the 1928 car, and in practically every instance it is faster. Mechanically it shows few major innovations, but in detail of appointments and in luxury of finish even the most inexpensive car of 1929 leaves little to be desired.

The New York show opens the automobile sales year. The models presented therein are those with which each manufacturer hopes to break his sales records. If the throngs attending the show are any criterion, 1929 will be an even better automobile year than was 1928.

The papers say Boston teams can now play ball on Sunday, but they don't explain why Sunday is an exception.

"Good evening, folks. The first dispatch I have here comes from Chillicothe, Ohio. It says that four people were seriously injured, under the auspices of the Great Eastern Macaroni Co., makers of fine macaroni, when a Buick sedan, product of the General Motors Co., America's largest producer of motor cars, crashed into a trolley car by arrangement with the Paramount Carbonated Water Corporation. The injured are Lester Mooch, maker of unexcelled Havana leaf cigars; Milton Caraway, Chillicothe's leading plumber, whose pre-cast pipe is known wherever good plumbing is esteemed; Mrs. Hilda Goggins, originator of the Goggins Health-Wheatcake, and Luther Pratt, vice president of Pratt, Mooney & Veech, whose Comfy shoes are worn everywhere. It was announced by Dr. Strickland Blitz, founder of the Strickland Blitz Sanitarium, that they would recover.

"The next item is from Carson City, Nev. It says: 'Jasper Clinker, prominent business man, was found stabbed in his Smith & Wiggins-built bungalow. The last person seen with him, according to the International Shellac Corporation, makers of Everlast Shellac, was a Miss Sadie Woonk, it was stated by the Federated Animal Cracker Co., whose animal crackers are eaten by all fastidious cracker-lovers. The dagger used was one of the No. 2 series 36 type, manufactured exclusively by the Excelso Weapon Corporation. Police are scouring the city under the auspices of the Happiness Cigarette Co. Coroner Peebles issued a verdict of murder through the Goldberg & Schultz Department Store, the Home of Shoppers Who Care.'

"Havana, Cuba—Herbert C. Hoover, President-elect of the United States, will pay this city a good-will visit, according to an official announcement from the Tip Top Oarlock Co., makers of Tip Top Oarlocks—the kind sailors cry for. Mr. Hoover will remain three days, by arrangement with the Oriental Water Cooler Co., Ltd., whose water coolers are known wherever Whoosises' paper cups are used.

Another Question Mark.

PRESS COMMENT.

They've Started.

Milwaukee Journal: One safe prediction for the new year is that Mr. Hoover will have plenty of callers.

Jack for Jack.

Boston Globe: Time was when one rushed the growler with an ex-lard pail or something like that, but nowadays you've got to have a costly handbag.

But No Flood.

Providence Journal: Latin America did its full share toward making Mr. Hoover's visit memorable. First it staged an earthquake and then a war.

She Knows Girls.

Cincinnati Enquirer: A thoughtful mother is one who teaches her boy how to use a can opener so he will never have to go hungry after he gets married.

By Installments.

Boston Evening Transcript: The public debt was cut $726,000,000 last year. The man who is reducing the mortgage on the home knows just how Uncle Sam feels about it.

High Pressure.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: A Harvard professor has invented a small machine that exerts a pressure of 600,000 pounds to the square inch. Maybe he is going to make it into a mechanical salesman.

Everybody Knows Her.

Ohio State Journal: She is the kind of woman, we said in our bitterly intolerant way, that thinks you can hear a little better over the radio if she adjusts it some more, though you're hearing perfectly already.

Lucky Byrd.

Detroit Free Press: Commander Byrd wires: "We have left civilization at last." Fortunate man. No more thugs, gunmen, reckless drivers and cheap politicians in his life for a while. Only icebergs and penguins.

Short Story.

New York Evening Post: Hoover is winding up his good-will tour by going to Washington, where he plans to stay for some years, during which a new series of such tours will be made by members of Congress to the White House.

Working Rings.

Boston Transcript: A New York magistrate rules that an engagement ring belongs to the donor until after the wedding. This will be good news for economical swains who wish to make one ring serve for several engagements.

Among Life's Puzzles.

New York Sun: One of the big puzzles of life is why a trial involving "Able's Irish Rose" should develop into something beyond the understanding of the people who went to the play and had no difficulty in finding out what it was all about.

Who Cares?

Philadelphia Record: Because of the flu epidemic the prohibition authorities have relaxed the rules limiting medical prescriptions for liquor. Paradoxically, this is likely to reduce the number of cases, while increasing the number of patients.

Luxurious Warfare.

Baltimore Sun: The number of people who are always thinking of the "next war" is positively breath-taking. Now we are informed that an iron airplane pilot is soon to be tested, and that it is possible in the "next war" such "mechanical pilots could be sent up by opposing forces to carry death in the enemy territory." This is a step in the right direction. We now have only to await the day when some one will think of inventing equally ingenious iron men to remain on the ground and be blown up by their metal brothers of the air; more iron men to wage combat on the land; and still more iron men to sail the battleships. Then the merely human race will be able to sit back and really enjoy the excitements of the "next war" without the slightest discomfort.

What Canada Thinks.

Quebec Evenement: Instead of trying to make their bad laws valid in other countries, the Washington Government would be better occupied in prosecuting to convictions all those Americans who hold their legislation in contempt, beginning with their own legislators, who drink heartily of alcoholic beverages in the very precincts of the Capitol, and the prohibition agents who are said to be hand in glove with the bootleggers. You can not hide a fiasco by making a fuss about it.

If the Great Man of the Town Is the Strongest, Every Boy Develops His Muscle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA has need of a new caste system and a new order of nobility. The old one too frequently places the wrong people on top.

A caste system is essential to progress. Men may dream of equality and equal division of the spoils, but the hard truth is that men will not do their best except to win prizes that prove them superior to their fellows.

In a land where all praise is given to military heroes, every young man dreams of leading troops in battle.

An age or a city that honors painters, essayists or poets produces these in abundance by the simple process of making genius pay. Place a sculptor at the king's right hand and tomorrow half the population will model clay.

America's nobility is a nobility of dollars. Everybody yearns for riches—not because of a love for money, but because money is the new badge of aristocracy. To have money is to have greater freedom; to be respected; to enjoy advantages; to escape the petty annoyances of the law.

The millionaire in a "free" country is the old-time baron in a new setting.

Some caste system is essential. There must be some reward for superior merit and superior industry; for selfishness is the dominant motive in every normal human, and it is only by harnessing selfishness that men can develop a civilization in a practical world.

But when all advantages depend on the possession of money, and all men thus are compelled to compete for money, other standards of worth are forgotten and the world fails to criticize the methods by which money is made. The man is rich; therefore he is great; who cares how he got it?

To make men different, provide a different way to win prizes. It is as simple as that. Where piety is a mark of social worth, all learn to pray.

In all seriousness, this country needs a new birth of decency—a new respect for honor. And it can be achieved by offering fair rewards.

Why can't America have an Order of Honorable Men?

If a bit of ribbon in the lapel proves you a man who speaks the truth, keeps his word, pays his debts, deals honorably, lives temperately, and is possessed of education, intelligence and a reasonable patriotism, how earnestly you will strive to earn the ribbon and the social prestige it confers.

By GEN. FRANK T. HINES.

The statement is made that "Although the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill for the retirement of disabled emergency officers passed May 24, 1928, the Veterans' Bureau is showing hostility toward this legislation." It is not believed this conclusion is justified by reason of the action taken in the entire group of cases which has been adjudicated. It is the constant aim of the bureau to inculcate in the minds of its employes that the purpose of their employment is to serve the beneficiaries of the law which it administers in a thorough, helpful and sympathetic way, and that it must administer all laws in as liberal a manner as the law permits.

The emergency officers' retirement act was passed May 24, 1928, and under its express provisions application must be filed within one year from the date of its passage, and the claims of those having a disability resulting directly from service and incurred in line of duty of 30 per cent or more permanent, must be rated within that period. No time limitation is placed upon rating the claims of those having a permanent disability of over 10 per cent and less than 30 per cent resulting directly from service and incurred in line of duty. The bureau has received to date more than 7,700 claims for retirement and they are being adjudicated as quickly as is compatible with good administration and as far as possible, in the order in which evidence is completed.

It is contemplated that all claims filed will be adjudicated within the statutory time limit, and in fact steps have been taken to complete the adjudication of retirement claims in less time than is allowed by the statute. Action is being necessarily delayed in a number of cases because of questions presented concerning the interpretation of the law, which questions have been submitted to the Attorney General and Comptroller General for decisions.

Total number of claims acted on	2,890
Allowed with pay	1,179
Allowed without pay	160

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Let Maj. Hesse Answer.

Kellogg Treaty Delay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The United States has been humiliated before all the nations of the earth by the dilly-dallying of the Senate over the Kellogg pact. The pact is a proposition to renounce war, submitted by the United States to the other governments of the world. It was agreed to and signed by many nations, but they are all waiting the action of the United States Senate before ratifying it. It has already lost much of its force before the world because of the Senate delay. Every senator has long known all the provisions of the treaty and no doubt had his mind made up just how he would vote when it came up for action, yet one delay after another followed. In the eyes of those opposing it a speedy vote would have redounded to the credit of the Coolidge administration. So they caused delay. They may call that statesmanship, but it is only petty politics.

SAMUEL H. MATTHEWS.

Dickson Exposes Delano's Ignorance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Frederick A. Delano is credited with saying in this morning's Post "that the American Navy was idle most of the time during the world conflict." I say that the American Navy won our first victory over the enemy by getting our divisions to France. Had it not been for the American Navy there is a question in my mind as to whether we would have been able to have landed a soldier in Europe. Had it not been for the American Navy we would probably now be paying our income taxes to Berlin instead of Washington. I went to France with the first artillery brigade of First Division. I pay my first homage to the valor of the American Navy.

WHAT IS SOAP?

How many hospital superintendents know anything about the properties and adaptabilities of soap? Yet such knowledge is essential in the economical running of a hospital, Dr. Warren P. Morrill, superintendent, Columbia Hospital for Women, Washington, points out in an article in the Trained Nurse and Hospital Review.

"Soap is a result of a chemical combination of an alkali and a fat," Dr. Morrill writes. "The alkali may be either sodium as in hard soaps, potassium, as in soft soaps, or even ammonium, as in some so-called dry cleaners. The fats used vary from olive or coconut oil for the finest toilet soaps to tallow or cotton oil for the less expensive soaps.

"Five general classes of soaps are necessary in the hospital. Toilet soap is usually of the floating variety. This soap is rather soft, and is marketed in bars weighing from three-fourths of an ounce to 8 ounces a bar. It is advisable to purchase this soap long ahead of the time it is to be used, so that it may be dried out and hardened, since there is a great percentage of waste experienced in the use of soft soap. For the use of patients, it has been found that the one and a quarter or one and a half ounce bar is most economical.

"Laundry soap is a soda-tallow combination, usually furnished in chip or powder form. The best chip soaps contain about 88 per cent pure soap, the powdered soaps about 92 per cent. Soap powders are essentially a combination of a soap powder and a washing soda, and usually contain some free alkali. They are suitable only for washing hard surfaces that will not scratch."

The ball will open at 10 o'clock. As always, the great feature of the Bal Boheme is the continuous dancing from 10 o'clock until 3 in the morning, uninterrupted even by the presentation of the opening pageant, for both big ballrooms are utilized. Two of the Meyer Davis orchestras will play for the dancing. Brief divertissements and the Bal Boheme supper will be among the "extra added attractions" of the evening.

International Ball To Be Held Tuesday.

Unique in that it is the only subscription ball given in Washington purely as a social function and with attendance limited to recipents of invitations from the Board of Governors, the first international assembly which is to take place Tuesday evening, January 15 at the Willard Hotel, promises to be one of the most brilliant of the season's dance events. The youthful society beaux and belles as well as their elders are intrigued by the distinctive nature of this ball and a large group of this season's and last season's most popular debutantes with their escorts will be seen in some special dance numbers, the beauty of which will be enhanched by the attractive costumes to be worn and the unusual lighting effects that are to be used. Prizes of beauty and more than ordinary value are to be awarded for these features as well as for the costumes of those who attend the ball in fancy dress.

A number of out-of-town guests will be present, Mrs. Richard Crane, of "Westover," the former estate of the famous Byrd family of Virginia, has taken a box, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, the latter a member of the board of governors of the assembly, will have with them in their box, Mrs. Clement Biddle, of Philadelphia, and Miss Frances Howland, of New York. Both of these cities are ancestral ground to Mrs. Tuckerman, who is descended from the Hollingsworth and Abercrombie families of Philadelphia and the Townsends of New York.

The weekly dinners of the Art Promoters Club will be resumed tomorrow evening at the Playhouse Inn, 1814 N street, at 7 o'clock, when Mrs. Blair Banister, editor of The Washingtonian, will be the guest of honor, and will later speak at the round-table conference on journalism and the short story in the Oriental studio at 8 p. m. Pencil Erasures Bar Acceptance of Will

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 9.—Because of pencilled erasures which marked out certain clauses making small bequests to relatives, Judge Leigh, in Danville Corporation Court, today refused to probate the will of William Thomas Hughes, tobacco dealer of Danville, who left a gross estate of $240,000. Judge Leigh took the will under advisement when W. E. Bowlen, a witness, swore he saw Hughes make the erasures.

Most of the estate, net figures of which were given by counsel as $128,416, was bequeathed to Hughes' widow and two sons after making specific bequests to near relatives.

No. 3078. United States vs. Davies, Turner & Co. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. Merchandise assessed at 32½ per cent and 27 cents per pound as wool blankets not exceeding 7 yards in length, was claimed by the importer to be properly dutiable at 50 per cent as manufactures of wool the United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed. No. 3120. O. G. Hempstead & Son vs. United States. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. Hydrometers, battery testers, &c., were assessed at 65 per cent as scientific glassware: the importer protested that they were properly dutiable at 55 per cent as articles of glass, or at 50 per cent as manufactures of glass; the United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed. No. 2946. Crown Willamette Paper Co. vs. United States: opinion by Bland, associate judge: printing paper known as "side runs" cut from standard newsprint paper, but too small for the printing of newspapers, was assessed at ¼-cent per pound and 10 per cent as printing paper. W. W. Hearne vs. United States; opinion by Bland, associate judge; the issue here is the dutiable value of pickelette, a compound used as a hardening material in the manufacture of steel; the importer certified at the time of entry that the entered value was higher than the foreign market value and that the goods were entered under compulsion at the United States value pending the decision of the Customs Court as to the proper classification of pickelette; the United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer that the merchandise should be assessed at less than the entered value, and on rehearing granted to importer the judgment below is affirmed. No. 3079. United States vs. N. BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

There is no gainsaying the perspicacity of those in high places in the motion picture industry. Since the first of the year there have passed across this desk reviews of the year 1928 by practically all of the leaders, conspicuous among them being the monographs of Douglas Fairbanks, Joseph M Schenck, Carl Laemmle, the indefatigable letter writer, and numerous others.

Unlike the case of those who have attempted to compile authoritative lists of the ten best pictures of the year, the pronouncements of these high-pressure executives reflect an amazing unanimity of opinion. All have discovered that an important development of 1928 was the comparative perfection of the sound and dialogue picture and each expresses the conviction that this new factor in the entertainment of the world will continue to engage public attention throughout the greater part of 1929.

Such prescience as this can not be lightly passed by without respectful notice!

One of the lamentable facts that seems to have been given no cognizance in any resume of the twelve months just completed is that 30 persons engaged in some branch or another of the business of producing motion pictures died during 1928. That is a heavy toll for any industry to bear. Seventeen of the 30 were players, 4 were directors, or assistant directors, and the remaining 9 were executives, writers, cameramen or technicians.

The morning's mail corroborates Mr Ewing's verbal intimation of yesterday afternoon that the executives of the Stanley-Crandall Co. feel a party coming on The nout, I am informed, will be celebrated tomorrow night, beginning at, or about, 10:30 p. m., in the projection room on the third floor of the Metropolitan Theater Building, with the newspaper boys and girls of the Capital the invited guests.

After refreshments and brief exchange of that witty persiflage for which we of the Fourth Estate are so justly noted, the piece de resistance of the evening will be provided in the form of a preview screening of Fanny Brice's all-talking Vitaphone picture, "My Man," acclaimed in other cities a personal triumph comparable to any ever achieved by the lady buffoon who now, by coincidence—or maybe not—happens to be enlivening Mr. Carroll's "Fioretta" at the National.

Enticing bait is dangled before the scriveners by the hint that Miss Brice has promised to drop in on tomorrow evening's whoopee, even if only for a moment.

That's fair enough. A moment of Fanny Brice is worth at least a year of almost anybody else.

Originality is the backbone, or at least a sonsiderable part of the sinew, of showmanship. I am not at all sure that I can prove that, but let it stand for the moment because I wish to demonstrate that there is showmanship to throw at cats at the Palace this week.

Anna Chang, the Chinese chanteuse—just to keep it all in the same language—is cast in the "Just Kids" revue as Pat Finnegan!

If last minute changes in bookings have to be made, it pleases us copy choppers immensely when they are made just before the last minute arrives, as has happened as this is written.

It seems that "Abie's Irish Rose" in its vocalized form is not to be the attraction at the Metropolitan Theater next week, owing to the huge popularity of "On Trial," one of the finest of the talking pictures so far produced. That Warner Brothers film, with Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell and Lois Wilson in the pivotal roles, will be continued a third week. At the Columbia another all-talkie is meeting with similar success and will be held over for its second week. "Interference," as you probably are aware, enlists the services of William Powell, Doris Kenyon, Clive Brook and Evelyn Brent in a sterling screen version of the famous stage play.

However, the new week will welcome four changes in bills for those who crave the thrill of the premiere. At the Palace, Marion Davies and William Haines will be the pictured stars in "Show People," described as a very funny comedy; the Earle will offer "Conquest," starring Monte Blue, with H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson in support, and at the Fox will be seen "Beware of Bachelors"—libelous, of course, to some of us—in which the principal roles are played by Audrey Ferris, Margaret Livingston and William Collier, jr.

Oh, yes, and down at the President "Mata Hari," a spy story, will occupy the screen vacated by "Unwelcome Children."

It's just as well it turned warm again. I found the ticket all right, but a moth had beaten me to the overcoat!

Afghan Insurgents Advance on Capital

'Serious Fighting' Reported Near Kabul; Two Tribes Yield to Royal Gold.

Calcutta, India, Jan. 9 (United Press).—Advices from Peshawar today said "serious fighting" was taking place 10 miles north of Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, and rebels were advancing against government troops.

The insurgents, who revolted against King Amanullah's reform laws, were reported gaining an advantage over the king's soldiers and advancing toward the capital. Batchai Sakkao, brigade leader, who led the former attack on the capital, is in command of the rebels.

London, Jan. 9 (United Press).—The Shinwari tribal revolt against King Amanullah of Afghanistan was reported near an end today in Exchange Telegraph dispatches from Peshawar, India. The advices said a large quantity of gold had been distributed to Mohmands and Khugianis tribesmen who joined forces with the king after a special gathering of chiefs. This development was reported to have impressed the insurgent tribes. The Mohmands and Kugianis were said to have retreated from Jalalabad, leaving the Shinwaris—arch forces of the king—there alone.

Two Robbers Are Killed In Pay Roll Holdup

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Two robbers were shot and killed in an attempt to hold up the offices of the Barto Co. here today. Thomas Barto, president of the concern, was critically wounded.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

NATIONAL THEATER.

The box office advance sale for Ziegfeld's "The Three Musketeers" opens at the National Theater tomorrow at 6 a. m. Business Manager Cochran evidently believes in giving the early bird the choice seats.

Dennis King in "The Three Musketeers," is returning to the scene of a former triumph. Eleven months ago, at this same theater, "The Three Musketeers" had its "world premiere," when Washington placed its seal of approval on the Ziegfeldian operetta. This verdict was sustained later in New York, for it ran on Broadway for 46 weeks.

POLI'S THEATER.

"The Command to Love," direct from an all-season run on Broadway and three months in Chicago, comes to Poli's next Sunday night. The cast includes Mary Nash, Violet Kemble Cooper, Henry Stephenson, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Melvyn Douglas as the stars. The supporting company includes Thomas Louden, Walter Colligan, Anthony Kemble Cooper, Herbert Ashton and T Wigney Percival.

It is a Viennese version of international diplomacy telling the story of a young attache to the French Embassy in Madrid who is commanded to love a beautiful Spanish senora because her husband's approval is needed for a pending Franco-Spanish treaty. Mary Nash plays the dashing senora and Melvyn Douglas is the philandering marquis.

"The Command to Love" was written by the well-known Hungarian playwright, Rudolph Lothar, in collaboration with Fritz Gottwald.

STRAND.

Two acts, a dozen scenes, interjected vaudeville specialties and numerous comedy bits will engage "Girls From the Follies" at the Strand Theater next week. Some of the principals will be Gladys Clark and Sam Raynor, favorites with followers of Mutual Burlesque. Sam Raynor is a comedian of the "eccentric" school, a free lance among the funsters and invariably packs an irrisistible comedy "punch."

BELASCO.

"Sally," Ziegfeld's first and greatest musical comedy success, will follow "Hit the Deck" at the Belasco Theater. This hilarious musical comedy played in New York for two solid seasons and for one solid year in London and in Chicago, and its song and dance hits are now national jazz anthems.

The leading roles in "Sally" are extremely well suited to rich singing and dancing and comedy talents of the Savoyards. Robert Capron will again come in for chief comedy honors, and it will be Miss Thelma Parker's turn at the leading feminine role, while Miss Renee Hamilton will show her versatility in a role that is entirely different from any she had essayed here before.

The musical numbers include such gems as "On With the Dance," "Joan of Arc," "Silver Lining," "A Wild Rose," "Schnitza Komiska," "Whip-Poor-Will," "Lorelei" and "Little Church Around the Corner."

WARDMAN PARK.

"Quality Street," by Sir James M. Barrie, will be presented by the Junior Theater at Wardman Park this week-end. The performances will be Friday matinee at 3:45, Friday evening at 8:15 and Saturday matinee at 2:30.

Sarah Yearley comes as guest leading lady in the role of Miss Phoebe. Walter Ferrell is Capt. Brown, just home from winning laurels at Waterloo. The Junior Theater actors complete the cast. The Junior Theater will continue to give weekly plays on Friday and Saturday throughout the season.

JASCHA HEIFETZ.

Jascha Heifetz, violin genius, will make his only concert appearance of the 1928-29 season in Washington, at Poli's Theater, next Tuesday afternoon, January 15, at 4:30 o'clock, as the second attraction in Mrs. Wilson-Greene's philharmonic course of afternoon concerts. He will be assisted by Isidor Achron at the piano.

NEWMAN TRAVELOGUE.

"Romantic Rambles" is the title of the "journey" which is replete with novelty, romance, beauty, history and charm.

The places to be visited are the Garden of Allah, Morocco and Algiers, Spain, Germany, London, England and Scotland. The master traveler has recently returned from these countries with up-to-the-minute impressions revealing conditions as they are today. This series is said to be a veritable treasure chest of rare, new and interesting scenes and informative stories on and off the beaten path.

FLONZALEY QUARTET.

The intentionally renowned Flonzaley Quartet will be heard for the last time in Washington on the evening of Thursday, January 17, at 8:15 o'clock in the auditorium of Central High School, under the auspices of the Community Institute of this city.

It is the only quartet ever engaged to play with orchestra, its appearances including the Philadelphia Orchestra, under Leopold Stokowski; the Chicago Orchestra, under Frederick Stock, and the Minneapolis Orchestra, under Henri Verbrugghen.

Tickets, especially priced at $1 each are now to be had for this concert at the Willard newsstand, the American Automobile Association, and at the Community Institute in Franklin Administration Building, Thirteenth and K streets northwest.

YEHUDI MENUHIN.

Yehudi Menuhin, sensational 11-year-old boy violinist, will be heard in concert for the first time in Washington at Poli's Theater on Friday afternoon, January 11, at 4:30 o'clock, under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene. Louis Persinger will be the accompanist, and the program will include Vivaldi's concerto in G minor, Brahm's sonata in D minor, Saint-Saens' concerto in B minor, Ernest Bloch's "Nigun" from "Baal Shem," Samaszeulih's "Chant d'Esparne" and "Paganini's "I Palpiti."

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the gre

BROAD GAINS MARK NEW BULLISH MOVE

CREDIT WORRIES CEASE

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 9.—Bullish traders came into their own again in today's only moderately active stock market and after a dull and uninteresting early session proceeded to boost their favorites all along the line. The market closed strong with only a handful of issues showing in the minus line. Net advances ranged up to 9 points, and fifteen issues touched new peak prices for a year or longer. The improvements in the market was to a large extent at the expense of the short interest but there also was a fair amount of new buying.

Coppers, motors, steels, rails, utilities, rubbers, merchandising stocks and specialties all came in for good buying at advancing prices. Only about 3,750,000 shares changed hands.

The combination of easier money, good imports, favorable steel trade reviews and higher corporation dividends doubtless gave strength to the rally. But there still seems to be a good supply of sand in the bull market's hour glass. Just as last week's decline developed from too much buying around the first of the year, the rally today was the natural reaction of a bull market to the elimination of a weak holding interest and the accumulation of a fresh short interest. Active stocks regained most if not all the losses of the past few days.

Shorts Are Given Scare.

Shorts were given a scare in a number of fast moving issues, but in addition to that, traders were much more willing to add to or restore their long positions for a turn. Buoyancy was pronounced in coppers, merchandising stocks, motors and steels.

Worry over the credit situation was banished by the strength of stocks and the decidedly easier tone in the money market. Call money renewals again were arranged at 7 per cent, but by early afternoon so much money had come into the market from out of town banks that the rate dropped to six per cent, without intermediate pause.

At the same time it was learned that $2,000,000 gold had come in from Canada. A year ago today call money was 4½ per cent, but in all probability the rate is now as low as it will go, or very nearly so, until next summer, unless a very substantial stock market liquidation takes place. However, all things are relative and six per cent money looks easier now than 4½ per cent money did at this time last year.

So far as the stock market is concerned it is doubtful if any one either expects lower money or cares much for it. Traders do not mind paying for their accommodation, but they like to feel sure that money will be available at some price.

Day's Largest Gains

The largest gains on the day in stocks included Abraham and Strauss, up 9 points net; Curtiss Aero, 5; Columbia Carbon, 4½; Alfred Chalmers, 5½; American Can, 2; Adams Express, 8½; American Tobacco B, 3½; Briggs, 3½; Chrysler, 3¼; General Motors, old and new, 3 and 3½ respectively; Packard, 2½; May Department Store, 7¼; Loew, 4½; General American Tank, 6; Du Pont, 5¼; Shubert, 8½; Radio 6; Purity Bakery, 5; Owens Bottle, 4½; Montgomery Ward, 3¼; Sears Roebuck, 4½; Worthington Pump, 3¼; United States Steel common, 6; Vanadium, 4¾; Southern Railway, 5½; Union Pacific, 3¾; St. Louis Southwestern, 3¾; Pere Marquette, 4; Pierce Arrow preferred, 5; Byers, 5¾, and so on.

General Motors old shares had their last fling on the stock exchange today, winding up another highly interesting episode in the speculative market. Today was the last day for trading in the old stock, which went off the board at the close of business today, leaving the field to the "new" shares resulting from the 2½ for 1 split up voted by the board in November.

The old stock had a highly interesting market career, establishing its low of 124 in October, 1927, and later acting as the leader of the 1928 bull movement, reaching its best, 224¾, in the speculative boom which followed the national elections.

Steel common was responsive to buying influenced by the confident tone of weekly trade journals and the expectation that unfilled tonnage of the corporation, due tomorrow at noon, will show a substantial increase.

A melon in the form of subscription rights having a market value of almost $3,400,000 was voted today by the directors of the A. M. Byers Co., of Pittsburgh, makers of wrought iron pipe. Directors of the F. W. Woolworth Co. voted to place the stock on a $6 annual dividend basis, against $5 previously.

Foreign exchange market interest was largely centered in sterling. Cables on London were offered late yesterday below $4.85 and were quoted in London this morning at around $4.84 15-16, coming close to the gold import point. At that level support appeared causing a rally to $4.85 1-16. Buying was almost wholly for holding the rate above the gold import level. Italian was weak, declining ½ point, as did guilders and Danish kroner, and reichmarks lost a point. Norwegian rose ¼ point and pesetas a point. Japanese again was under pressure, losing 5 points. Canadian was not helped by the gold shipment.

INVESTMENT BUYING STRENGTHENS BONDS

FEDERAL LIST AGAIN SOFT

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Investment buying brought some support into the bond market today. While price movements in the general list again were irregular and trading was not particularly active, few industrials and rails showed marked improvement. Convertibles made small gains on buying encouraged by recovery of the stock market. The general tone of the market reflected easier money rates and the clearing of the atmosphere of apprehension over credit conditions. Total sales were $9,031,000.

A few new high records were established, Anaconda Copper 7s moving to a new peak at 194, up nearly 4 points. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s advanced more than three points to a new top at 187, without influencing a general advance of the utility group.

Gains and losses were distributed throughout the rest of the industrial list. Issues active at higher levels included Barnsdall 6s, which advanced 3 points, and most of the other oils; Abraham & Straus 5½s, Goodyear Tire 5s, Loew 6s, U. S. Steel 5s, Wickwire Spencer Steel Convertible 7s, National Dairy Products 5½s, International Paper 6s and Pathe Exchange 7s.

Price trends similarly were mixed in the rail group. Canadian National Railways 4½s of 1957 broke more than 4 points to a new low around 95, while the 4½s of 1930 made a fractional gain. Rock Island Refunding 4s, New York, Susquehanna & Western 5s, Western Shore 4s, St. Paul 5s and others improved in the face of declines of the Missouri Pacific issues, Soo 5s, Erie 4s, Oregon Short Line 4s and Frisco 4½s.

Strength of Latin American issues was a feature of the irregular foreign list.

United States Government obligations again were soft.

BANKS' SECURITIES LEAD STOCK TRADING

DR. H. P. WILLIS TO SPEAK

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

With gains ranging from three to five points, Washington bank securities yesterday led trading on the Washington Stock Exchange. Total turnover of all stocks active was in excess of 260 shares. The bond division lagged, with transactions aggregating only $5,000.

Riggs National Bank stock, which last week brought 560 on the exchange, moved up to 565. A four-point advance was noted in Federal-American National Bank, which climbed to 340. National Bank of Washington, which last moved at 310, came out yesterday at 313, and National Savings & Trust Co. advanced fractionally to 517½.

Little strength was displayed in the utilities group. Although firmness was seen in Capital Traction, at 106¼, Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred lost some ground, receding to 106⅛ and 108¼; and Washington Railway & Electric preferred fell fractionally back to 99¼.

In the miscellaneous grouping, Peoples Drug Stores preferred resumed its recent upward trend, selling yesterday at 133¾. National Mortgage & Investment preferred held at 5½; and National Union Fire Insurance at 26½ was slightly off.

Dr. H. P. Willis to Make Address.

GIRL MURDER TRIAL WITNESS IS JAILED

BOTH SERVED AS NURSES

Chicago, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A defense witness in the trial of Dr. Amante Rongetti, accused of the murder of Miss Loretta Enders, 19, by performing a criminal operation, today was cited for contempt of court and sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Robert E. Gentzel after she had admitted using her sister's name in testifying yesterday and making other false statements.

The girl was Miss Martha Linquist, of Leechburg, Pa., who yesterday declared she was Ebba Lou Linquist, her sister, and still later that she was Mrs. E. C. Carter, her sister's name since her marriage. The girl testified she was a nurse in Dr. Rongetti's hospital at the time the Enders girl was a patient. She used her sister's name, she testified, because her sister had more nursing experience and the name gave her added prestige. William Scott Stewart, defense attorney, maintained she was not guilty of perjury because she had used the name long before the trial and had not adopted it with intent to perpetrate a fraud.

Attorney Stewart, who himself faces a jail sentence for contempt of court in connection with Dr. Rongetti's first trial, remarked with a grin that he "knew more about contempt of court than any lawyer in the world," and said the girl was in contempt of court but could not be convicted of perjury Judge Gentzel then sentenced her to jail.

During the morning Dr. Rongetti, once convicted and sentenced to death, but granted a new trial by the supreme court, submitted to cross-examination. Yesterday, he denied performing any illegal operation and charged that Dr. Samuel Epstein, formerly a coroner's physician, instigated the prosecution when Dr. Rongetti refused to pay him $1,500 he demanded to hush up the case.

Dr. Rongetti said he had not attended the inquest into the girl's death, but that his lawyer was there and two of the nurses from his hospital were present.

He admitted he had not mentioned anything about Dr. Epstein before and when asked how it happened that he had always reported fifteen patients at his hospital each month, said that "it just happened that was the exact number each time."

STOP BAD BREATH
People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.
Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.
Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.—Adv.

CERT-I-FIDE COAL ANTHRACITE UNFAILING SERVICE

More than 8,000,000 families will be more comfortable this winter

More than 8,000,000 homes will have better heat this winter.
The reason is twofold:

1. Because the producers of 45,000,000 tons of hard coal have pledged themselves to ship nothing but finest coal—better coal, cleaner coal, more carefully sized coal than ever before. Coal called Cert-i-fide Anthracite because it is certified by the producers.
2. Because thousands of Cert-i-fide dealers have in turn raised their standards of service. Their service includes free furnace inspection and free instruction on furnace care. Their service men have been trained in schools run by combustion engineers. Your Cert-i-fide dealer stands ready to give this service to you.

Ask your coal dealer about his service. And of course ask for Cert-i-fide Anthracite whenever you buy coal.

Anthracite [HARD COAL] -the unfailing fuel

The undersigned companies pledge themselves to ship only Anthracite (hard coal) that measures up to highest standards. So they call their coal Cert-i-fide Anthracite.

MIAMI PLANES LINK U. S. AND 5 NATIONS

NOTABLES ON FLIGHTS

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Air lines connecting five countries with the United States were inaugurated today when four big cabin planes soared away from the airport here on their maiden voyages over the new routes.

Aboard the fourth to depart was Postmaster General Harry S. New, as a passenger to Havana. This plane was on its initial trip over a 1,440 mile land and water route to its southernmost terminus at San Juan, Porto Rico.

Inauguration of the service was attended by ceremonies at the landing field of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., in which Mr. New, W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General; William P. McCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Miss Amelia Earhart, participated. Departure of the planes concluded a three day flying carnival at Miami airports.

During the inaugural ceremonies, a local band played the American, Cuban, Porto Rican, Dominican, Haitien and British anthems, while the flags of the various nations represented in the international chain of air lines, with Miami as their junction, were raised.

The Postmaster General himself loaded mail aboard the four airplanes. The first air liner took off for Havana at 8:07 a. m. bearing 506 pounds of mail. Among the seven passengers were Miss Earhart, Mr. McCracken, James Warner Bellah, magazine writer, and Mrs. Bellah.

Another plane to Havana departed a few minutes later and was followed by the Nassau, Bahamas Air Liner.

The Porto Rican plane, the Christopher Columbus, sailed into the air at 9:23 o'clock as Mr. New waved a flag from the door of the cabin, with eight passengers and 215 pounds of mail. The passenger list included Mr. New, Mr. Glover, E. R. White, superintendent of foreign mails for the United States Postoffice; Mayor E. G. Sewell, of Miami; Edgar N. Gott, president of the Keystone Loening Aeronautical Corporation; Emilio Delboy, of Havana, and officials of the Pan-American Airways, Inc. Passengers disembarked at Havana, and with Miss Earhart and Mr. MacCracken, returned to Miami today.

The new route lies over Havana, Camaguey and Santiago, Cuba; Port au Prince, Haiti; Santo Domingo City, Dominican Republic, and San Juan, Porto Rico. Mail service is to be maintained to Havana from Miami, while trips will be made three times weekly to the other points, including Nassau.

Later the new route is to be extended to include Panama, via Havana, and Central America.

Earl Carroll's "Fioretta" May Set Record at National

In all the history of histrionics there is probably no show which could compare with "Fioretta," the Earl Carroll production now at the National Theater. Some $300,000 have been spent, promiscuously, on this production.

Previously to this Mr. Carroll has specialized in his "Vanities" but now he has gone away from the straight revue type of show and has gone into the larger and bigger field of the musical operetta.

In attempting the bigger and broader canvass, Mr. Carroll has gone into straight competition with such producers as Florenz Ziegfeld and Charles Dillingham—and he has not been amiss.

Earl Carroll has accomplished one of the most difficult pieces of stage direction in "Fioretta." He is the first producer in America to out-Reinhart that famous creator of the "Miracle." There is nothing more difficult to present on the stage than an ecclesiastical procession. Any attempt to portray the vestures of the medieval church is liable to bring criticism, yet in the finale of the first act Mr. Carroll has brought a pageant to his play that is likely to bring him universal commendation from the clergy. So well has he accomplished this that one of the outstanding clergymen of America has stated, "I have never yet seen on any stage such a superb presentation of what purports to be a reproduction of early Christianity. It is gorgeous. It is spiritual. It is devotional."

While in Weshington, Mr. Carroll, producer of "Fioretta," has been congratulated by almost every New York producer and director of musical comedies. Certainly there has been nothing like "Fioretta" since "Everywoman" was produced by the late Henry W. Savage in 1912.

There are three stars employed in "Fioretta"—Fannie Brice, Lionel Atwill and Leon Erroll, the old-time burlesque comedian. These three stars stand today as the topmost comedians and comedienne, and straight dramatic player of the American stage. Mr. Erroll, having won his way in burlesque Miss Fannie Brice, the old vaudeville star, and Mr. Atwill, the man who left the legitimate stage for musical comedy production. In engaging these people Mr. Carroll, who, up to this time, has gone in only for "revue stunts" has made a new departure in musical comedy production—and full houses at the National Theater this week have proved that he was absolutely right in taking such a strange stage venture.

"Fioretta" will probably go down in the annals of American theatrical history as one of the greatest attempts made by any American producer in the realms of musical productions, since it embodies all of the lavishness of past musical comedies and the revue.

One of the outstanding contributions of Mr. Carroll to the world of art is Miss Dorothy Knapp, heralded as the greatest American beauty. Miss Knapp has won beauty prizes all over America—and she is said to be the most representative type of American beauty. She has her first speaking part in this show.

Not since Flo Ziegfeld brought the "Three Musketeers" to Washington has the city been agog with the news of such a production as this "Fioretta."

Even though this is early in the week there are signs that "Fioretta" will break all house records at the National. It has been said that the last production to "make the big record" was "Ziegfeld's 'Show-Boat'" but "Fioretta" bids fair to equal this record, if not surpass it.

BLACKMAIL CHARGED IN STULTS MURDER

Witness Asked if Slain Girl's Kin Attempted to Extort $10,000.

GIVEN $50, SAYS SMITH

Elkhart, Ind., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Charges of blackmail were made today in the Genevieve Stults murder trial, in progress here, but attorneys for Harvey Smith, charged with the slaying of the Mishawak., Ind., beauty parlor operator, failed to get the charges into the court record.

Charles Reyher, realtor of South Bend, was on the stand again this morning and Defense Attorney Robert E. Proctor drew from him a statement that some letters he had writen to Mrs. Stults had been procured by relatives of the dead woman. Proctor asked if it was true that these relatives attempted to extort $10,000 from him for the letters, but State objections were upheld and the question went unanswered.

The trial entered its sixth day today with little indication that the end was near. The body of Mrs. Stults was found in a lime pile near here last October. Smith has admitted receiving $50 from Mrs. Reyher as a fee for getting Mrs. Stults out of town. Smith said she suspected intimate relations between her husband and Mrs. Stults.

Reyher took the stand late yesterday and told of a search he had conducted for Mrs. Stults and of his belief that she was in Detroit. The body found here was badly decomposed and the defense made efforts to prove that it was not that of Mrs. Stults.

Ford Pictures New World; All Toil Done by Machine

No Smoking Nor Prohibition Talk in Era His Book Predicts; Farming Done by Corporations; Meals Served From Outside, Hot and Appetizing.

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A world in which no one smokes or discusses prohibition, where farmers no longer farm and housekeepers no longer cook and where machines take care of the drudgery is outlined by Henry Ford in his book, "My Philsophy of Industry," just published.

"The great problem in the home today," the Detroit capitalist points out, "is too much drudgery. We shall soon find a way to do much of the cooking outside and deliver it in a hot and appetizing condition at mealtime at no greater cost."

"Farming needs to be completely revolutionized," he says. "Large corporations, whose sole business it will be to perform the operations of plowing, planting, cultivating and harvesting, will supersede the individual farmer; or groups of farmers will combine to perform their work in a wholesale manner. This is the proper way to do it and the only one in which economic freedom can be won."

"Machinery is accomplishing in the world what man has failed to do by preaching, propaganda or the written word."

"The man who can not think is not an educated man, no matter how many college degrees he may have acquired."

"The youth who can solve the money question will do more for the world than all the professional soldiers of history."

"In common decency the liquor generation should be allowed to die in silence. Its agonies should not be the constant topic of American journals."

"A peaceful nation is one that has the means to make war and refrains."

Broken Axle Saves Prosecutor's Life

Pittsburgh, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Paul Jaworski, bandit leader in the Allegheny County Jail here awaiting death in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary, January 21 for the murder of a pay roll guard, told his guards today how a broken automobile axle balked his plans to kill District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. Jaworski was quoted as saying Gardner is the "one guy I hate."

"Gardner's lucky he's alive," the doomed man's guards said he declared. "If I ever get out of here, the first guy I'll 'get' will be Gardner."

"About a year ago, when Gardner was up in Lansing, Mich., trying to extradite my brother, Sam, some of the boys brought word to me in Detroit how, he was shooting off his mouth and what he was going to do with the whole Jaworski gang. I packed some of the boys into an automobile and we started for Lansing to 'get' Gardner. About half way to Lansing, on a lonely road, one of the axles broke and we lost a wheel. That broken axle saved Gardner's life."

Enforcement Fund Increase Sought

Senator Harris, of Georgia, Starts Move to Obtain Added $50,000,000.

(United Press.)

A move to increase the prohibition enforcement appropriation by $50,000,000 was started in the Senate yesterday by Senator Harris (Democrat), Georgia. Commissioner Doran and prohibition officers say they need more money for enforcement and Congress should give it to them, Harris told the Senate.

Harris announced he would seek to have an amendment attached to every appropriation bill which comes before the Senate, but he intended to offer the $50,000,000 as a direct amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill.

The Senate several weeks ago unwittingly accepted an amendment by Senator Bruce (Democrat), Maryland, authorizing an additional appropriation of $270,000,000 for prohibition enforcement. It was stopped in conference and only $13,500,000 now is provided for enforcement.

Condemned Couple Act to Stay Death

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Attorneys for Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas F. Dreher, condemned to hang at Franklin Saturday for murdering James J. Lebouef, the woman's husband, filed briefs today before the Louisiana Supreme Court in an effort to obtain a lunacy commission to pass upon the present sanity of the slayers.

Judge James D. Simon, the trial judge, at Franklin, refused last Friday to appoint a lunacy commission and, after a hearing, ruled that the woman and physician were sane. The Supreme Court is asked to overrule him. Defense attorneys claim that since the trial the condemned pair have become insane during their 18 months' imprisonment.

Decision is expected Friday by the Supreme Court and, if it is in favor of a lunacy commission, Mrs. Lebouef and Dr. Dreher will not be hanged Saturday. But if it rules against a sanity investigation defense attorneys will move on the United States District Court in an effort to obtain a habeas corpus writ to stay the executions.

Strength of King Slightly Increased

Steady Progress Is Made in Local Condition, Is Doctor's Report.

London, Jan. 9 (United Press).—Steady improvement in King George's condition and an increase in strength were reported in an official bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace tonight.

The improvement was the first noted in several days, during which time there had been a succession of bulletins reporting the king's condition as virtually "unchanged."

"The king passed a quiet day. The local condition makes steady progress and there is a slight increase in strength. The next bulletin will be issued Thursday evening.

"STANLEY HEWETT.
"HUGH RIGBY.
"DAWSON OF PENN."

Sir Hugh Rigby signed the bulletin for the first time in several days, indicating that the physicians had made a thorough examination of the patient. No bulletin was issued this morning, but an official announcement at the palace shortly before noon said:

"The king had a fair night. There is no change in his condition."

Germans Convict Dane Accused of Espionage

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 9. (A.P.).—After a trial behind locked doors, the supreme court today sentenced Capt. Harry Lembourn, of the Danish army, to five years' penal servitude on a charge of espionage. A German woman typist was convicted as his helper, and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Capt. Lembourn was arrested June 24 on the island of Sylt, where he had gone on an excursion. It was stated then that his activities had nothing to do with the German-Danish frontier, and that the military secrets which he had been obtaining were for the use of a third government and not for Denmark.

American Banker Fined $2,200 in British Court

Dover, Eng., Jan. 9. (A.P.)—Duncan H. Read, described as an American banker, was fined £485 for importing from Calais without declaration two Swiss clocks and two Swiss watches. The fine, amounting to about $2,200, represented the double value of the articles plus the regular duty.

The attorney for the American explained that the goods were bought in Switzerland as gifts for friends and that his client was under the impression it was not necessary to declare them in England because he intended to return shortly to the United States and pay duty on them there.

Birth Rate Grows In Prince Georges

Nearly Double County's Number of Deaths in November, Data Reveal.

Births were nearly double the number of deaths in Prince Georges County, in November, according to the report of Dr. William S. Keister, county health officer, for December. There were 59 births in November and 26 deaths, the report shows. The statistics show that births and deaths were practically the same number in November, 1927, when there was one birth less than the number of deaths.

Statistics are compiled a month late because of the time it requires for reports to reach the health office from physicians.

There were 99 cases of influenza reported in December with one death from that cause. Ten cases of tuberculosis were reported in December with three deaths. One death resulted from the ten cases of whooping cough.

Clinics for prevention of diphtheria were held and 490 persons given complete treatments; 293 persons were given immunization treatment for typhoid fever, and 64 were vaccinated against smallpox.

WRC Wave Battle Up On Jan. 17

WNJ Station of Newark Seeks Full Time to Channel Operated in Washington — Has Others on String of Its Choices.

The Federal Radio Commission yesterday set Thursday, January 17, as the time for the public hearing in connection with station WNJ, of Newark, N. J., and WRC, of Washington.

In a formal application, WNJ last month asked to be assigned full time to the 950-kilocycle channel upon which WRC now operates. The New Jersey station at present is on the 1,450 kilocycle channel with 250 watts of power and shares its broadcasting time with three other stations.

This application for WRC's frequency is, however, understood to be more a matter of complying with the Radio Commission's regulation than WNJ's desire for that particular position on the dial. If a station is dissatisfied with its frequency, according to the regulation, it must designate some other frequency it desires or which it believes it is entitled to have.

In the case of WNJ, it designated several frequencies which it considered preferable to the one it now has, that of WRC being one of the number.

Therefore it is not known just how much of a fight the Jersey station may put up for the District station's frequency. Nevertheless M. H. Aylesworth, of New York, president of the National Broadcasting Co., has been advised of the situation and may be present at the hearing.

In any case the station will be represented by Ralph Edmunds, its manager, who will be prepared to give the commission any information it may desire.

An exceptional musical event will be the radio premiere Saturday night of the second movement of Ernest Bloch's prize winning symphony "America," which will be played by the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Walter Damrosch and heard here through Station WRC at 8 o'clock.

It is described as a national historic panorama in music dedicated to Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman. The second movement deals with "Hours of Joy, Hours of Sorrow, 1861-1865." It narrates "the drama of the North and South, the interruption of war, the distress and the agony which followed the civil conflict."

Of especial interest to Ohioans will be the broadcasting by Station WLW, of Cincinnati, at 11:30 a. m. on Monday, of the inaugural ceremonies of Governor-elect Myers Y. Cooper, from the state capitol, at Columbus.

Gov. Cooper will make his inaugural address at 12:05 p. m., following his oath of office, which will be administered at noon by Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio. The commission will be presented by the retiring governor, Vic Donahey.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a regular reader of your column, and have not read anything to compare with my problem.

I am 18 years of age, and have been going with a man for a year. He is 21 years old. He has treated me very nice ever since we have been going together, and all my friends and relations like him very much, and his friends and relations like me.

He makes plenty of money. He is supposed to be in love with me, but he comes into town and rides around town a little while, then goes to a show alone instead of coming out to the house to see me. I caught him a couple of times, or heard from others that he was in town. I asked him why he went to the show and afterward went to the restaurant without me. He tells me the reason he doesn't take me to the show is because I can never be ready until late, and must make supper for my brothers and myself, and I can't get out early enough to go to the show. Then after the show he says it is too late to come out to see me as I might be in bed. I forgot to tell you he lives 15 miles from my house and it takes an hour to get home.

On Sundays he comes to see me in the afternoon, and instead of coming right in the house, he goes around the corner and gets in a game of baseball and other games with the fellows in the neighborhood, and I never know he is here until I see his car out in front of the house. Then I must go after him just like a mother must go after her children. I have asked him several times to take me for a ride or to see some one, but he says it is too cold to ride.

Now Miss McDonald, we are engaged and expect to get married some time next month. He is buying a home, and we have bought several pieces of furniture and expect to go in the home right away. I am sure we will be very happy as we sure do love each other and have good times together, although he does pay more attention to everybody else than he does to me. But he won't after we're married because we will be a good distance away from everybody, as our home is out in the country. In a way I am a little afraid of this marriage. But everybody likes to talk me into marrying him telling me I won't get another fellow like him, as he is wonderful. What would you do in a case like mine?

"MOTTSY"

Well, you seem to have found the world's worst lover, and about the most selfish man I have ever heard of, and I have never heard of any other kind.

Small wonder you fear this marriage," You should, Mottsy, hereafter, just before that car parks itself before your home, you put on your hat and go downtown, uptown or all around town, but go some place. Never again go after him. On the contrary let him go after you.

He will make the most inconsiderate, self-centered husband any woman ever found in the matrimonial grab bag. His idea of a woman is something sitting in a house waiting for a car to be parked before her door, something patient and meek, and reliable, something that will always be there.

Fool him. Show a little spirit. Let him know how it feels to wonder where somebody is.

If he goes to shows alone now because you must get dinner at home, he will go alone after marriage because you must care for his home and children. If he loved you he would plan ahead so that you could get to the show.

Train him before you marry him, Mottsy. They are hard to train after the ring goes on. Tell him that hereafter you are going to have light supper once a week so that you can get to the show. And after you marry him, for, of course, you will marry him anyway, see that you continue to have light supper the night he goes to town.

You are all set to be sold into slavery, Mottsy, so assert yourself before it is too late.

Hoover to Talk by Air On Tunnel

President-elect Will Speak at Great Hook-up as Cascade Mountains Are Pierced; Opera Singer Also on Long Program.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—President-elect Herbert Hoover will deliver his first radio speech since the presidential campaign Saturday night as a part of the program celebrating the dedication and formal opening of the new Great Northern Railroad tunnel through the Cascade Mountains. The tunnel is said to be the longest in America.

Announcement of Mr. Hoover's acceptance of an invitation to participate in the ceremony was made here today by Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern. Thirty-eight radio stations will broadcast the program on a national hookup with Washington, D. C., where the President-elect will speak. The time of the broadcast will be 8 to 9 p. m., Central standard time.

A large network of stations, headed by WEAF, New York, will broadcast the dedication of the new $14,000,000 tunnel through the Cascade Mountains east of Seattle, Wash., at 9 o'clock Saturday night. The radio audience will be switched from New York to San Francisco and Washington during the hour. Schumann-Heink will be heard from the Pacific Coast, George Olsen and his music from New York, and world famous figures in politics, engineering and industry from Washington.

A special program for listeners to station KSL, in Salt Lake City, Utah, will originate in the studios of stations WEAF, New York, and WRC, Washington, beginning at 11 o'clock and lasting for two hours. Radio Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, of Salt Lake City, will be the principal speaker, while Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., will also address the KSL audience.

Entertainment will be furnished by some of the headliners from WEAF, including the Sixteen Choristers, Marjorie Horton, soprano; Elizabeth Lennox, contralto; Smalle and Robertson, Hugo Mariani and the Mediterraneans, Julian Oliver, tenor; Frederic Baer, barytone, and Devora Nadworney, contralto.

A vocal arrangement of Cesar Cui's "Orientale," prepared especially for the Seiberling Singers by Frank Black, will be broadcast by that group over a network of stations at 9 o'clock tonight. Schubert's "Serenade," is the vocal solo for James Melton, tenor, and an original arrangement of the famous Irish ballad, "Come Back to Erin," will be played by the Singing Violins.

Ohman and Arden, the keyboard athletes of the Seiberling program, present their own version of "On the Banks of the Wabash."

From the "Rocking Horse Parade" to Rimsky-Korsakow's "Eastern Romance" is the chasm to be leaped by Halsey, Stuart's fireside musicians at 10 o'clock tonight. "Maybe This Is Love" from "Three Cheers" and "Better Be Good" from "Chee Chee" are contrasted with Haydn's "Gypsy Rondo" to be played between the two.

The Columbians, popular players of symphonic jazz, will be heard from WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight. The orchestra will begin the hour with "Puppet's Parade" and will include such numbers as a selection from "The Merry Widow," "High Hat," "Jeannine" and "High Up on a Hilltop."

Florence Jane Adams, impersonator, will broadcast from the studios of Station WOL for a 15-minute period at 6:45 o'clock tonight. There will be a concert from the Carlton Hotel at 7 o'clock, and two hours of dance music at 10 o'clock.

The Whoopie Trio, the Siegel Trio and Hawaiian Four are among the offerings of WJSV during the evening.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Snowfalls and Blizzards.

We think of the torrid zone as being always hot; but that is not true of the high places. There is a mountain peak in South America which is close to the Equator, but it has snow on the top all the year through. Snow will form in cold air, whether at the Equator or at the North Pole.

Snow falls to a depth of 2 or 3 feet in a single night in some parts of North America. If it does not melt in the meantime, it is there to help build up a still greater height at the time of the next snowfall.

In Yellowstone Park, during winters of heavy snow, there are drifts which go down to a depth of 30 or 40 feet.

Have you ever wondered how much snow it takes to make a quart of water? From a fresh snowfall you will need to melt down ten or twelve quarts to make a single quart of water. Old snow is more thickly packed, and four or five quarts of it will form a quart of water.

A blizzard is a snowfall whirled around by a windstorm. I was once caught in a blizzard while in a little town in Minnesota. I could not leave for two or three days, because the trains were not running.

It was cold, I can tell you—40 below zero. The snow kept coming down as though the sky would never get tired of sending it.

At last a train puffed into the village. It looked as though it had come from the North Pole. The "cowcatcher" was pushing a pack of snow ahead of it for a distance of 10 or 15 feet. At different places on the locomotive were icycles—formed from the freezing of steam.

We think of snow as cold, but it sometimes keeps animals or people warmer than they would be otherwise. Eskimos use it for their homes. Sheep caught in blizzards have been kept from freezing to death when they huddled together under a snowdrift.

Jane Interprets the Mode

THE collections of Mary Nowitzky are perhaps among the most bizarre shown in Paris. You will find persons who think they are marvellous and others who are quite of the opposite opinion.

Personally, while recognizing that not every woman can "get away with" the extreme types of negligees, bathing suits and the like featured by the house, we have always found the collections extremely intriguing and filled with novel ideas.

The Oriental Influence.

Beach lounging pajamas, for example, for winter resort wear, have tended strongly toward the oriental influence, making the beach at the Lido look something like a harem turned loose in full party attire.

Mme. Nowitzky, in her new collection, has struck an utterly new note—she has designed beach pajama suits inspired by children's clothes of a bygone period—the sort of clothes dear to Kate Greenaway. High-waisted trousers, with enormous pearl buttons, loose blouses and juvenile collar and cuff treatments—can't you just see the quaint youthfulness of such an outfit?

• • • •

I have tried to sketch for you today the typical graciousness and distinguished simplicity of a Louiseboulanger model. Light blue satin trimmed in uncurled ostrich feathers—that would be all the description necessary were it not for the fact of the true artist's touch in the manipulation of these two materials!

Of course, any modernist despises those perfectly asinine frilly atrocities called boudoir-caps that one can faintly remember really having worn or seen in the dim, dark ages—but this is no reason why this perfectly innocent and naively charming type of feminine conceit need be relegated to the bustle and leg-o'-mutton sleeve old-clothes bag.

If you ask me, I have seen many a wind-blown bob so badly disarranged by the night breezes that a boudoir-cap of almost any description would have been a boon to beauty. And than an un-undulating marcel, could a frilly boudoir-cap be worse? Which is very involved English, very good head sense.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

WRINKLES, AVAUNT!

NATURALLY, all of us want to avoid lines and wrinkles as much as we can, since thy have a way of proclaiming the years in such unescapable fashion. Sometimes, they attack us most deeply in one place, at other times, in another. "H. S." for example, wants to know what to do to retard the appearance of wrinkles beneath and at the sides of the eyes.

The manipulation for the lines about the eyes should be very delicate and gentle. First, choose a smooth massage cream and start the massage with one finger at the top of the eyelid, directly beneath the eyebrow. With a rotary motion always upward and outward proceed completely around the eyes, keeping the same distance from the eye all around.

"Peggy" writes to ask what makes the lines appear between the nose and the cheeks, above the upper lip, and then how to eradicate them. Those lines have always been known as "laughing lines," because they appear there when the face is in a laughing expression. Many people whose faces are otherwise unlined have these "laughing lines," and it seems an unfair toll to take of a pleasant expression. However, there are things that can be done! An astringent cream is a good thing to use on these lines, and massage will help to prevent or eradicate them. This massage is done with one finger of each hand on each side of the nose. These are placed close to the base of the nostrils, and the movement, which should be quite slow, with the fingers moving the skin firmly, goes up and out in a curve, but a curve only, since it should not be completed into a circle. During this massage, the uth is held firmly in place, so that the massage will smooth out the lines. If the fingers merely slide over the surface in this process, the real benefit of this massage will be lost.

Conduct and Common Sense

BY ANNE SINGLETON

HOW TO STOP LATENESS AND LAVISH MAKE-UP

"DEAR MISS SINGLETON: Will you give me some advice about how to manage my daughters. I don't want to antagonize them, but I do want to influence them, if I can, in two very special matters. My eldest girl is always late. Nothing I can say seems to do any good. She will not do anything on time, and I am tired of keeping meals waiting at home and trying to get her off to appointments. The other has no conception of how a lady should look. Her face is made up like a clown's, and I am ashamed of her when I meet her out in the bright sunshine. They say I am just old-fashioned when I remonstrate. What shall I do?"

I should say you were well-bred rather than old-fashioned, and that you had much better taste in "conduct" and "common sense" than your daughters. They probably associate with a circle of young people quite below what you would consider their proper social standing. All the young do that today. They have not the fastidiousness of their elders. In some ways, this is good, but in others it is very bad.

I should stop contending with them on these two subjects. You will only set up an obstinate reaction, and, now that they are beyond the age when you can absolutely control them by force, you must take to diplomacy. Fall into the same faults yourself, gradually, of course. (If you became late and badly made-up in a single day, they would suspect you.) But, by easy stages, you must manage to be always late when you have to go anywhere with your elder daughter. Let her wait for you, never wait for her. When it is time to sit down to eat, sit down. Let a plate of food be kept hot, if you please, but don't keep back, or serve over, any meal if it is inconvenient to do so. Don't reproach her; just let her be uncomfortable. And begin to make up your own face so that your second daughter becomes worried by your appearance.

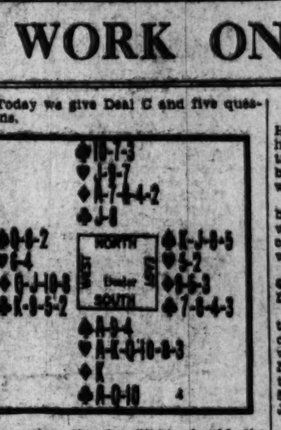
WORK ON BRIDGE

Today we give Deal C and five questions.



Question No. 9. What should the bidding be at Auction?

Question No. 10. What should the bidding be at Contract?

Question No. 11. What four cards should be played to trick 1?

Question No. 12. What suit should be led to trick 2, and which hand should win the trick?

THE ANSWERS.

9. At Auction, South should bid one Heart and obtain the contract. South has the Heart holding that conventionally justifies a bid of two Hearts, but it is quite unnecessary to bid two with such great side strength.

10. At Contract Bridge, South might bid three or four Hearts; the outcome would be the same in either case, because if South should bid three, North would bid four.

11. To trick 1, West should lead the Queen of Diamonds, North play the Deuce, East Trey, and South the King.

12. South should lead a Heart to trick 2. North winning the trick as cheaply as possible; it is immaterial whether South lead the Trey and North play the Seven, or South lead the Eight and North play the Nine, or South lead the Ten and North play the Jack.

13. To trick 3, North should lead a small Diamond and South should trump the trick with the Ace, King or Queen. The idea of the play is to establish a long Diamond in Dummy if possible. This can be done if the adverse Diamonds are divided 4-3, and will enable South to discard two Spades. North does not lead the Ace of Diamonds because there is a remote chance of its being ruffed, and there is no need to take an unnecessary risk.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FINGER sucking is not a very bad habit. Since the hands are apt to be unclean it adds somewhat to the danger of infection. In certain circumstances, but far from all, it causes deformities of the upper jaw and palate arch and produces irregularities of the teeth. But that is about the limit of the harm it does, according to Dr. D. M. Levy.

Unless the finger is held in a somewhat unusual way, the jaw is not deformed and the palate is not unduly arched. Thumb sucking is not an evidence that the child is spoiled or is emotionally unstable. It is not always present in "only children," the youngest child or the "babyfied" child. But aside from the potential sources of harm it is bad habit and one that parents do not like to see their children indulge in.

Dr. Levy devoted some study to the origin of the habit with a view to finding a method of preventing it. The conclusion he arrived at is that a baby sucks his thumb because he does not get all the regular sucking that's coming to him, and that is the one and only basic cause. After the habit has been established it may be indulged in for all sorts of reasons—emotional, mental and physical.

A baby sucks naturally until his mouth gets tired or until his sucker is satisfied. His hunger, or appetite, or supply of food is of minor importance in stopping the sucking. If his milk comes too fast, or if his stomach fills up too quickly, or if he is pulled away too quickly, his sucker has some unite of unexpended energy. His mouth is apt to seize upon the nearest thumb or finger, or it may take hold of the lip or tongue, or of a piece of cover and, having laid hold, it works away until the units of energy are used up.

From the practical standpoint, thumb sucking develops in babies that suck too fast; or are fed from breasts or bottles that "milk" too fast; in babies that are fed at four hour or longer intervals; babies that are fed irregularly or at night; babies that do not nurse long enough; or babies fed from a spoon or cup.

Babies that go to sleep at the breast, or that suck slowly, or that quickly quit after being sated, rarely develop into thumb suckers. Among the methods of preventing thumb sucking are the following:

In breast feeding the mother can make the baby slow up, or remove him from the breast, or have him draw on an empty breast. The time at the breast can be lengthened.

Irregular feeding and night feeding should be discontinued.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS.

A. R. B. writes: My mother is supposed to have arteriosclerosis. She gets openings in her foot now and then which seem to close up after a time.

1. What do you think of arteriosclerosis as a serious ailment?

2. What would you recommend to be done to prevent furtherance of it?

REPLY.

1. Arteriosclerosis is commonly known as high blood pressure. It is a thickening of the walls of the arteries, and such thickening is the most frequent cause of the symptoms, high blood pressure. If your mother has perforating ulcer of the foot with arteriosclerosis her malady is a serious one.

2. You can not change the condition of the arteries. Protecting the feet against cold and keeping them very clean should be of service against the ulcers.

PAULINE STARKE, the famous film star, was born this day, 1900, in Joplin, Mo. She started her moving picture career at an early age with the old Triangle Film Co. at Hollywood. Probably her most noted role was in "A Connecticut Yankee," the hilarious production based on Mark Twain's famous book of that name.

She has created many noted screen characterizations. Her plaintive personality projects itself admirably, so much so, indeed, that she is in the front rank of the younger featured players. Beside being a talented actress, Miss Starke is an accomplished pianist.

John Drew, John Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore, Ethel Barrymore—these are names to conjure with in the theatrical world. The mother of the late John Drew and the grandmother of the three Barrymores was born this day, 1818. She was Louise Drew, who died in 1897. In her days she was hailed as a child prodigy. Later she won wide recognition for her talents as an actress and mimic. She was considered the most successful Mrs. Malaprop on the American stage.

Reducing may ruin good looks

Extreme dieting is also dangerous to health

A FAMOUS doctor discusses the effects of extreme weight reducing on the skin. Frequently, he says, "the face takes on an anemic look. Healthy color is absent and a sallow tinge gives the distinct appearance of weariness and age." He says that the loss of only a few pounds by a middle-aged person will often "make the skin of the face wrinkled and baggy." After excessive reducing this is noticeable also on the hands.

Besides, skinniness is unbeautiful. "Essentially," says an eminent doctor, "the curve is fundamental to beauty. . . . The really beautiful consists of that which is healthful and efficient." He goes on to warn us that "The craze for thinness is an attempt to modify the process of nature."

Women to be beautiful should be natural and healthy, and it is dangerous not only to good looks but to health for women, girls or men to try to standardize their weights. Eat plenty of varied nourishing foods. Everyone needs a certain amount of fat in the tissues of the body. Don't forget the value of sugar in making other foods tasteful and enjoyable. There is no substitute for sweetness as a food and flavor. In reducing, decrease the quantity of all foods, but enjoy variety. Health is necessary to beauty. The Sugar Institute.

Sharkey Sets $100,000 As His Price

Stribling Bout Is Off Unless Terms Are Met, He Says.

Fighter Argues With Garden Heads While Crowds Pass Bier.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Jack Sharkey is balking at meeting William Lawrence Stribling in that proposed ten-round bout in Miami Beach on February 27. As a matter of fact, there will be no fight unless those who take up the business of the Madison Square Garden Corporation where the late Tex Rickard left off meet the Bostonian's terms, which are said to be a flat guarantee of $100,000 plus the privilege of toting his own referee into the ring with him.

William F. Carey and Col. John Hammond vice president and acting general manager, respectively, of the corporation, meant it when they declared immediately following Tex's death that "the sudden and regrettable death of Mr. Rickard will in no wise interfere with the business of the Garden."

This morning, while thousands of fight fans and mere curiosity seekers were filing past the flower-banked bier of the promoter in the center of the great fight arena which he conceived and erected, Hammond and Carey, attired in their funeral clothes, were up in the office that was Rickard's on the third floor of the Garden, haggling over terms with Sharkey.

It was cold business, the interests of the Garden are paramount at all times, even on the day of Tex Rickard's funeral.

Of course, nobody but the principals was supposed to know anything about the scene enacted in the private sanctum of the late promoter, but Sharkey, as ever loose-tongued, was so vexed over what transpired that when he emerged from the conference he talked freely.

Sharkey's version of the conference was that Carey and Hammond tried to convince him the tentative agreement he had with Rickard was no go. Tex neglected to sign Sharkey to a bona fide contract. He did make a verbal agreement, by which he guaranteed Sharkey a flat sum not far from $100,000.

"There was only one Rickard," frothed Sharkey as he aired his troubles.

"And he's downstairs, cold. These other mugs will never be like him if they live to be a thousand years old."

Jack said Carey and Hammond thought his guarantee too high and tried to cut it down the middle. He said he would not stand for any such arrangement and that he would get his original price or there would be no fight.

"Anyhow, I'm not so anxious to fight for this new bunch (meaning Tex's successors) because I don't think they could handle the fight like Tex could," Sharkey added. "Dempsey's active support would help some, but I doubt if much. I'd never take a chance fighting Stribling in the South unless I got well paid for my efforts.

"First, this fight figured to draw about $500,000," he added. "Without Rickard they will be lucky if they take in half that amount. But you'd think they would wait until the man is buried before trying to undo his work, wouldn't you?"

While the conference was in progress, Lou Magnolia, one of New York's ablest referees, slid into the room, having been summoned by Sharkey's manager.

Johnny Buckley was to attend the conference, but didn't, owing to the illness of his daughter. The inference gathered was that Buckley is trying to get Magnolia to referee the fight—if there is one.

LIE IS PASSED IN BOSTON HEARING

BOSTON, Jan. 9 (U.P.).—President Emil Fuchs and Vice President Charles Adams, of the Boston Braves, were classed as "two money-mad men" by a witness in today's session of Boston's baseball scandal inquiry.

The same witness, Robert Gardiner Wilson, jr., declared that Adams lied when he intimated that the mysterious telephone voice, which asked a bribe to expedite passage of the Sunday sports bill, was his.

"My only regret Wilson said, "is that I haven't got a chance to prove him the despicable liar that he is through his own filthy mouth." Adams was not present at today's hearing, having left Boston several days ago on a business trip with the consent of the investigating commission.

General denial was made by today's witnesses of all other charges made by Fuchs and Adams in previous testimony before the finance commission.

Dan Carroll, Boston sports promoter, denied that there was any mention of money at the famous meeting at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where Fuchs is alleged to have been approached by Councilman William G. Lynch seeking the bribe money. He testified that at the opening of the meeting in the hotel, Fuchs threatened Lynch that he would "see to it that he got licked as Bilodeau was," unless he favored the Sunday sports bill.

Bilodeau referred to by Carroll was an opponent of the Sunday sports measure and an unsuccessful candidate for the State senate. Charges that the

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Now that Tex Rickard has been laid to rest, the directors of the Madison Square Garden Corporation will take up the matter of choosing his successor. The task will involve something more than selecting a new general manager of the Garden. The directors can and will do that, but it is a question if they have the vision to pick a successor to Tex Rickard as the premier boxing promoter. They will be shooting in the dark when they try to do that, because the man who can fill Rickard's shoes in every respect is not now visible to the naked eye. It may be that the man who really succeeds Rickard will not be of the corporation's choosing. As far as boxing is concerned, the Madison Square Garden Corporation is in for some strong competition.

Jess McMahon, who plans to open his new coliseum in Starlight Park in the spring with a fight between Al Singer and Kid Chocolate, will give the 600 millionaires something to worry about. McMahon was Rickard's right-hand man for several years and knows the boxing racket inside out.

Another man who will have to be reckoned with is Humbert J. Fugazy, the only local promoter with sufficient courage and backing to challenge Rickard's supremacy in his heyday. Fugazy has learned a lot in his comparatively brief experience as a big-time promoter. This last year, it is said, he suffered a couple of severe setbacks, as Rickard himself did, but he seemed to weather them and will be heard from next summer. Fugazy is reputed to have strong backing and declares he is in the game to stick.

Rickard's Successor Is Due to Carry Heavy Impost.

The man who takes Rickard's place in the Garden corporation will carry a heavy impost. His predecessor has left a high mark to shoot at in earnings. There are no more Dempseys in sight to help him reach it. The directors, conservative, hard-headed business men, will hedge him about with more restrictions than they did Rickard. Tex sometimes took their breaths away with his willingness to gamble high on big attractions, but his past performances gave them faith in him and in return they gave him a loose rein. It would be too much to expect that they would rely so implicitly on an unproved man. The directors may yet decide to confine their promotions strictly to the Garden and let outsiders gamble on the big outdoor attractions. The two which Rickard put on in 1928—the Tunney-Heeney and Mandell-McLarnin bouts—both were financial buds.

Giants to Be Allowed to Breathe on Own Initiative.

With John McGraw, Ray Schalk, Bert Neihoff and Bob O'Farrell master-minding for them next season, about all the Giants will have to do of their own initiative will be to breathe, eat and sleep, and the overseers will be willing at all times to see that they get enough sleep. The four members of the Giant board of strategy will do all their other thinking for them, and McGraw, if he runs true to form, will do all the thinking for the board. Don't be surprised if you see Eric Robot, the mechanical man recently imported from England, out there playing shortstop for the Giants on the opening day of the season.

MARYLAND U. FIVE BOWS, 33 TO 20

FOR exactly half of the game, Maryland University's basketers looked to be in the same class as the Randolph-Macon Team when the two met at College Park last night, but the boys from Ashland stepped out in the second period and rang up enough points to give them the decision by the comfortable margin of 13 points, 33 to 20.

Woodson, high scorer of the game, who also figured prominently in giving his team a recent victory over the University of Virginia dribblers, sank a long shot shortly after the opening whistle. From then until the intermission, the lead shifted constantly, the score being tied at 3-3, 4-4, 6-6 and 8-8. The Virginians then staged an abbreviated rally to go in front, 11 to 8, only to see the Old Liners again catch them and finally pass them just before the half ended, 2-pointers by Dean and Radice letting the home team resume play after the intermission with a single-point advantage, 14 to 13.

Following the rest period, Randolph-Macon decided upon a change in its style of play. Its defense tightened and the Old Liners were kept so well covered that they were able to score but three field goals.

Meanwhile, the visitors managed to tally 20 points on their own account, many of which were on "snowbirds," the result of a fine passing game and their failure to make shots for the net until they were within shooting distance.

The Old Line team did not look impressive and managed to hold its own in the first half merely because the visitors were willing to also play a long-shot game. During the game Radice tried for 15 long ones and Dean for 13 and each was successful only once.

In the second half, when the visitors got down to business, Maryland's lack of practice was evident and Coach Shipley's men were outplayed in every department of the game.

Woodson, lanky center for the visitors, was high scorer of the game with 12 points, four field goals and the same number of free shots. Taylor, Maryland forward, was credited with 9 points and played the best game for his team. King and Trader, of Randolph-Macon, with 8 points each, were the others who made large contributions.

Hilltop Games Await Decision of Lou Little

Game scheduling in basket ball and football is at a standstill at Georgetown University during the absence of Lou Little, director of athletics. It is expected that Little will return to the Hilltop from his vacation at Leominster, Mass., next Tuesday.

Until the Georgetown athletic head resumes his duties the definiteness of reports that Georgetown will meet either Duke University, of Durham, N. C., or St. Louis University in football next fall can not be ascertained. For the same reason a proposed basket ball game between Georgetown and American University on a date in the near future is hanging fire.

While Coach Elmer Ripley did not call a practice of the Georgetown basketers yesterday afternoon many of the squad worked out for more than two hours. A number of the Hoyas refuse to concede first team positions to those who have played more or less regularly so far and the fact that Ripley inserted three newcomers in the Blue and Gray line-up against Duke Tuesday night has increased their hopes of becoming starters.

Rites Simple At Rickard Funeral

10,000 Attend Brief Services; Notables Pay Tribute.

Traffic Is Halted on Three Streets; Police Control Crowds.

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Tex Rickard was buried today after funeral services in a crepe-draped Madison Square Garden he leaves behind as a monument to his vision. After brief and simple services, which were in marked contrast to the spectacular things in which the sports promoter dealt in life, his body was interred in a cemetery where a wife and child rest.

A crowd of 10,000 sat in awed silence in the seats whose occupants in other days and nights have alternately cheered or hurled jeers and boos at referees and athletes.

The hush was profound as an organ played, a quartet sang and two clergymen and two laymen paid tribute to the memory of Rickard, "a man without meanness in his heart."

Every branch of sport was represented in the throng and many who had no connection with athletics joined. The man for whom the last rites were being said had aided scores of charities and representatives of these bodies were there to add their tribute.

Available seats in the huge Garden were filled when the doors were closed at 1:30 o'clock after thousands had passed in double lines past the bier in a seemingly endless procession. Many, after passing the palm-covered and flower-banked resting place of the casket on the lower floor, went to the seats on the mezzanine set aside for the public and awaited the funeral hour—2 o'clock.

Draped in black and purple mourning the Garden awaited final passage from it of its builder. There was no scraping of chairs, little craning of necks and virtually no exchange of whispers as an organ installed for the funeral, boomed forth the stately notes of "Lead, Kindly Light."

One thousand seats were set aside on the main floor for "friends." This space was dotted with boxers—friends indeed of the man they were honoring. From obscure preliminary fighters to men who have reached the heights of fame or stand the threshold, they sat in solemn dignity, one here with a discolored eye and another there with a cut lip. All were thinking, perhaps, as a promoter who had come 1,000 miles to attend the funeral said: "Those boys have lost their best friend."

As the organ continued to play a requiem, the honorary pallbearers, two score in number, entered. This group included the Madison Square Garden Corporation directors, men who loom big in the affairs of business, well known figures in boxing, hockey, the stage and sports writers.

"The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want," he read from the Twenty-third Psalm, and "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Turning to the comforting fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, he read:

"Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me. In my father's house are many mansions."

Dr. Moor then recited "Thanatopsis," with its "As one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

PAST and present gods of the track will make the Hilltop their retreat during the latter part of this month.

Supplementing the news that Paavo Nurmi, Finland's mystery man, and Edvin Wide, fleet-footed Swedish schoolmaster, are coming ere to train on the board oval at Georgetown, came the report yesterday that Ray Dodge, former Illinois A. C. flier, intends soon to seek the Hilltop as a place for the start of his comeback attempt in big time foot racing circles.

Added to this was the discovery of Jimmy Connolly, Georgetown's own past master of the mile run, turning a few fast laps on the Georgetown track in what he called early preparation for a return to the game and another shot at Nurmi, whom he engaged in several races in 1925 with second place always his share of the honors.

That Wide will be here for a period of about three weeks is certain, but about Nurmi's visit the only thing definite is the fact that he told Connolly in New York City last Saturday night he was anxious to get down this way as soon as possible in order to do his training for coming meets with the advantage of Washington climate, which although notorious for its quick changing, is generally warmer at this time of the year than New York climate.

Bill Dowding, former star broad jumper at Georgetown, is the authority for the report of the coming of Dodge. Dowding and Dodge are business associates. Dowding said yesterday he was in receipt of a letter from the Illinois satellite stating that the latter wanted to make the Hilltop his training headquarters for two weeks before going to New York to compete in the Millrose A. A. games which are scheduled for February 9.

Wide is in this country ostensibly to inspect the school systems. His tour of inspection will take him to Chicago, Gary, Ind., and Los Angeles, among other cities, after he leaves Washington. But while finding out just how the American public school student learns his writing and arithmetic, he will also do considerable running, and he is likely to face Nurmi in one or two races.

Connolly wants to compete against both of the foreign celebrities if his present training efforts get him back in his best physical condition. Right now he is trying to divorce about 15 pounds of weight. When he scales around 147, he said, he will be ready to go back into the game vigorously. Upon concluding yesterday's workout he registered 153, having dropped the tenth pound since inaugurating his training two weeks ago.

Running against Nurmi in 1925 Connolly pushed the Phantom Finn to a record-breaking victory in the mile. Nurmi set a new mark of 4:12 while the son of Georgetown was timed in 4:14 3-5. At that time Nurmi was shattering records with regularity and much to the dismay of American stars. The only record he did not break among those of the events in which he competed was the time for the two-thirds mile. Connolly still is the proud possessor of that, a 2:42 3-5 set in 1923 when the Hilltopper was representing his alma mater.

Dodge and Connolly formerly held A. A. U. and Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships. The former was the amateur 1,000-yard title holder and Connelly was twice intercollegiate mile champion.

Slattery-Delaney Fight Likely to Be Postponed

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight boxing champion, is ill with influenza at his home here. He has been sick since last Friday and his physician, intimated today that he probably would be too weak to fight Jimmy Slattery in Madison Square Gard'n on February 1.

Stribling Knocks Out Stone in Second Round

Durham, N. C., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Young Stribling, contender for the heavyweight championship, knocked out Tommy Stone, of Detroit, here tonight in the second round. The Georgian weighed 187 and his opponent 184. It was Stribling's 241st fight and his 111th knockout.

UNLIMITED GAMES SOUGHT.

Games with the leading unlimited teams having the use of gymnasiums are sought by the W. H. West Co. Quintet. Teams interested are asked to telephone Manager J. Hurley at Main 9900 before 5 p. m., and at North 5302-W after that hour.

Nats Sell Partridge To Birmingham Club

President Clark Griffith of the Nationals yesterday took time off from his efforts to sign up his players for the coming season to announce that he had sold Second-baseman "Jay" Partridge to the Birmingham Barons.

Partridge, who had a trial with the Brooklyn Robins last spring, and who hit .341 after being sent to the Atlanta Club, probably was cut loose by Manager Walter Johnson in view of the fact that he bears the reputation of being of the lethargic type, with little or no pep.

Carey to Succeed Rickard, Is Wall Street Report

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Wall street heard today that banking interests understood to control 40 per cent of the stock of the Madison Square Garden Corporation favored the selection of William F. Carey, new vice president, as successor to Tex Rickard in the presidency and general management of the organization. At the same time it was said no definite selection was to be made before next month.

Carey, head of W. F. Carey & Co., brokers, has been influential for the last few years in advising Rickard in the Garden's management.

Cosgrove Star In Silents' Victory

Gallaudet Wins From Cardinals for First Time Since 1919.

C. U. Ties Score Near End, But Foes Rally to Take Game.

PROVING that their sobriquet, the Silents, was wrong upon one occasion at least, the Gallaudet College Bisketers last night were the big noise in the Catholic University Gymnasium, where they defeated the Cardinal Quintet for the first time in ten years, by a score of 26 to 21.

The noise climaxed a series of rumblings that have been issuing from Gallaudet all season long. The Kendall Greenes went out to Brookland to demonstrate that their basket ball stock had rightfully became inflated and when the final whistle sounded there was little doubt in the minds of the spectators that the Big Blue Team has risen from the slams of mediocrity.

Led by the redoubtable pair of forwards, Del Cosgrove and Capt. Louis Dyer, Gallaudet hopped into the lead at the outset. Catholic tried valiantly to keep close to the visitors but could not find a way to stop the keen-eyed Gallaudet forwards, and only once did the Cardinals even enjoy an even footing, Amann's inspired playing making the score 18-18 in the late stages.

Though they were always trailing with that one exception, the Cardinals by no means allowed the winners easy moments. It was not until Cosgrove caged a running shot in the last 30 seconds of play that a victory for Gallaudet was assured.

The Cardinals again may have turned back Gallaudet's perrenial challenge had they been a little more painstaking in their shooting, for they missed more than a score of baskets because of hurrying their shots. Johnny Blumette was the lone home player whose point-making attempts seemed properly gauged and he earned high scoring honors for his club with a total of 13, the result of five field goals and three fouls.

Cosgrove, as usual, was the spearhead of Gallaudet's attack. He whipped the netting for a total of 16 points on seven fielders and a brace of fouls. Three of his floor goals, however, were aided and abetted by the well-timed passes of his running mate, Dyer. The latter although busy himself when in range of the basket, never failed to use an opportunity to give the leather to Cosgrove when he was in a better position to score.

In the first five minutes, Gallaudet made things look as if the fans were to witness a walkover, for 8 points were registered by the Silent marksmen before Blumette broke the ice for Catholic.

STRENGTH OF 1929 ATHLETICS IS PROBLEMATICAL

More Player Deals Are Likely

Orwall to Play First or Outfield, With Foxx on Third.

By PAUL A. WEADON
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, has added an outfielder and weeded out a lot of mediocre material, but the strength of the 1929 Athletics must remain somewhat of a puzzle to baseball fans until he looks over his team in spring training, or executes a few more trades to plug up supposedly weak spots.

The Athletics' most pressing need was an outfielder or two to replace Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, veterans who retired last fall, and Walter French, utility fly-chaser, who also went on the voluntary retired list. After a month's dickering with Cleveland, Manager Mack obtained the veteran Homer Summa at an undisclosed cash price, thus giving the Athletics four outfielders—Al Simmons, Bing Miller, Mule Haas and Summa.

It appears certain that Mack will negotiate another deal or two, if possible, before he is satisfied with the outfit that finished only a few games behind the champion New York Yankees last year.

Another new player signed is Joe O'Rourke, a Seattle youth, who will be third string catcher. He is a son of Tim O'Rourke, who played with Louisville while Mack was catching for Pittsburgh many years ago. Those released included Joe Bush, veteran pitcher; Joe Hauser, first baseman, and several youngsters.

Eddie Collins is back as captain and principal adviser, with Bill Gleason, Ira Thomas and Earl Mack as assistants to the lanky leader. The only significant announcement made by Manager Mack recently was that Ossie Orwall, slugging left-handed pitcher, no longer would be used in the box. Orwall probably will play first base or substitute in the outfield, his place on the pitching staff having been taken by Carroll Yerkes, nephew of Steve Yerkes, the old Red Sox second baseman.

Jimmy Foxx probably will replace Sammy Hale on third base, leaving Orwall and Dykes to fight it out for first. Either can be used in the outfield.

Outfielders—Simmons, Haas, Miller and Summa.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT B. COLLYER.

ARCADE. Get out the old kale sack and plant a couple meggs on the beezer of this gelding in the seventh race at the Fair Grounds. This is a real sleeper and unless I am sadly mistaken will pay 5 to 1 or better. Collyer's scientific ratings will show that the Archaic gelding stands out over this field. GOTHAM and GAY PARISIAN for what is left.

CATERPILLAR is the real sleeper the boys have dug up in the opening spasm. This maiden 3-year-old ran several fair races at Jefferson Park and belongs to a man who knows his groceries. DUSTY ANSWER displayed a couple of good efforts over a route. CAROLYN LEE was the medium of a plunge last time.

CHARLESETTA appears a standout in the second event which brings to the post a very bad lot of platers. TORCH, with a strong rider in the coupe, will be hard to beat in the third. HORO-

LOGE is best of the others and is re-
Bradley's BURNING SUN in the fourth
MAIDEN'S CHOICE and CALF ROPER probably will be fighting it out for the balance of the purse.
SCOTLAND is the clocker's special in the Rio Rita Handicap, fifth on the card. Old McTINKLE is likely to go well here. ENTHUSIASTIC EDWARD was the medium of an overnight plunge in the sixth. He beat True Boy in a gallop last time they met. HAUGHTY is the standout at Havana. Is in the third race, for 2-year-old fillies.

SCRAPPY FIVE PROMISED BY SAINTS.

THE St. John's Quintet might not win many games this year, but it is a safe contention that those it will play will be seriously contested. Such is the type of boy Coach "Zube" Sullivan has on his team this season.

"That never say die spirit is the whole being of my boys," says Sullivan, "and it is that what makes them give every opponent a fight. And their opponents will bear this out, too. My boys are probably the smallest in local school ranks, but they wade right in and play as if they were as big as some they do play."

A large collection of midgets went through their paces while Sullivan talked. They were most spirited in their actions which brought beams of smiles from Sullivan. "They're all just kids," remarked Zube, "but they'll bear watching before the season is over. And the nice part of it is I'll have them for the next two years, all with the exception of Lucas and Siegel, who are seniors. The rest are just second-year boys."

Galliher, Quigley, Norris and Cooper make up the list of players out for forward positions, with Atchison, Batch, Lally, Lucas and Hudson, guards. Slagle and Kilcourse are the tap-off men.

Believing that games and only games will round the team into form, Brother Edwards, faculty adviser, who has, with Sullivan, taken a great interest in the welfare of athletics at St. John's, has scheduled something like twenty games for the season with several more in the making. As was the custom last year, games with all of the high school group have been listed with two out-of-town clashes on tap, one with the La Salle Institute quintet, of Cumberland, and the other with the Leonard Hall Cadets at Leonardtown, Md.

The feature home games this year will be those in the prep school league. The St. John's fives first league tilt will be with Gonzaga in the opener on January 16, at the Boys Club.

"What we do this year will be a stepping stone to what we expect to do next year," is the way Coach Sullivan put it in regard to the team's schedule and prospects this season.

Following is the schedule as it has been compiled to date:

January 11, Catholic Univ. Freshmen (home); 16, Gonzaga (Boys' Club); 17, Business (away); 21, Eastern (away); 25, Leonard Hall (home); 30, Devitt (Boys' Club).

February 1, La Salle Institute (Cumberland, Md.); Gonzaga (Boys' Club); 8, Leonard Hall (away); 12, Western (pending); 15, Eastern (home); 18, George Mason (home); 20, Devitt (Boys' Club); 22, La Salle (home); 27, Strayers (home).

March 5, Western (pending); 6, Alexandria High (away); 11, Strayers (away); 14, Alexandria High (away).

McGonigle Easy Winner In Fair Grounds Feature

Fair Grounds, La., Jan. 9 (A.P.).—G. P. Knebelkamp added another race to his string when McGonigle led home a good field in the East End Purse, which featured the card here today. McGonigle is one of the most consistent horses now racing at the Fair Grounds. He paid $13.96 for the usual investment.

Harvard, a rapid breaker, jumped away to a fast lead and set the pace to the turn into the stretch, where he tired. McGonigle then took the lead and won nicely in hand. CHIP, showing improvement, took the place by a length and a half from Harvard.

Garden Lost $235,000 During Last Six Months

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Madison Square Garden suffered a net loss of nearly $235,000 for the six months ending November 30, published financial reports reveal. The actual loss was $233,121 compared with a net profit of $381,008 for the same period of 1927.

For the quarter ended November 30, the Garden showed a net profit of $75,327 compared to a net profit of $319,912 for the same period in 1927.

The losses can be attributed to the failure of the Tunney-Heeney and Mandell-McLarnin bouts to arouse the popular interest that the Dempsey-Tunney and Dempsey-Sharkey bouts did in 1927.

Canal Zone Swimmers Send Wreath to Funeral

Panama, Jan. 9, (A.P.).—The red, white and blue troupe of Canal Zone juvenile swimmers has cabled instructions to the United States for a wreath to be sent to George L. (Tex) Rickard's funeral. All activities at the Balboa swimming pool will be suspended and the flag flown at half-mast during the funeral hour in tribute to the memory of the troupe's host in June 1921 when the swimmers appeared at Madison Square Garden to open the swimming pool there. Rickard's kindness toward the children was recalled by H. J. Grieser, the swiming director, who said that the promoter never considered anything too good for them.

GALLAUDET SURPRISES CATHOLIC U. TOSSERS

with a flurry of its own that made the score at one time read 10-9 in Gallaudet's favor. The half ended with a score of 12-9.

Blumette scored all but 2 points for Catholic in the first chapter and at the start of the second session resumed the Cardinal offense with a neat twisting shot from the 15-foot line. At this junction Catholic made its one and only bid for victory as Champa, subbing for Amann, cashed in 2 points on a follow shot and Amann, who came back in the game in McCabe's place, hit the loop for two fouls and a single fielder.

The Gallaudet attack, which meanwhile had slowed down, once again burst into its heaviest fire and Cosgrove went on a one-man rampage that netted 8 points and a sealed victory.

AMERICAN U. FIVE BEATEN BY GETTYSBURG, 43-39

Rally in Last Period Is Decisive

Methodists in Lead, 33 to 30, With Ten Minutes to Go.

Special to The Washington Post.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—Coming from behind in a thrilling last quarter, the Gettysburg College Five defeated the American U. Team here tonight by a 43 to 39 score. The game was a real battle from start to finish, with first one team and then the other in front.

Gettysburg entered the final ten minutes of play trailing by a 33 to 30 count. Baskets by Gulian, McMillan and Cramer followed in succession to clinch the game for the local collegians.

Forrest Burgess star forward, and Lichleiter, center, played brilliantly for American U. until forced from the contest on personal fouls. Their loss weakened the invaders for the remainder of the game.

After the lead had changed hands repeatedly, the score was tied at 18 points at the half. Leon Schloss, high individual scorer for American of the game, led an attack which sent American U. out to a lead which dwindled in the last ten minutes of play.

Yale Five in Victory Over Princeton, 29-25

The victory avenged a 12-to-2 defeat handed the Elis by the Tigers last year.

Groves and Buren Draw In Paramount Feature

Kid Groves, Washington welterweight, fought a four-round draw with Paul Buren, of Texas, in the feature bout at the Paramount A. C., 426 Ninth street northwest, last night. Bear Phillips, Washington, won on a foul over K. O. Stewart, Merchant Marine.

The Simpson-Sherman bout failed to materialize, Simpson was unable to perform due to illness in his family. Members of the club will be offered another card next Wednesday night.

Washington and Lee Five Wins in Opener

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 9.—Washington and Lee opened its 1929 basket ball season here tonight by hanging up a 45 to 26 win over Hampden-Sidney College, also playing its first game of the year.

Both court combines had been forced to cancel prior battles because of the prevalence of influenza. Ragged play throughout by both teams dulled the contest somewhat, but temporary spurts of the Generals momentarily brought the crowd to its feet at intervals.

The Generals opened the firing when Captain Lowry rung two baskets after two minutes of play and with the invaders not reaching the basket until the game was ten minutes old, hung up sixten consecutive points.

The first half was all Washington and Lee, the period ending with the Blue five leading, 28 to 9. Lowry accounted for half of these first half markers, with Cox adding six points to lead the rest. Eleven Generals went into battle during the period, and the Tigers also sent in several reserves, the speed of play going hard for everybody in the opening game. Hampden-Sidney came back in the second half, and led by Capt. Smith center, hung up seven points before the Generals first team took the floor. Smith, looping the ball from all angles, pulled up in this period, and ended the game in an 18-all tie with Captain Lowry for high scoring honors.

Kane Leads C. U. Cubs In Win Over Business

In a rough and tumble game in which the contestants did much playing from various and amusing prone positions, the Catholic University Freshmen last night downed the Business High School Quintet by a score of 34 to 27 on the Catholics' floor. The game was a preliminary to the Varsity-Gallaudet engagement.

When holding their feet both sides appeared impressive in their shooting, Kane, of the winners, and Newman, of the scholastics, treating the crowd to fancy exhibitions of point-making. During the second half Kane seemed to undertake the subjection of the hard fighting business lads by himself, for he tallied from the field six times and made good on one foul try.

Business, by dint of some clever work on the part of Newman and the accuracy of the entire team in foul shooting, held the edge in the first half, which closed with a score of 14 to 10. For the first few minutes of the second half the Stenographers gave promise of continuing their winning ways, but Kane finally broke into the picture in a big way and the scholastics' efforts were to little avail.

A. A. U. Faces Athletic War As Northwestern Quits Body

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—What is expected to precipitate a war between the National Amateur Athletic Union and colleges and universities over control of amateur sports broke out today when Northwestern University announced it would henceforth schedule athletic meets with teams not subject to A. A. U. control.

The controversy between the A. A. U and Northwestern was caused when the former organization refused to sanction a swimming meet between Northwestern and the Chicago Athletic Association because the Purple team competed in meets unauthorized by the A. A. U last summer. The meet scheduled for tonight was promptly called off by the C. A. A.

Kenneth L. ("Tug") Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, countered by issuing a statement, which breaks off relations with the A. A. U. The statement reads:

"The men who have been disqualified by the A. A. U. competed in amateur swimming meets last summer with our permission. These were amateur meets, no admission was charged and all who competed were certified amateurs by some reputable and responsible organization.

"The A. A. U. has not charged that the men violated any amateur laws. Their only offense in the eyes of the A. A. U. is that they competed in meets not controlled by the A. A. U. Northwestern University does not acknowledge that the A. A. U. has supreme control over swimming and other sports, and in the future we will schedule our meets with colleges, universities and such clubs as are not subject to A. A. U. control."

Wilson hinted he would take up the matter with Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Big Ten, and that the other members of the conference and other colleges in the Middle West may dissolve relationships with the A. A. U.

Maj. Griffith has been a bitter opponent of A. A. U. methods, contending the organization was trying to "dominate all college sports."

Avery Brundage, head fo the Central A. A. U. said that, while he regretted Wilson's statement, a governing body for amateur sports was necessary for its growth and respect.

"We are for anybody that boosts amateur sport," Brundage said, "but we do think they should all come under nationally accepted rules and regulations as to amateur standing."

U. S. Seeks Davis, Wightman Cups; "Illiteracy" Rule to Be Tightened

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Members of future American Davis Cup or Wightman Cup teams would be prohibited from writing tennis articles for newspapers and magazines or giving interviews, if the recommendation of the executive committee is approved at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in Boston, February 8-9.

The recommendation, growing out of the experience with Big Bill Tilden prior to the Davis Cup challenge round last summer, is aimed at removing any possibility of propriety or amateur rule violation in the journalistic activities of members of international teams.

Challenges have been filed by the United States for both the Davis Cup and Wightman Cup matches this year. The Davis Cup challenge to France provides for preliminary competition in the American zone. The Wightman Cup matches with England, for women, will be played here.

Possibility of splitting the American zone into North and South American subdivisions is under consideration by the tennis associations of Argentina, Australia, Canada and Japan, as well as the United States.

Representatives of France, England and the United States will meet in London to consider revision of the present regulations governing the date and place of the interzone Davis Cup tie. It is the proposal of the United States that if the winners can not agree between themselves, the event be held in the country of the Davis Cup championship nation.

Samuel H. Collum, of Philadelphia, has been nominated for a second term as president of the U. S. L. T. A. The other nominations are Louis B. Bailey, New York, for vice president; James C. Stewart, Chicago, for secretary, and Louis J. Carruthers, New York, for treasurer.

Anacostia Team Plays National Circle Five

The Anacostia Eagles will swing into action tomorrow night against the National Circles in the Congress Heights Auditorium at 8 o'clock. In a preliminary, the French Five will meet an opponent yet to be named.

The Circles are undefeated to date in District games. The Anacostians will have Fitzgerald, Dalglish, Shields, Hanback, Clark, Mader and Brown available for duty. Sunday, the Eagles meet the J. C. C. Five on the latters's court.

Rodgers Tops Golfers In Los Angeles Open

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Johnny Rodgers, tall Denver professional, turned in a brilliant 69 on the Sunset Fields course here today to lead the field of some 300 amateurs and professionals when the half way mark of the 36-holes of qualifying play for the $10,000 Los Angeles open was reached.

Next best score was 71, gotten by Rial Rolfe, Chicago amateur; John Junor, of Portland, Oreg., and Jimmy Duncan, of Los Angeles. Qualifying took place on six courses in this section.

Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J., professional, and Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, turned in the next best scores for the eighteen-hole mark, each getting a 72. Golden was making his rounds over the Bel-Air Country Club course, while Dutra played over the Lakeside Golf Club layout.

Charles Guest, the debonair pro from the Tam o'Shanter Club, Detroit, turned in a pretty 73 for his morning trip over the Rancho Country Club course. Francis Gallett, of Wauwautosa, Wis., using the Bel-Air course, and Grant Halstead, of Pasadena, Calif., at Lakeside, also had 73's. Other scores for the eighteen holes: Tom Rakietta, Youngstown, Ohio, 74; Ben Richter, St. Louis, 74; Craig York, 75; Clark Morse, St. Louis, 76; Ralph Miner, New Bern, N. C., 76; Joe Kirkwood, Australia, 76; Paul Runyan, Little Rock, Ark., 80, and Sam Gayer, Chicago, 85.

Greenleaf Increases His Lead Over Hoppe

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, former pocket billiard champion, again won the two blocks today from Willie Hoppe, one-time balkline ruler, in their special handicap pocket billiard match. Greenleaf increased his total to 755 points, against 242 for Hoppe, at the end of the sixth block. Greenleaf is playing for 1,500 points to Hoppe's 1,200.

The pocket billiard expert took this afternoon's block by the one-sided score of 126 to 26 in 7 innings, and equaled the feat tonight by running up 130 points in 4 innings, while Hoppe got only 27. In tonight's block Greenleaf had a high run of 108 points. His best in the afternoon was 34, while Hoppe's high mark was 14.

Australian Starting Gate May Get Trial at Belmont

New York, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—A trial of the Australian starting gate is planned for the spring meeting at Belmont Park by Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association. Mr. Widener saw the gate in use in France and believes it will be a big improvement over the flimsy barrier now in use. It is so heavy that it is almost impossible for a horse to break through.

This decision is disappointing to some horsemen who saw the stall system in use at Bowie last November and hoped it would get a trial on New York tracks.

EAGLES DOWN SOLDIERS.

Skinners' Eagles last night had little trouble in disposing of the Fort Washington tossers in the Congress Heights Gym. The final score was 41 to 19, with Streeks high gun for the winners. He was credited with 12 points, just 2 more than Bennie made.

Next Sunday on the same floor at 3 p. m., the Frederick team will be met.

NAVY DOWNS DUKE FIVE, 49 TO 38

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 9.—Holding a slight margin in each half, Navy Academy cagers today exhibited classy form to win the annual court setto from the Duke University Blue Devils. The score was 49 to 38, Navy gaining a 5-point margin in the first half and six in the second.

Play was speedy and sensational shots, rifle passing and fine spirit shown over the entire route, kept play from becoming too rough, although spills were frequent as players on both sides raced over the court, due to the Southerners continued threat to overcome the Tar lead, which was small almost to the last five minutes of action, when the visitors slowed down somewhat.

It was only by superior teamwork that showed a great assortment of plays and better timed passing that won for the local quint. The lads coached by John M. Wilson appeared to have something to fall back upon every tme the Blue Devils, led by their great guard, Bill Werber, staged a rally that thrice evened, though they never succeeded in taking lead honors from the Midshipmen.

Navy led 20 to 15 at half time. In the first five minutes of play pass was too fast to be accurate and both sides gained from intercepted tosses. Duke's defense was well-nigh impregnable in this period, Colestock, Tar center, being the only player to successfully reach the net from close range.

The others did their bombardment from a distance, all the regulars contributing at least one field goal. After Rogers came into the game for Duke in place of the midget Councillor, who appeared a mere infant alongside the stalwart Lloyd, Duke did considerably better.

Jankowskie, who was Duke's great full back on the gridiron, sank a shot from the middle of the floor to open the second session. Duke had come out of the rest period with the idea of trying more long tosses. Navy, on the other hand, passed better and carried the ball under the irons. Colestock and little Jimmie Farrin took prominent parts in the assault.

Capt. Clair Miller, who had been held well in check throughout most of the game, crashed through in the final eight minutes and looped four field goals, also netted a toss from the penalty strip. Farrin contributed by slinking heaves from difficult angles, which made the already enthused crowd rise to its feet in approval in the closing combination.

Individual honors were shared by Colestock, Navy pivot man, and Werber, visiting guard. Navy played a great game to win and the mentors are pleased, considering that there has been a three weeks' lay off due to the Yuletide vacation, which ended but a week ago.

VA. TO PLAY DUKE FIVE TONIGHT

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 9. (A.P.).—Virginia's basketball team meets Duke University tomorrow night and, before the Blue Devils come to the Memorial Gymnasium, the Cavaliers hope to rectify the mistakes that cost them the opening game of the season, lost to Randolph-Macon College last Saturday.

Only two letter men of last year, Captain Robert Millen, center, and Hartwell Harrison, forward, were in the first contest. Archer Jones, a second forward who won his "V" last winter, was on hand to get into the game, but formalities in connection with his eligibility had not been completed and he was unable to play.

"Pop" Lannigan, the Cavalier coach, does not have a very large squad at his disposal. Jack Hyde, Andy Merle, and David Stouder are the most promising second-string forwards, while Manny Vogel, Jack Roberts, Harry Flippin, Gordon Peyton and Gus Kaminer are the guard candidates. Save Captain Millen, there is no center of ability on the squad.

If the play in the opening game can be taken as an indication, Virginia appears doomed to a bad season on the courts this winter. Last year the Cavaliers were undefeated in the state in basketball, but this record was marred in the initial contest by the Randolph-Macon five.

Duke tomorrow night and Johns Hopkins on Saturday are the teams to be faced by Virginia this week. Last ... downed both these teams, winning 44 to 34 from the ... quint and 40 to 25 from the Baltimore boys.

January 10, Duke, at home; 12, Johns Hopkins, at home; 15, Maryland, at home; 19, Washington and Lee, in Lexington; 23, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, in Blacksburg; 26, Virginia Military Institute, at home; 28, North Carolina State, in Raleigh; 29, North Carolina State, in Chapel Hill.

February 1, Maryland, in College Park; 2, Catholic University, in Washington; 5, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, at home; 7, North Carolina, at home; 12, West Virginia, at home; 13, Davidson, at home; 19, Marshall College, at home; 20, Virginia Military Institute, at Lexington; 26, Washington and Lee, at home.

Jones Counting on Five Discharged Cadets for Next Season.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the United States Military Academy here, announced yesterday that, included in the 70 cadets just honorably discharged for academic deficiencies, were a number of excellent athletes whose loss will be severely felt on all the corps athletic squads. Football will particularly suffer as Capt. "Biff" Jones, head coach, was hoping to obtain from the plebe class replacements for the fourteen regular players he will lose through graduation next June, such regulars as Sprague, Nave, Hall, Hammack, Allan and Elias all being due to don the gold bars of a second lieutenant.

Five outstanding members of the plebe class whose football records prior to entering the Military Academy were excellent and whom the coaches expected to be of material help in filling the vacancies are among those quitting the academy. They are J. K. McKy, A. N. Bildeau, J. F. Jansa, L. J. Rooney and W. O. Salter.

Maj. Fleming and Capt. Jones both hope that these men will take advantage of the law which permits cadets found deficient in one subject to be reexamined within 60 days. If they pass this test, they will be readmitted to West Point.

McKy, who is 6 feet 3¼ inches tall and weighs 215 pounds, played tackle and full back at Hill Military Academy. Jansa, another husky lineman weighing 220 pounds and 6 feet 1¼ inches tall, played a year at Schriener Institute, making his letter. His positions were guard, tackle, center and full back. Bildeau was a guard or tackle at Stevens High School in New Hampshire. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. These three linemen would have been of great value in filling vacancies left by Sprague, tackle; Hammack, guard, and Hall, center.

Prospective back field replacements were Rooney, who as a back on St. Mary's College, was responsible for the defeat of Stanford, and Salter, who played quarter back on Hendrix College for four years, making his letter each year and being rated in athletic handbooks as an outstanding quarter back.

Maj. Fleming explained that none of these men played on the plebe team this year because of academic deficiencies. The eligibility system at West Point calls for weekly grading and cadets below the required standards are barred from all athletics except those of a compulsory character which are part of the physical training course. Maj. Fleming stated that he knew of no other educational institution in the country with academic eligibility standards as high as those of the Military Academy.

Pirates Give Barnhart In Deal for Pitcher

Pittsburgh, Penna., Jan. 9 (U.P.).—Steve Swetonic, a product of the Pittsburgh sandlots and a star of the mound squad of the Indianapolis Club of the American Association last season, has been secured by the Pittsburgh National League Club, it was announced tonight.

Clyde Barnhart, veteran outfielder, a pitcher to be delivered later and an unstated amount of cash were given in exchange for the Hoosier hurler.

Swetonic is 25 and bats and throws right-handed. He won 19 games and lost 8 for Indianapolis last year and was the hero of the junior world series, which Indianapolis won from Rochester by anexing five out of six games. Steve won three of them.

Virginia U. Student Body Votes to Release Neale

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The athletic council of the University of Virginia tonight cast its formal vote to release Earle Neal, head football and baseball coach at the university since 1923, from his contract, which was to have expired in 1930, in order that he may accept a position as head coach and assistant manager of the St. Louis Cardinals Baseball Club.

The entire question of a coach for the university's football team for 1929 was referred to the committee on coaching of the council. This committee will consider the request of Coach Neale that he be allowed to return to take charge of the football team at the end of the major league baseball season. At the same time this committee is to consider other men available for the position. It will report at a later meeting of the athletic council for final action.

Harness, Running Races On West Va. Fair Card

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The West Virginia State Fair of 1929 will have a mixed program of harness and running races, the "trots" being included on the speed card for the first time since the memorable year of 1924, when the famous "Pop" Geers drove his last race on the local track. Return to the mixed program was definitely decided upon at a meeting of the speed committee.

In restoring the light harness horse to his former position on the speed program, the management of the fair is responding to a popular demand that has arisen in the past year, because of the greatly increased interest in standard bred racing resulting from the profound changes in rules that have been made and which vastly improve this type of racing.

The opening, Saturday, August 31, and Labor Day will be devoted exclusively to running races. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will each offer the mixed program of harness and running events, at least three of each being carded for each of the four days. One steeplechase race is planned on each day of the mixed program. This will be a new feature of the fair speed card. It is expected that the A. A. A. will feature the closing day of the fair, Saturday, September 7.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Answered by JOCK HUTCHISON.

Former British Open Champion and Internationally Known Golf Professional.

Since the push shot is played to, rather than through the ball, the impact comes on the down stroke or from above the ball and as a consequence turf is taken when making this shot. As a matter of fact, the actual taking of the turf does not come at the moment of impact. The club head engages the turf after the ball is hit, and at a point in front of the spot where it lay. Taking turf in a push shot is the result of the manner in which the stroke is played rather than any cause.

A. A. U. POLICY RAPPED BY ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Describing as "unfair to our American athletes" the plan of Paavo Nurmi to remain indefinitely in this country, training for the 1932 Olympics, Charles L. Ornstein, of Washington, D. C., a member of the board of governors of the Amateur Athletic Union, today challenged the right of the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union to register the famous Finnish runner without authority from the national body.

Ornstein, in a telegram to Daniel J. Perris, national secretary, questioned the policy as well as the authority of local officials in registering Nurmi under the same conditions as an American athlete.

Perris explained that under international athletic law, athletes resident for a month or more in a foreign country automatically come under the jurisdiction of the national governing body of that country.

He asserted the registration of Nurmi was referred to the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union because Nurmi now resides in New York and is subject, therefore, to local jurisdiction. Ferris said he considered proper action had been taken and would notify Ornstein to this effect.

Ornstein criticized conditions which have permitted Willie Ritola, another Finnish star, to live and compete in the United States, but represent his native country in the Olympics, as he did in 1924 and 1928. He voiced objection to Nurmi following upon a similar course.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

The Parent Counselor.

A Girl's Room.

And how should such a room be furnished and arranged? To get the ball rolling I will give you my ideas and ask those of you who have arranged a room to tell me how you did it.

It must not be too difficult to care for. Time is something the modern Miss never has enough of (if I may end a sentence with a preposition). Both the artificial and natural light should be arranged so as not to injure the eyes when studying or reading.

How about your old bed? Were you allowed to enamel it for your newly arranged room? I hope so. Did you remove the upper part of the old bureau and hang the mirror separately? That's a good idea. Did you and the old carpet have a tug-of-war? Who (or which) won? Have you thought about painting the floor and using rugs? Or the old carpet without the rugs? Or linoleum? And the chintz curtains? Did dad get excited when the painter and paperhanger came to refinish the walls to afford a proper background? And did the heavens fall when you chucked out those chill-producing family heirlooms?

Did you sulk and tear your bob when denied some piece of furniture you wanted? Instead I hope you painted or enameled or somehow revised some old piece of furniture into the piece you wanted. And how about that dressing table? A couple of boxes, painted and attractively fixed with dainty cretonne with perhaps a glass top make an artistic dressing table.

Just how did you apply your school art work in harmonizing colors for attractiveness? Wasn't it fun to actually use what you learned in school in selecting and hanging pictures, arranging toilet articles and photographs?

By the way, what did you do with that class banner whose colors clashed with the rest of the room? Did you pick up a second-hand bookcase, enamel it, put a curtain in front of it and place it conveniently for leisure reading and home study? How about that reading corner with the old morris chair covered with cretonne? The table with the lamp? The desk?

Girls, this is an opportunity to express yourself in writing by telling us how you expressed yourself in arranging and furnishing your room.

I'm the Western Hemisphere's champion believer in self-expression. Tell me about the previous condition of your room, the cooperation from your parents, the things you bought, made over, repaired or made yourself.

Tell us how much you like your room now and how much it has influenced your life. Send this department a letter which will make us want to see the room and the girl to whom it belongs.

Are you able to study better in this room? Are you able to think better thoughts? Do you enter it with a feeling of relief? Do you leave it with a feeling of personal growth and satisfaction? These are the tests of a girl's own room.

Reunions of Blue And Gray Urged

Only 4 Out of 4,000 Veterans Oppose Plan Howard, of Nebraska, Says.

Representative Howard, Democrat, of Nebraska, yesterday renewed his fight to bring the veterans of the Union and Confederate armies together here in a joint reunion.

Howard said he had received 4,000 letters from veterans who were in favor of the reunion, and only four from veterans opposed to it. Two Maryland veterans, Howard said, declared they would not march down Pennsylvania Avenue with a "damned Yankee," while two others in Maine had substantially the same thing to say about marching with a "rebel."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

In the good old days which the oldsters mourn and so vainly sigh to see,
The good old days which they boast about, the days that used to be,
The coal was stored in a shed outside, and oh, brother, wasn't it grand

In the good old days, the good old days that our parents talk about
Oh, brother of mine, can you recall the ashes we carried out?
And the jolly times that we used to have after many a zero night

Oh, those were the days, say the old folks now, "the good old days" of yore,
But I think of the cares which we need to know and I'm glad that they are no more.

THIS MORNING TOM CARR FACES THE ORDEAL OF HIS LIFE— WITH STERN AND UNBENDING JUDGE BLAST ON THE BENCH—
AND ARRAYED AGAINST HIM THE CRUEL AND STONE LIKE VISAGE OF PROSECUTING ATTORNEY TRI HARD—
HEAR YE! HEAR YE! HEAR YE! THE COURT IS NOW CONVENED—
THE STATE VERSUS TOM CARR
AS THE CURIOUS THRONG SURGES INTO THE COURT ROOM FOR WHAT TO THEM IS A HOLIDAY— TOM CARR— THE CENTRAL FIGURE— IS OBLIVIOUS TO THE CRUEL STARES— AS HIS EYE IS GLUED TOWARD THE DOOR— WATCHING— WATCHING— FOR A FACE THAT FAILS TO APPEAR—
I SHUDDER WHEN I THINK OF WHAT MARY ESCAPED— THE LAW CANNOT BE TOO SEVERE IN DEALING WITH SUCH CHARACTERS—
GET A LOOK AT HIS ATTORNEY
POOR TOM CARR— I CAN'T HELP BUT PITY HIM— HE LOOKS SO ALONE SITTING THERE— I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT HE TOOK THE MONEY—

WALT, I'VE JUST BEEN THINKING— IF YOUR RUBBER KEYHOLE STOCK IS DOING SO WELL WE DO NEED A NEW DINING ROOM OUTFIT. AND I OUGHT TO HAVE ANOTHER DRESSING TABLE.
BUT PHYLLIS, I HAVEN'T GOT A CENT IN CASH YET.
I KNOW, BUT YOU WILL. I'M GOING TO SHOP AROUND AND SEE WHAT WE WILL WANT WHEN YOU DO SELL.
WHAT TO DO WITH THE MONEY ISN'T WORRYING ME NEARLY AS MUCH AS SELLING AT THE RIGHT TIME.
IF I WERE YOU I'D HOLD ON UNTIL IT GETS AS HIGH AS IT IS GOING TO GO— THEN SELL. I CAN WAIT THAT LONG.
THAT'S FINE ADVICE, PHYLLIS. IN FACT I'VE BEEN THINKING OF DOING THAT VERY THING MYSELF.

AMENDMENT IN DEFINING BUILDING HEIGHTS WAITS

For eight hours yesterday the District Zoning Commission heard the pros and cons of thirteen proposed changes in zoning of properties discussed at a public hearing in the board room in the District Building.

No decisions were reached on any of the questions before the commission, the usual executive session following the hearing being abandoned because the hearing itself continued until nearly 6 o'clock.

An amendment to present definitions of building heights, eliminating allowances for increased heights of buildings on terraces, was held over to be considered at a public hearing at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The commission will meet in executive session following this hearing to consider the testimony.

A compromise may develop from the proposal to change from A to A restricted area the territory to be bounded by Massachusetts avenue, University avenue, Indian lane, Rockwood parkway, Reservoir Grounds and Western avenue. The property is owned by W. C. and A. N. Miller, who oppose the change, which was initiated by the commission at the suggestion, it was said, of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Recalls Previous Hearing.

Roger Whiteford, attorney for the Millers, protested that the commission had considered the zoning of the area for two full days two years ago and it was only after it had been designated A area that his clients had purchased the land, approximately 265 acres in extent. Whiteford said the Millers are developing the property under greater restrictions than the zoning commission could enforce under the law, but he could not tell what the developments might be ten years from now, and to further restrict its use would reduce the property's market value.

"There must be some final settlement of zoning questions," Whiteford protested. He questioned the authority of the commission to initiate a change.

Commissioner Sidney Taliaferro challenged that statement. Whiteford replied that changing conditions might make necessary different zoning of the same property, but insisted there had been no change in conditions in the neighborhood under discussion.

Architect Opposes Change.

Louis Justement, an architect, with offices at 1116 Vermont avenue northwest, told the commission there was but little area left in the Northwest section suitable for apartments and urged that the area under consideration, above all others, should not be changed. Alvin Walker, president of the Loughboro Development Corporation, which sold the land to the Millers, also objected to the increased restriction.

Mrs. Edward P. Bartlett, 4420 Forty-ninth street northwest; Mrs. R. L. Thomas, 5026 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Thomas E. Lodge, president of the American University Park Citizens Association, urged that the section of Massachusetts avenue involved be zoned A restricted. They had no special interest in the remainder of the area, saying they were satisfied with the Miller development plans. The Millers agreed to change to A restricted a number of lots in one part of the area.

Mrs. S. N. Moore, 2716 Wisconsin avenue, owner of an apartment house at that address, protested against a proposal urged by John M. Donn, for Col. Robert N. Harper, president of the District National Bank, to change the zoning of the rear part of two lots at 2700 Wisconsin avenue. The change, she said, would necessitate opening an alley, part of which must be taken from the rear of her ground. Besides, she said, another apartment was not needed in the neighborhood because hers was not filled.

Opposed by Mount Alto Hospital.

V. A. Aimone, medical officer in charge of Mount Alto Hospital, told the commission he had been directed by the director of the Veterans Bureau to oppose the change.

Frederick J. Rice told the commission he was confronted with a situation which, unless the zoning of his property was changed, amounted to confiscation. He owns the lots on which the Park Theater is built on Fourteenth street, between Buchanan and Crittenden streets, northwest. He wants the rear portion of his property, now zoned residential, although fronting on an alley, changed to commercial to permit construction of a market. The theater has failed, he said, and he is forbidden by law to build residences on an alley.

Edgar B. Henderson, president of the Piney Branch Citizens Association, opposed the change, and Rice told the commission that if the association wanted to buy the property for the kind of development it thought it should have he would sell it at a fair figure. Several others opposed the change.

Increase in the height limit of the property on the west side of Thirteenth street between Longfellow and Madison streets northwest, and on the north side of Longfellow street between Thirteenth street and Georgia avenue, was advocated by William McK. Clayton and Andrew Wilson, trustees of the old White estate. The owners want to sell the property for an apartment site, but said they could not do so because of the height restriction. Residents of the neighborhood protested strenuously and at length.

District Traffic Acts May Be Used as Models

That the District of Columbia traffic acts may become the model for similar acts in cities throughout the country was presaged yesterday when M. O. Eldridge, assistant traffic director, sent copies of the local regulations to Denver, Colo. to be used there in a movement for compulsory eyesight tests for drivers.

The motor vision commission of the American Optometric Association is sponsoring this movement. Eldridge sent the copies of the District regulations to Dr. Harry B. Waters, of Denver, who is championing the movement there. Eldridge made a talk before the Optometric Association about a year ago in which he said the value of the District acts is based upon the simplicity of the language involved. They required that an applicant for a permit must be "physically qualified" to operate a motor vehicle and this includes the vision test.

NEW YORK TO SEND HOST TO INAUGURAL

50,000 Visitors Will Come to City, Hoover-Curtis Club Head Says.

MEDALS WILL BE CAST

New York will furnish one of the largest blocs of visitors for the inauguration March 4, it was announced at headquarters here yesterday, after Matthew Quay Glaser, president of the Hoover-Curtis Club of New York, said the Empire State will be represented by at least 50,000 persons.

Following Mr. Hoover's approval Tuesday of a parade 4 miles long that will take two hours to pass a given point, the general inaugural committee proceeded yesterday, under the direction of Col. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman, to go ahead with his plans.

Expenses of the celebration attendant to the inauguration will be, in part, defrayed, it was announced, by the sale of elaborate souvenir medals bearing likenesses of Herbert Hoover, President-elect, and Charles Curtis, Vice President-elect. The price of the medals, intended to be lasting mementoes of the inaugural, will be $2 or $3.

Gold medals, bearing imprints of them, with the date and an appropriate inscription, are to be presented to Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis. Arrangements for the striking of the medals are being made by the committee on medals and badges, Julius Garfinekel, chairman.

Numerous questions of detail regarding the inauguration still are to be settled. The size and location of the reviewing stands, for instance, must be determined. The committee expects to obtain considerable revenue to help defray expenses from the sale of seats in these stands at prices ranging from $5 to $7.

One thousand of the 50,000 visitors expected from New York will come under the classification of official, according to Mr. Glaser. The New York Hoover-Curtis Club was one of the first to be organized during the campaign. Its official delegates will wear, it was said, "five gallon" Western hats. The club is also cooperating in arrangements for the charity ball the evening of March 4.

Pair Sent to Jail As Weapon Carriers

Possession of Dirk Brings Year's Term; Gun Owner Gets Six Months.

Francis Joseph Trine, 30 years old, was given a year in jail by Judge Gus A. Schuldt for possessing a dirk knife. Policeman G. E. Perry, of the Sixth Precinct, declared he found Trine asleep on the top floor of the International Bank Building, Fifth and H streets northwest, Sunday night. Several reports of robberies in the bank building have been made recently the policeman said, and the arrest was made during an inspection of the building.

Six months in jail was imposed on Fred Wright, colored, by Judge Ralph Given for carrying a pistol. Wright was arrested in an establishment at 2024 Fourteenth street northwest by Patrolman O. E. Allen, who raided the place to arrest two colored men wanted by North Carolina authorities.

Man Found in Cell Nearly Strangled

Lying on his bunk in the First Precinct station cell with a silk scarf twisted tightly about his throat, Donald Edward Yonkers, 24 years old, of Takoma Park, Md., was saved from death yesterday morning by police who were attracted by his heavy breathing.

While F. L. Magruder ran into the cell and removed the scarf from around Yonker's throat, H. E. Davis summoned the rescue squad, and the Emergency Hospital ambulance. Dr. I. Rutkoski, of Emergency, gave his first-aid treatment and pronounced him out of danger.

Yonkers was being held on a charge of joy riding. He was later taken to Police Court for a hearing. Judge Gus Schuldt held him under a $2,000 bond for the action of the grand jury. Yonkers is alleged to have taken a car owned by Walter Rudding, of Ballston, Va., and to have gone joy riding.

Sentenced to Quit His Father's Home

A sentence to move from his father's home was passed on Melvin Knott, 24 years old, a truck driver, by Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday in Police Court after he was convicted of threatening his father.

Robert W. Knott, the father, testified the defendant was the eldest and most unruly of his ten children, nine of whom are sons. Constant drinking caused the son to lose employment and was a source of continued worry to him, the father declared. Monday night, while he was sick in bed, his son came home intoxicated and fell asleep in the hallway outside of his room, according to the parent, and upon awakening came into his room and threatened to "rob me, kill me and throw me out in the street."

Leaving his sick bed, the father summoned a policeman and later swore a warrant against his son. The son defended himself with the declaration that the father had spread a story attacking his mother's character to neighbors and he remonstrated with him. The son admitted he was married and although out of work, made his home with his father. Judge Schuldt referred the case to probation authorities after decreeing the son should move from his father's home.

Auto Theft Brings 10 Years; Owner Fined

A sentence of ten years in the penitentiary was imposed on Louis Burrs, colored, by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy yesterday in criminal division of the District Supreme Court following his conviction of stealing an automobile.

The court imposed a fine of $25 on Leo P. Warren, of 2551 Seventeenth street northwest, owner of the car and complaining witness in the case, for failure to appear in court on Tuesday when the case was originally scheduled. The automobile was stolen last September 10 and Burrs was arrested in Wilmington, Del. Testimony revealed that Burr had a criminal record dating back to 1905. Assistant District Attorney Walter M. Shea conducted the prosecution against the negro and asked for the contempt citation against Warren.

BOY BICYCLE RIDER FALLS UNDER TRUCK

BOTH LEGS FRACTURED

John Gussio, 14 years old, 4703 Georgia avenue northwest, a student at Macfarland Junior High School, was thrown beneath a 5-ton truck late yesterday afternoon, when the wheel of a bicycle on which he was riding snagged in the street car track at Georgia avenue and Crittenden street northwest.

The boy was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, where he was given first-aid treatment for internal injuries and fractures of both legs. He was later transferred to Emergency Hospital. A slight improvement was noticed in his condition after an operation last night, although physicians said his condition still is grave.

John had just returned home from school, and was on his way to deliver newspapers on his route. He had borrowed the bicycle from a friend to make his deliveries, as his mother, Mrs. Emma Gussio, fearing that he would be injured, refused to let him have one for Christmas.

Both John and the truck, driven by John Henry Sherrill, colored, 28 years old, 2108 Thirteenth street northwest, were going north on Georgia avenue. At the intersection of Crittenden street the boy is said to have tried to run his bicycle past the truck. The bicycle was demolished.

A passerby rushed him to the hospital. Police placed Sherrill under arrest, pending the outcome of the boy's injuries. The boy has three sisters and three brothers.

Beyond Libel Law, Woman Chief Says

Declaring she cannot be held accountable in a damage suit for acts performed in the course of her official duty, Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, of the Police Women's Bureau, yesterday filed answer in the District Supreme Court to the recent $100,000 libel suit instituted against her by Miss Ethel Clawans.

Miss Clawans charged that she was unlawfully committed to Gallinger Hospital by Lieut. Van Winkle when arrested recently in connection with bad check accusations. The police official libeled her in a memorandum to the hospital officials, according to Miss Clawans, accusing her of being suspected of arson, forgery and other delinquencies.

Through Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and his assistant, Edward M. Welliver, Mrs. Van Winkle declared the endorsement sent by her in committing the woman to the hospital was privileged by law, and cannot be made the foundation of action for damages.

N., retired, declared yesterday at a meeting of the Washington committee of the American Merchant Marine Library Association held at the residence of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, 2311 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Mrs. Henry Howard, president of the association, in outlining the work of the organization, said the association expected to obtain 10,000 books during the present campaign being conducted here through the book boxes, which have been placed in hotels, clubs and at the Union Station, to receive contributions of reading material for the seamen.

Ban Is Put on Appointment, "Just Because She's Woman," by Resolution.

WELL-EQUIPPED MEN FAVORED BY BOARD

That no woman should be appointed to a position of Federal trust just because she is a woman, is the position taken yesterday by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in resolutions adopted by the board of directors, which met at 1734 N street northwest.

Although the women of the country exercised the ballot in overwhelming numbers in the November presidential elections, the board adopted the policy that "unless a woman under consideration for appointment to a position of Federal trust is as well fitted or better fitted for the position than any man to whom it might be offered, in justice to all womanhood we feel the appointment should be passed to the person most efficient for the definite position."

Woman's Police Bill Favored.

Recommendations for concerted action on the part of Federation members in favor of the Woman's police bill, and the establishment by Congress of a woman's bureau in the District of Columbia, are included in the report of Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, chairman of the public welfare committee, which will be presented at the meeting this morning.

Dr. Olin Templin, member of the faculty of the University of Kansas, in an address last night, urged Federation members to get behind the movement to revive plans inaugurated by George Washington for the establishment of a national university in the National Capital.

Dr. Templin said Washington made a bequest of $25,000 for the project. This gift, plus accumulated interest, would now total approximately $2,000,000, he said. Several bills have been introduced in Congress to have this fund used as a building fund, but all have been pigeonholed, Dr. Templin said.

Received by Coolidges.

Dr. Mary C. Burch, assistant chairman of the department of education of the federation, speaking at the afternoon session, outlined plans for the education work of the federation for 1929-1930. She urged a curriculum study in each community, which would result in better educational facilities, including school programs fitted to the needs of each child.

President and Mrs. Coolidge received members of the board of directors, representing approximately 3,000,000 club women in the executive offices at the White House yesterday afternoon. The members of the board were presented by Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Maryland, national president.

Dry Raid Assault Charge Is Dropped

Deeming evidence in an alleged assault accusation against Martin Nakshim, manager of the Madrillon Restaurant, which grew out of a riot between police and patrons of the restaurant on New Year's Eve, was insufficient to carry the case into court, Assistant District Attorney Joseph C. Bruce yesterday dropped the charge in Police Court.

Policeman John R. LeFoe, who, with several other policemen, were conducting a "watch party" of their own at the restaurant, charged the manager assaulted him with a blackjack when he attempted to arerst a patron, who, according to LeFoe, was pouring what appeared to be liquor into a glass of ginger ale.

Nakshim declared LeFoe and several others were fighting and he attempted to separate them. When the policeman revealed his identity, the manager declared, he withdrew from the proceedings. Bruce conferred with T. G. Walsh, counsel for the manager, before dropping the charge.

7 WOMEN, OVERCOME BY GAS, RECOVERING

FIREMEN ARE AFFECTED

The seven women, who were overcome yesterday morning by chlorine gas that spread through the four-story plant of the Tolman Laundry, Sixth and C streets, after a valve on a bleaching machine had blown off, were recovering rapidly last night at the hospitals where they were taken, doctors reported.

The other employes of the plant, numbering about 200, were driven to the roof of the laundry until the Fire Rescue Squad could arrive and remove the tank containing the gas. The coolness of A. T. Du Buskey, foreman, averted a panic among the women employes when they attempted to rush from the building.

Mrs. Mildred Beavers, 23, 908½ G street southwest; Mrs. Margaret Theoskos, 21, 409 Second street northwest; Miss Grace Studds, 17, 3217 M street northwest; Effie Ranson, colored, 30, 108 Virginia avenue southwest, and Altee Bennett, colored, 35, 222 D street northwest, were taken to Emergency Hospital.

Alberta Turner, colored, 24, 240 K street southwest, and Annie Minor, 39, 1314 Fifth street northwest, were taken to Casualty Hospital. Nearly all will have recovered sufficiently by today to return home, it was said.

Clyde Hungerford, 1806 Potomac avenue southeast, engineer, had started to turn on the gas which is used in bleaching clothing when the valve blew off. He then attempted to stop the outflow of the gas with his hand, but was unsuccessful.

Rushing from the room where the machinery is located, he gave the alarm. When the fumes began creeping through the plant the women became nervous and attempted to flee down the steps.

A. T. du Buskey, forman, then stepped into the breach and forced all the employes to retrace their steps and go to the roof for fresh air. The rescue squad soon arrived and, after removing the chlorine tank, opened all windows to the plant.

After the laundry had cleared sufficiently of the gas, the employes were led downstairs, and those overcome were rushed to the hospital. Capt. J. R. Grove, Sergt. E. J. Carroll, D. J. McCarthy and L. F. Price, members of the Fire Department, were also slightly affected by the fumes while removing the tank, despite the fact that they wore gas masks.

Truck Driver Is Held For Auto Death Trial

Arraigned on a charge of reckless driving as the aftermath of a recent traffic fatality, Richard John King, a milk truck operator, of Friendship Heights, Md., was held in $1,000 bail for trial yesterday by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court.

A truck driven by King struck and fatally injured Ira Beasley, colored, of 61 R street northwest, a week ago on Florida avenue northwest. A coroner's jury held the death was the result of an accident and absolved King of blame. The colored man is alleged to have been intoxicated at the time of the mishap.

TWO ARTISTS THRILL IN CLASSIC PROGRAM

BEETHOVEN TRIO PLAYED

Two artists of the bow, Paul Kochanski, violinist, and Felix Salmond, cellist, shared honors at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's thirty-second musical morning at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

The high point of the morning, musically speaking, was reached when Mr. Kochanski and Mr. Salmond, admirably accompanied by Pierre Luboschutz on the piano, played Beethoven's Trio in C Minor, opus 1, No. 3. Its four movements gave both violinist and cellist chance to display excellent virtuosity, perfection of technical equipment and a blending of tone which was a real joy. While all the movements of the trio were fascinating, many found the greatest delight in the andante cantabile when the antiphony of the violin and cello voices produced the height of musical art.

Paul Kochanski has many admirers in Washington who found much to praise yesterday in his opening solo selections, the Melodie from Orpheus by Gluck-Kreisler and Rondo by Mozart.

Tone Warm and Virile.

In these numbers his gifts of expressive cantabile, graceful phrasing and warm, virile tone had full sweep. Mr. Kochanski is master of harmonics and trills par excellence and has a firm command of all the intricacies of bowing. Again he scored in the Concerto in A Minor by Bach, and Handel's Passacaglia, while in the Gypsy Rondo by Haydn, which he played with Mr. Salmond, the spontaneous applause of the audience was proof of its effectiveness.

It has been truly said of Felix Salmond that he is complete master of his instrument. The tone he draws from his cello is warm, deep, full-throated, which tells its musical story without effort and in many moods.

Audience Is Enthralled.

In a group of three compositions played as solos, the audience was enthralled by the two lovely Faure numbers, "Apres un Reve" and "Berceuse." Equally dainty and appealing was "Melodie," by Frank Bridges, which the composer dedicated to Mr. Salmond. It was evident that Mr. Salmond is a poet of the cello, a type few and far between.

The artists at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's next Musical Morning next Wednesday will be Mme. Ruth Townsend-Petrovic, mezzo-soprano, and Benjamin Gigli, tenor, of the Metropolitan Opera Company. E. E. P.

"I am quite sure that the national corporations will rally enthusiastically to the support of the community chest and will be glad to do their utmost to help in the adequate financing of social work in the Nation's Capital for which it seems to me they have a peculiar responsibility," Maj. Demonet said yesterday.

Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the group solicitation unit, announced the names of four additional divisional chairmen. They are Percy Thompson, of the W. A. Prince Co.; Charles H. LEHLBACH PAY BILL REJECTED BY FOUR OF HIS COLLEAGUES

COOLIDGE ASKS DATA ON IOWAN'S MEASURE

Mrs. Worrell Says New Jersey Member's Plans Would Demoralize Service.

A lively session is promised when the House civil service committee meets this morning to consider the bill introduced by Chairman Lehlbach to correct the inequalities in the Welch pay-raise act.

Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, and at least three other members of the committee have definitely made up their minds to oppose Lehlbach's bill and to ask that the committee get behind the Brookhart bill. In the meantime, President Coolidge has turned his attention to the question of taking care of those employes who were auchered out of the raises they expected to get under the Welch act.

President Asks Figures.

The President has asked Senator Dale (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the Senate civil service committee, to send him a memorandum explaining the Brookhart bill, together with an estimate of what it would cost.

The President, it was learned yesterday, has not made known his attitude toward the Brookhart bill or any bill, but he is said to have been surprised to learn that the first-named measure would cost no more than $3,000,000.

His surprise probably is based on the fact that at the last session, classification experts estimated that the bill would add more than $5,000,000 to the pay roll.

There was talk yesterday of using the Brookhart bill as a basis for salary legislation, and grafting onto it certain features in the Lehlbach bill, such as, for example, the provision restoring to the Personnel Classification Board the authority that was taken from it by Comptroller General McCarl.

Time Increases Opposition.

Time simply serves to increase the opposition to the Lehlbach bill and to increase the support behind the Brookhart bill. The Lehlbach bill would benefit only about a third as many poorly-paid employes as the Brookhart bill would benefit. But what is worse, it would decrease the salaries of a large number of employes.

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, president of the League of the Civil Service, issued a statement last night in which she declared that the Lehlbach bill would "demoralize the whole Government service." Furthermore, she said, it would give "czaristic powers" to the Personnel Classification Board.

Would Subdivide Grades.

The bill, she said, would permit the board to sweep aside any position and grade to which an employe may have been allocated under the classification act or the Welch act, and make such changes as it sees fit.

Moreover, she said, it could subdivide the grade and fix the compensation which employes shall receive thereunder.

She found many other faults with the Lehlbach bill, and concluded by predicting that it would take years to reallocate and readjust positions under the Lehlbach plan.

Man Found Dead, Victim Of Gas Fumes in Room

The body of Walter W. Wilkinson, 60 years old, janitor at the Ledroit Building, 802 F street northwest, was found in his gas-filled quarters yesterday morning by neighbors who traced the odor of gas to his room.

The rescue squad and the Emergency ambulance were summoned. Dr. Leon Gordon pronounced the man dead upon arrival. Wilkinson was slumped over the gas range as though he had stumbled and fallen across it.

Through Attorneys Wolf, Fleishman & Wolf she asked that Basale be compelled to pay her damages of $213, which she alleged she lost through departure of her "distressed" tenants.

Dog Jailed 30 Days With Man, Freed, Takes to Long Road

Yet to the homeless poodle that took a fancy to Frank S. Benton it's a dog's life, jail or no jail. If you can muster any sympathy for a fugitive from justice, consider the case of the poodle that has a 30-day jail sentence over its head and is taking life pretty much as it comes.

Benton brought his dog friend to town with him from the Occoquan (Va.) Workhouse several days ago, having formed an attachment during a stop-over there brought on by intoxication. The Antisaloon League hasn't made much impression on Benton. Judge John P. McMahon passed a 30-day sentence out to him Tuesday but provision was not made for the dog and Benton entered a plea in the poodle's behalf.

"Maj. Peak will be glad to care for your dog for 30 days," Judge McMahon informed him, and later the dog was sent to the major, who is superintendent of the District Jail. The District hasn't made arrangement for chastising delinquent dogs. At all events, Maj. Peak "paroled" the poodle after a while. Meanwhile Benton had requested that the dog be taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Daniel J. Cleary, 3318 Reservoir road northwest.

It is reasonable to suppose that life suddenly had become very complex for the dog. If you ever had a dog you can imagine Benton's poodle ruminating:

"What the Sam Hill! They take my man away from me; then send me to jail. I ain't done nothing, but it ought to be warm down here. How about a little food, jailer? Oh, well, life could be worse."

But a man interrupted and took the dog away. No food. Not even a chance to sniff around, and get the lay of the land. Enter a woman, in the person of Mrs. Cleary. Frank Benton does not live at 3318 Reservoir road, and seldom goes there. Mrs. Cleary couldn't understand the arrival of the poodle, but she took it to the back yard and introduced it to a puppy her children had received for Christmas. She then started to call the Humane Society.

With a 30-day jail sentence over its head and its master beyond reach, the white poodle apparently decided that the Big Road looked like the best bet. It went away from there, not pausing to offer explanation even to the puppy acquaintance.

Ejection From Dry Meeting Basis of Suits for $60,000

Woman Sues Man and Hotel for Damages, Charging Assault and Slander; Speech by Senator Heflin Indirect Cause of Court Action.

Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, was the unwitting and indirect cause of two damage suits, totaling $60,000, being instituted against Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., whose wife is president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, and the Mayflower Hotels Corporation, in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Susan L. Davis, of 2014 G street northwest.

Charging Nicholson with assault, Miss Davis declared he forcefully and without justification or excuse, ejected her from a meeting of the enforcement league on the night of last January 10, at the Mayflower Hotel. Action of Nicholson caused her great embarrassment, disgrace and humiliation, Miss Davis declared, and asked the court to grant her $25,000 damages.

Through her counsel, Howard F. Ralph and Joseph Fitzgerald, jr., Miss Davis complained that an agent of the hotel slandered and assaulted her on the same occasion. The hotel employe, she said, called her a "disreputable character," and also assaulted her by laying his hands on her in an effort to put her out of the hotel. She asked the court to grant her $25,000 damages from the hotel on the slander count and $10,000 damages on the assault count.

Senator Heflin was the principal speaker at the meeting on the occasion. After he had completed his talk, Miss Davis said, she arose from her seat in the audience to correct a mistake the senator made during the course of his speech. Mrs. Nicholson, who was presiding, recognized Col. P. H. Callahan, ardent Democratic dry, of Louisville, Ky. It was at this juncture, Miss Davis said, that Nicholson accosted her.
